But lucky it is for the public weal
If a Person shall guide the tossing ship.

Daniel, 'tis true, is getting old,
And in Concord city would feel forlorn;
So we will keep him at home in the fold—
In the city where he was "always born."

A Card.

The statement in the Times to which my signature was appended was not authorized by me. I was present only a portion of the time referred to. The Women's League was the subject of the conversation.

A. W. HAVEN.

Say Something, Somebody.

The Manchester Union of Saturday copies our item concerning Hon. Daniel Marcy's views on the labor question, with the Times' comment, and the card inserted in the latter paper by Mr. John S. Treat and bearing his signature and the name of another who did not sign it. It further says, on the authority of "a thoroughly reliable gentleman," that "Mr. Drew in conversation pronounced it (the statement of Mr. Marcy's expression of the opinion that a dollar a day is sufficient pay for a working man) false, and so also did Mr. Osgood;" that "the only conversation that took place was on the subject of temperance," and that "if Mr. Marcy desired it he (Mr. Drew or Mr. Osgood—which one is not stated,) would willingly make affidavit of the falsity of the statement."

We do not know who the theroughly reliable gentleman may be, nor what Messrs. Drew and Osgood may really have said on the subject; but we know perfectly well what our authority is for the statement, and that one of the first moves made by Mr. Marcy's friends to throw discredit upon it was to print a gentleman's name appended to a card without putting him to the trouble of signing it! We were also informed, on what we regard as good democratic authority, late Friday night, that a well known democratic politician had gone to Manchester to procure an authoritative contradiction of the story from Messrs. Drew and Osgood; yet notwithstanding the reputed willingness of somebody to make affidavit, and the early return of the democratic messenger on Saturday, nothing was said on the subject by the Times of that evening. But why either of the gentlemen named should be appealed to to decide the question of the truth or falsity of the statement, when Capt. Marcy himself is right at hand, is more than we can tell. If he wishes to contradict the story in a card, and the Times won't print it, we will. We would not do him an injustice, even though he were certain to be elected if we did not and to be defeated if we did; in proof of which we refer to the article which has so disturbed our democratic brethren, in which we were careful to give time and place, and the names of several persons, that if he were wronged he might at once give the story an overwhelming refutation,—which, however, has not yet been done.

The Sentiment of 1786.

Editors Chronicle:—While looking over Adams' Annals of Portsmouth, lately, I came across the following passage, which has such a direct bearing upon one of the great subjects of controversy at the present day, that I thought your readers might not be unwilling to see what their ancestors in this place thought about it. The date is 1786.

"There was a general complaint in the country, of the depressed situation of trade, which was supposed to be owing to the great scarcity of money; and the General Court proposed to remedy the evil, by emitting a paper currency. They submitted the plan upon which they proposed to issue it, to the several towns in the State. This town was legally assembled on the 6th of November, and expressed an opinion that a paper medium would increase the difficulties; that it could not answer the purpose of trade; that it would deprive this State of commerce, and drain it of it specie; that the disproportion between a paper currency and specie, would always cause the former to depreciate; that if the officers of government were obliged to receive their salaries in paper money, the highest offices would be filled by persons unworthy of the lowest: that paper money always has promoted, and always will promote corruption, and a multitude of other concomitant evils; and, considering it either in a moral or political point of view, they heartily reprobate it." **

Circuit Court.

In the Circuit Court, in session at Exeter, the case of Simeon Rowell vs. the Boston & Maine Railroad, for burning a saw-mill was tried. The jury returned a verdict for the defendants. This case has been previously tried, the plaintiff being awarded $4000, to which the road took exceptions, and elected a trial by jury.

The following petit jurors have been drawn for the fourth and fifth weeks:

Wm. Gornell, Frank W. Rand, Charles J. Mason, John Fritz, Portsmouth; Nathaniel White, Robert W. Norton, Jr., Greenland; Edward R. Noyes, Caleb Moulton, Hampstead; Wm. H. Blake, John C. Palmer, Hampton; Wm. C. Harris, Abel Dow, Windham; Moses B. Stevens, John L. Little, Atkinson; Sebastian S. Griffin, John Murray, Auburn; John S. Stevens, Daniel J. Kendall, Brentwood; Edwin Haselton, Augustus P. Morse, Chester; George H. March, Francis F. Dimond, Danville; Ellphalet C. Greeley, Charles F. Greeley, East Kingston; Nathaniel Burnham, Samuel H. Rand, Epping; Banning S. Scribner, Sherburne Sanborn, Fremont; Joseph W. Merrill, Jr., John M. Clark, Exeter.

Jottings.

Said he: "The pootiest turkey I ever see an' only eighteen cents!"

Mr. Wm. C. Robinson has been appointed to the agency of the State Mutual Life Assurance Co., for this city. The advantages offered by this company are set forth in the advertisement.

The Boston papers must think that we have a pretty rich set of police criminals down this way, for they have nearly all published an item stating the number of arrests last year at 458, and the amount of fines and costs collected $96,305! More than twenty-one hundred dolars apiece for each "party" arrested. Portsmouth has always had the reputation of being a wealthy city, we know; but here's a richness that it would puzzle the the tencennial committee or the Eastern Railroad managers to account for. It is almost unnecessary to add that the error consists in a wrong punctuation of the figures; but the point is, that none of the proof-readers corrected it.

Ensign William Winder, of this city, is detached from the Marion and ordered to the Huron.

Brig Sally Brown, Ross, of Portsmouth, from Batavia for Boston, was spoken Dec. 12, forty miles S. S. E. of Cape of Good Hope.

The improvements on South Street, between Broad and Wibird Streets,—the widening of South street from twelve to twenty-four feet, with the new side walks and grading of the roadbed, &c.,—we are informed were made at a cost of about $600. Of this the City paid $168 (about half the cost) for removing and building fifty-six rods of stone wall, and the balance of $450 or so was paid by Mr. Frank W. Miller, who arranged and promoted this great improvement for his premises and the public. All the land for this extensive widening was given by Mr. Miller, Mr. Janvrin, and Messrs. A. H. & C. H. Ladd,—the latter gentlemen throwing 8,000 feet into the road, at the request of Mr. Miller—who desires publicly to return thanks to all concerned in this matter and to the present City Government and all former governments with which he has had to deal, for their hearty co-operation with him in all the public improvements made in that vicinity.

At a competitive drill, Thursday evening, Mr. Appleton Tredick of the Portsmouth Artillery Company, took the first prize. Sergeant John S. Tilton won the second.

A son of Mr. Franklin C. Hoyt, on arriving home on Court street shortly after ten o'clock, Friday night, found a flour barrel filled with combustible material on fire and extinguished it. The supposition is that some villain entered the house by a window and deliberately gathered the inflammable articles together and set them on fire. Several half-burned matches were found on the kitchen floor.

"Boston Receipts" is the title of a little cook book just issued by A. Williams & Co., Boston. It contains over two hundred common-sense domestic formulas, which have been tested by the author, a housekeep of twenty years' experience. No book more likely to meet the wants of an economical family needing plain, inexpensive cooking, has ever been issued. An excellent table of contents will enable all to find the particular receipt wanted, and for the convenience of those who wish to keep their own favorite receipts, it is interleaved throughout. Those in New England and those outside, who wish to know what New England cooking is, should own the book, which will be invaluable to a good housekeeper. An additional reason for purchasing it is the low price (fifty cents) for which it can be had of the booksellers. Mailed by the Publishers on receipt of price.

Rev. Daniel P. Noyes, of Newburyport, gives the next lecture in the course at Kittery Point Congregational church. His subject, "John Winthrop and the first settlement of Boston," will interest every one in this centennial year, and Mr. Noyes is highly recommended by the Congregationalist.

A history of the educational interests of our city is being written as a contribution to the "Department of Public Instruction" of the State to be sent to the Centennial exhibition with the history of other towns in the State. Any person possessing documents relating to the subject, or having knowledge of any interesting incident in the history of our public schools is requested to communicate with

Death of Major Alex. Rice.

We are called upon again to chronicle the decease of another aged citizen of Portsmouth, Major Alexander Rice, who died on Saturday evening, at the age of nearly 76 years. He was the son of Major Alexander Rice, of Kittery, and was born there in April, 1800. When very young he entered the service of the Eastern Stage Company, and was soon made its agent, taking charge of all collections and disbursements, and remaining in the position until the company was superseded by the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth Railroad corporation. He was transferred to a position at the station in this city and had charge of the ticket agency from the opening of the Road to Portland until within two or three years. Having passed beyond the hale old age of three-score-and-ten, he had determined to resign his position at the close of the quarter, but the change in the management of the Eastern Railroad having occurred he was removed two months before the close of the quarter to make way for a friend of a director.

Major Rice was like the late Mr. Elwyn a representative of the old school gentleman. His familiar face at the Eastern depot seemed inseparable from the natural condition of things. His honesty was that of the strictest and his integrity was undoubted. Unlike the flashy treasurers of the present day who unsettle the public confidence by embezzlement and defalcation and then hasten to foreign lands for safety from justice, Major Rice maintained a good name and reputation by dealing fairly and faithfully with the trusts in his charge. No shadow of suspicion ever fell on him, and he retired from the service of the railroad with the full confidence of its management, as had been the case when he relinquished the books of the Stage Company. His title was conferred by his appointment as major of a Maine regiment while he was yet a young man. His life, though not as active as that of many who rise to greater honors, was that of a faithful man who, with a character beyond reproach, a modesty as unassuming as it is rare, and a quiet contentment that few possess, furnished a worthy example for the younger members of society to imitate as necessary elements to the formation of an unimpeachable character and such acquirements as command the respect of people whose good opinions are worth obtaining.

THE SICILIAN VESPERS.

The terrible massacre known by the above title took place at Easter, in the year 1282. It was but a verification of the old proverb of the trodden worm turning to bite its oppressor's foot. At this period the Sicilians were ruled over by a French prince of the house of Anjou, with a tyranny of the most cruel and galling nature. Obnoxious to the Sicilians from his nationality, the people had as well to bear the presence of a licentious and brutal alien soldiery, to whom nothing was sacred, and the history of the times teems with accounts of the coarse insults to which husbands and fathers of all classes had to submit, as offered to those who were nearest and dearest to their families. Under such a long course of oppression it was but little wonder that the hot fire of the Italian wrath should be smouldering, and waiting but for some slight fanning to leap into a devastating flame that should destroy all before it. The occasion arrived. Easter Monday being a fete day, a procession of the people of Palermo was formed to attend vespers at a neighboring church; when the French rulers, who gazed with suspicion upon all gatherings of the people, made this a pretext for searching for arms. To a brutal, licentious soldiery, this supplied an opportunity for offering gross insults to the females, one of whom was a young married lady of great beauty and position. Her screams aroused the multitude; the spark was laid to the train; and led by the lady's father and husband, the people rose in tumult. Arms were seized and an indiscriminate slaughter of the French in the city was the result. This was but the alarm note for a general rising; and in town after town upon the same day massacres took place, the news flying swiftly, till not a place remained in the hands of the French but Messina. So hot was the people's rage, and so long a reign of cruelty had they to avenge, that mercy was forgotten; neither sex nor age was spared. French nationality being the password for death. Fortresses were attacked and carried, sharp and decisive engagements took place, and garrison after garrison was slaughtered, Messina only remaining at last to be taken to free the island from the foreign foe. But here a pause ensued, many of the more substantial inhabitants fearing the power of the insurgents as opposed to that of the brutal soldiery. But again a spark illumined the fire. A citizen was arrested by the French for appearing in public bearing arms. He resisted, aided by friends; but being overcome, they were borne off to prison, when, not content with the conquest, the Viceroy sent to arrest the prisoner's wife. This injustice roused the people, who flew to arms, attacked the French and slaughtered above 3,000, driving the others into their fortresses, which they took after an obstinate defense, and put the defenders to the sword. The insurrection, commencing as it did on the night of the Palermo procession, has since been known as the Sicilian Vespers. The number of French put to the sword has been variously estimated at from 20,000 to 30,000; but, whatever the number, the slaughter was fierce and indiscriminate, and, in spite of after-efforts to recover the territory, Sicily was from that time lost to reigning King of Naples, Charles of Anjou.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of Spring and Summer their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time the testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that I Was Almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past I have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much distressed after eating, and could not lie down; I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.50 for three packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and have gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything that good for it, but only to take only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials please read "Worth Ten Dollars a Pill" in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In ten, please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing constant pain in the small of my back, so that I could not stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. For several years, spend a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to read your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight of them I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels and Constipation, and wished to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they prove a blessing to thousands who are yet to be benefited by them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMONICE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMONICE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is endorsic and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England.

PULMONICE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMONICE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMONICE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmonice Cordial.

The Pulmonice Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

PULMONICE.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of strangers ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting and critical. The Democratic party, and its representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term will be under the control of the House of Representatives, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there can be no slight signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will be the subject of sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and production and industry there are hopes that it will witness the long wished for revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its current performance, as entitling its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, unbiased by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can no longer be the servant of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and principles of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the people may know and can trust; to secure hard money, Administrative reform, and economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its judgment, and hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater influence.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere partisanship, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon and disavow the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters will find within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a course satisfactory to themselves and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to impartial readers. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; it will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in applying to the incessant attacks of its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a valuable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the Years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won that position by the closest watching news and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh and intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, which the world now in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors is numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

TIDES.

The Alexandria (Va.) Gazette gives the following information about some peculiarities which may be observed in the tides of Chesapeake bay: A curious fact is that it is always ebb tide at Cape Henry at moon rising or setting; it is always low tide at New Point Comfort at moon rising or setting; it is always low tide at Hooper's straits at moon rising or setting, and high tide at Sandy Point at the same time, and flood tide at all points above Sandy Point when the moon rises and sets. A vessel entering the capes with a strong, fair wind at the beginning of the flood tide may carry the same tide to Alexandria. But a vessel leaving Alexandria for the capes will encounter these flood tides on her way, no matter how fast she may sail, and it may be she will have to contend against several more if she has a head wind. Every flood tide that enters Chesapeake bay goes to the head of every tide-water stream or tributary of the bay, while the same ebb tide does not run more than sixty miles, and sometimes a great deal less, so that there are always two ebb tides and two flood tides in Chesapeake bay at the same time, and sometimes three of one or the other. The flood tide runs about six hours, the ebb a little longer, so that twelve hours and forty minutes are required for a flood tide and ebb to pass the same point. It is always flood tide in the Wicomico river on the morning of Easter and the same at Whitsuntide.

POLLY'S REPROACH.

My parrot was brought as a present to me some years ago. When he first came to live with us, he had been brought from a long way off across the sea; and having been for some weeks on board ship, he had learned to imitate all the sailors said, and to use some very naughty words; so much so, that after the first week of his arrival I was obliged to have him taken away from the dining-room until he should have learned better manners. I put him under the care of Cook, who declared she had a little plan whereby she would undertake to cure Master Polly of saying words that were used on board ship by rude, rough sailors.

She carried him, cage and all, down into the kitchen, and there he remained until he was cured. Every time Polly began to talk, and say amusing little things he had learned, nothing was done to him, but directly he said what was not pretty, Cook took some water in her hand, and throwing it over him in his cage, she said "That's for saying naughty words!" At first, Mr. Poll did not like this at all, and he ruffled up his feathers and talked all the more; but after it was repeated several times, he seemed to understand it was meant as a correction, for he became very quiet, and after a week or two we began to think he might come again to the dining-room.

One day it was warm and sunny, and I thought Polly should be hung out in his cage at the back of the house, where he could feel the warm sun, and chatter and talk to his heart's content. Now, it happened that the only place for him to be put was a little way above a cistern full of water; so they hung up the cage, and left him there. I was sitting working at a window close by, also enjoying the sun and fresh morning air, and not thinking at all about Polly, when I looked up and saw our neighbor's tom-cat come creeping stealthily along the wall, looking earnestly at the cage hanging over the cistern.

I had no fear for my parrot for I knew he was out of the reach of pussy's claws, so I went on with my work, when suddenly I heard a loud splash, and then a mew, and almost immediately a queer, sharp little voice (which I knew to be Polly's), called out "That's for saying naughty words!"

I looked from my window, and saw puss struggling in the water, and Polly looking very wise. I could not help laughing, in spite of poor pussy's troubles, who no doubt fell into the cistern while trying to reach the cage, but I soon rescued him.

No doubt the noise of the splash of water reminded Polly of what Cook had said when she punished him, but I am afraid pussy did not take a lesson from "Polly's reproach."—Children's Prize.

—We are approaching the season of heavy and damp snow-storms; and whether, in this winter, we get them or not, it can do no harm to nudge our farmer friends to this effect: When you put your cattle under shelter out of such a storm, always brush them off before leaving them. It does good to curry comb them frequently, but it is especially needful to rub them off when they come in from a storm. You will have to pay for it in flesh or milk if you let them stand, shivering and wet. A good, soft broom will answer the purpose, or a generous wisp of straw; only remember what the good Book says a merciful man will be.—Golden Rule.

—One of the novelties of a new hotel in Jacksonville, Fla., is a crystal chandelier in the bridal chamber. By touching a button it is lighted; at the same moment out springs a little Cupid, who strikes with a hammer a chime of bells, which peel out in the sweetest melody, "Let me kiss him for his mother," etc.

—It was Prince John Van Buren who, being stopped by highwaymen one night, said, "Gentlemen, I haven't got any money, but I'll give you my note for three months."

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President—Lincoln—will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

Mr. Marcy's "Popularity."

Some of the democratic papers in the interior, finding the political situation in their immediate neighborhood anything but promising for their State and Senatorial ticket, are promising their readers wondrous things in Portsmouth or somewhere else on account of the "great popularity" of Hon. Daniel Marcy. Why Mr. Marcy should be popular where best known is not quite evident at first sight. As an indication of his standing among workingmen who have in times past been in his employ we are reminded of the forcible utterance of a mechanic whom we met on the street a day or two since, and who, on our casually mentioning the fact that an over-zealous political friend had denied that Mr. Marcy had recently declared that a dollar a day was enough for a workman, immediately responded: "Well; that is of little use; for very few if any men ever employed in the Captain's ship-yard will doubt that such are his sentiments." There may be men among the working classes who will more than willingly vote for him for Governor, but so very few are the republicans whom Mr. Marcy has been wont to employ, there would be no difficulty in enumerating them on the fingers of one hand without a repetition of the act. There are many others no doubt, of the same political faith as Mr. Marcy, who will vote for him only because he has employed them in the past and may in the future. Among republicans having direct business relations with him very few if any votes for him may be expected. As a compliment some might kindly vote for him were they assured that their votes would not help elect him; but this kindly feeling will not lead them to desert the present able and upright chief magistrate of the State and their principles. There is no element of popularity about Mr. Marcy that differs from that of others. The whole secret of the nomination of so eminently unfit a man for Governor lies in the fact that he is wealthy and that the democracy hope to obtain funds for the campaign from this source. Take away his property and he would not be thought of, much more named as a candidate.

Mr. Marcy's public and private record is not of the kind calculated to improve his prospects. He could find no word to strengthen the hand of the Government in its life-and-death struggle with treason—no occasion to vote otherwise while in Congress than in a way to encourage his democratic allies of the South, then in rebellion. He found ample time, however, to criticise blusteringly and with unction the management of navy yard matters, and deprecate the high rates of wages paid mechanics and laborers of both parties then employed. As to the state of the country, he could express no nobler sentiment than that it had "gone to ——." With the usual consistency of politicians of his class he denounced navy yard employment and immediately availed himself of its benefits when convenient. To listen, was almost to be convinced that he was immaculate, that he would hardly allow an overburdened National government to pay for an extra pound of steam pressure to convey him in the ferry boat across the river; to observe, was to witness his landing at the yard and to learn that he made such use of models and material in the mold-loft as saved him hundreds if not thousands of dollars, not without an added expense to the National government. He accepted such a courtesy with the same feeling of content manifested at the employment of a ship carpenter at twenty-five cents per diem below the current rates.

As a matter of fact, Capt. Marcy has not been "a friend to the workingman" to any great extent during 364 days of the year, and only on the 365th when his name has been on the democratic ticket as a candidate for office. His policy has been to reduce daily wages when possible, and to raise them only when it has been impossible to do otherwise. The "popularity" accredited to Capt. Marcy when a candidate has led us to investigate the matter at considerable trouble, and the revelation has surprised us beyond measure, as we cannot justify his frequent candidacy with his more frequent expressions of disgust with office-holders and office-seekers. Explorations among the Tribune and World almanacs, the State Register and newspaper files reveal the fact that from 1855 to 1875 inclusive he has been a candidate for office twenty-two times—a fraction over once a year on the average—and now he is a candidate again! We venture to say that no other city in the State can produce a parallel case, republican or democratic. Outside his own ward, however, he has been an unsuccessful candidate more than half the time, his largest majority (in 1856) being 130 and the smallest 56. Ten times he ran for office in his own ward: Thrice for alderman, three times for assessor, and four times for representative to the legislature. During the two years that the republicans held the ward (1865 and 1866), however, Mr. Marcy was not a candidate for a ward, State or city office. Why he did not avail himself of opportunities in those years to "run ahead of his ticket" is not known. For the ten times that he has been a candidate in his own ward alone, but once has he run up to the highest candidate on the same ticket, while in nine cases other candidates on the democratic ticket have received more votes. Five times he has been a candidate for State Senator: In 1855, '56, '57, and '72, four years, he led the Governor vote 136, an average of less than 35 per year, while in 1871 he ran behind the Governor vote 130—leaving one-fifth of a vote per year to represent his average excessive popularity! Five times he has been a democratic candidate for Congress, and once was elected by a plurality of 80 votes over Hon. Joel Eastman, in 1863, the retreat of McClellan from the peninsula having encouraged the rebels north and south and disheartened Union men. Notwithstanding the series of Union disasters the year previous, Capt. Marcy only succeeded in running ahead of his ticket three votes! He commenced running for Congress in 1859 and continued repeating the performance until it was a matter of doubt whether he would ever stop and that perpetual motion was fait accompli. In 1850, the navy yard was in democratic hands, and no republican ever thought it worth while to ask for employment there. That year Mr. Marcy actually ran 153 votes ahead of his ticket. Summing up the amazing popularity of the perpetual candidate, we find the balance in his favor to be 154 for the five years he ran for Congress—or less than 31 votes per year. Considering that this Congressional district is the largest of the three, it will be observed that the "great popularity" referred to if extended over the entire State would add less than 100 votes to Mr. Marcy's total.

To carry these investigations to their legitimate conclusions, we proceed to a summing up of results. Mr. Marcy's candidacy at different times has been as follows: 1855—for Senator; 1856—for Senator; 1856, for Presidential Elector; 1857—for Senator; 1858—for Alderman; 1858—for Alderman; 1859—for Congressman; 1859—for Alderman; 1860—for Assessor; 1861—for Congressman; 1861—for Assessor; 1862—for Assessor; 1863—for Congressman; 1865—for Congressman; 1867—for Congressman; 1870—for Representative to the legislature; 1871—for Senator; 1872—for Senator; 1873—for Representative; 1874—for Mayor and for Representative; 1875—for Representative. In 1874, he accomplished a wonderful feat, running as a candidate for Mayor and Representative on the same ticket, receiving just the vote that the democratic candidate for Governor had in Portsmouth and running two votes for Representative behind himself as a candidate for Mayor. Our summary of his candidacy to date reveals the fact that seven times he has run ahead of the highest candidate on his ticket, the aggregate amounting to 358 votes, or 51 votes per year; and thirteen times other candidates on the same ticket have received 237 votes more than he, an average of less than 14. Mr. Marcy's available popularity therefore in twenty-two opportunities is 121 votes, or five and a half votes per opportunity. Our democratic friends in the interior now have a basis on which to estimate the proposed "great popularity" of Capt. Marcy and its probable effect on the politics of the State; but before beginning the task they may well consider the fact that their present candidate for Governor has run behind the highest candidates on his ticket for State, city and ward offices for the past eight years, with one exception—when he and Mr. Weston received the same number of votes.

Eminently "Democratic."

An illustration of the meanness of democratic politicians of the small-fry order has been afforded by a Massachusetts Congressman named Tarbox, who was accidentally elected in 1874, but will probably haunt the floor of the National House in no future Congress. During the past summer Ex-Speaker Blaine employed a portion of his leisure hours at home to write up a speech on the finances, which was put in type at Augusta, Me. A boy stole a proof of the speech and Tarbox came into possession of it. This was soon after revealed to some of Mr. Blaine's friends, the intention being to disconcert him. At a convenient time, one day last week, Mr. Blaine delivered his speech, which was an able production. Congressman Tarbox exultingly displayed a printed copy and made a prepared reply to Mr. Blaine, which fell so tamely on the House as to fail to elicit any particular notice. So the democratic Congressman, whom New Hampshire democrats have frequently imported to instruct them how to vote, showed his smallness of soul to no purpose. An exchange likens his conduct to that of "a whist player who looks at his opponent's hand and plays accordingly." In card playing such conduct would be called cheating and its practice ungentlemanly; in democratic politics it is considered smartness and its practice an evidence of huge capacity for statesmanship!

Mated, Not Married.

There is quite a sensation in Newburyport over the marriage of Mr. James Parton, the well-known author, to his stepdaughter, Miss Eldredge, the same being forbidden by the statutes of Massachusetts. The bridegroom learned his status the morning after the wedding, when a lawyer acquaintance called upon him and informed him that the Massachusetts laws forbid his marrying the daughter of a former wife; which unfortunate state of affairs might have been prevented had the city clerk known the law and refused them a marriage license, as he ought, or had their "intention of marriage" been published in the newspapers, as is sometimes done. To "prevent further scandal," says the newspaper account of the affair, "Mr. Parton left his house in charge of his new wife (?) and took rooms for himself at a boarding house. He will apply to the legislature for a special act sanctioning the marriage."

We should suppose there is but little chance of the legislature passing an enabling act for this special case, but think it not unlikely that they might be induced to repeal the law, and then the unfortunate couple could be coupled over again. But this restriction is not the only absurdity in the Massachusetts marriage law.

Mr. Parton was born in England in 1822, and is therefore 53 years old. His former wife, whose maiden name was Willis, she being a sister of the poet N. P. Willis, was first married to Mr. Charles Eldredge, cashier of the Merchants Bank in Boston, whose decease about 1850 left her a widow with two daughters, to support whom and herself she took to writing for the newspapers under the name of "Fanny Fern," and won both fame and money. Afterward, in 1856, she married James Parton, she being eleven years older than he, and her death occurred a few years ago. One of her daughters, we think, became the wife of Mr. Mortimer Thompson of New York, whose humorous writings under the name of "Doesticks" were very popular for a while, but though one of the first and smartest of the Artemus Ward and Josh Billings styles he did not wear so well nor last as long. His wife lived but a short time after their marriage.

"Fanny Fern" was often a brilliant, but usually a satirical and often a bitter writer; and she is remembered by many of our citizens for the severe lampooning which she visited upon a son of Portsmouth, now a newspaper publisher in Boston, in her novel "Ruth Hall." Just fancy "Fanny's" feelings and sayings, could she but know of these latter day doings. We recollect one of her cynical short articles in the New York Ledger years ago, when "Doesticks" married her daughter, wherein she said it might be all right, after a woman had got her daughters thro' teething, the scarlet fever, the mumps, measles and all that, for a young fellow to come along and beckon to any of them, and away they follow him;—but she did just wish they would let her girls alone! Poor Fanny!

A Novel Free Pass.

On Friday afternoon a Frenchman about 19 years of age arrived at the village of Suncook, N. H., from Sherbrooke, P. Q. He had travelled the whole distance on a "free pass" of his own manufacture, which obtained currency from the natural sympathy which even the knights of the coupon and the punch have for poverty, when coupled with infirmity. He constructed a wooden leg from white ash, and with a cushioned socket to receive the knee, crooked his leg at right angles and fastened on his wooden pass with straps. It served him well. He told a pitiful story of poverty and orphanage, and presented the wooden stump as a convincing claim to a "charity pass." Four conductors grew to a melting mood, and their sorrows for his misfortunes allowed him to ride in peace, and without script, to Concord, N. H. Not only did the wooden leg serve as a pass, but at intervals in the day's journey he passed through the train, hat in hand, and many a nickel and some stray scrip dropped therein, a tribute which pity drew from willing pockets. At Concord only six miles remained to complete his journey, and he boarded Conductor Wyatt's train, cripple still. Again the same story of deformity, poverty and orphanage, and as the young picker of pasteboards listened, sympathy drew his pencil from his pocket and wrote upon his train report this: "Frenchman; cripple; charity." When the train reached Suncook the cripple was about to leave the car on the side opposite the depot. The conductor kindly informed him which way to go, and warned him to be careful and not fall. He heeded not, but stepped off into the snow, unfastened his wooden leg, and as he stood a whole man, he swung with one hand the now useless member in triumph to the conductor, and with the other waved an adieu to the departing train.

The route he travelled will hereafter be no place for poor cripples. Sympathy departed with the advent of that wooden leg.—Boston Herald.

Ameloration and Cure.

Amelioration of the symptoms of a disease is, of course, one desirable object of medication, and there are, no doubt, palliatives which possess considerable remedial efficacy. The temporary disappearance of the indicia of a disease, in too many instances, however, deludes the sick into a belief that they are cured. Many of those who have borne grateful testimony to the permanent remedial effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in cases of liver disorder, chronic constipation, intermittent and remittent fevers, urinary and rheumatic ailments, have also recorded the fact that the temporary relief occasionally afforded by the medicines which they tried before using the great restorative inspired hopes which were speedily dissipated by a return of the malady. The Bitters not only relieve, but if persistently and regularly taken, CURE the maladies to which they are adapted.

E. G. PIERCE, Jr., P. M.

The "Goose" Defence.

The Times copies a paragraph from the Boston Herald to the effect that the democratic gubernatorial candidate in this State is charged with having said a dollar a day is pay enough for a working man, and adds:

"The 'charge' that Capt. Marcy made any such remark, is false, and was cooked up in this city for political purposes. Capt. Marcy, Messrs. Drew and Osgood, the temperance reformers, Alfred W. Haven, Esq., and Mr. John S. Treat, president of our local temperance club, deny that any other subject than temperance was mentioned in the conversation between them."

There is an old story about the trial of a man who was charged with having stolen a goose. Six men came forward and swore positively that they saw him steal the goose; but the learned counsel for the defense was not to be outdone, so he brought forward sixty witnesses who swore just as positively that they didn't see him steal the goose; and, the number of witnesses being in his favor, he got clear! This seems to be the line of defence adopted by Mr. Marcy's friends, but it won't convince any one about here. And that the persons named by the Times have really asserted what is attributed to them we have no proof whatever,—for one statement which that paper published concerning one of them has been proved to be false by the card of the gentleman whose name was wrongfully used; and the following communication, which is from one of our most prominent citizens, but which we had not proposed to use until we saw the paragraph in the Times, shows that Mr. John S. Treat is not competent to "deny that any other subject than temperance was mentioned," for the simple reason that he was not all the time present:

Editors Chronicle; I have been watching with considerable curiosity the controversy about Capt. Daniel Marcy in your columns, and now that the forgery of A. W. Haven's signature has been exposed will add a little testimony showing that the remark attributed to Mr. Marcy might have been made a hundred times out of the hearing of Mr. John S. Treat. I noticed the party referred to in the CHRONICLE conversing at the corner of Daniel and Market streets for about fifteen minutes, but was not near enough to hear the conversation. Mr. Treat was present about one-third of the time only, evidently waiting for one or more of the parties engaged in conversation. He walked away several times, went down Daniel street to Mr. Sanborn's store, went into Mr. Briant's and afterward took a friend by the arm and walked down Market street. So Mr. Treat's denial of what occurred is as useless as the unauthorized signature of Mr. Haven.

A LOOKER ON.

Three issues of the local democratic daily have been published since the "charge" was made, yet the only refutation so far attempted has been to tell what somebody did not hear; it was not so when we published the affidavit of Mr. Edward B. Stover, to the effect that he had been discharged by Capt. Marcy because he refused to vote for Frank Jones,—then Capt. Marcy himself responded without delay. Why has he not done so in this case? Possibly he doesn't think the matter of any importance; possibly he doesn't care to find out our authority for the statement,—but if he does he can find it out much more easily by adopting our suggestion of Saturday morning that he deny the truth of the statement over his own signature, than by getting a dozen statements from others that they did not hear him say what was attributed to him.

Jottings.

Judge Page on Monday bound William Quinn over in the sum of $500, for attempting to rob Ida Griswold. Two men named Berry were fined $5 and costs, amounting to $11.90 each, for mutual assault. Eleanor Andrews, drunk, $9.90.

The Times says three of the Northampton bank robbers, after "going through" that institution, are known to have come to this city. They stopped a night and a day at one of our hotels, and from here went eastward. The authorities were notified by Chief of Police Savage of Boston, but too late.

We have received from the publishers, Messrs. Lee & Shepard, "A Romance of Perfume Lands, or the Search for Captain Jacob Cole, with interesting facts about Perfumes and Toilet Articles. By Clifford, Perfumer, (F. S. C.)" An interesting book of travels through the principal countries producing perfumes, for the purpose of collecting and examining in their natural state, all the vegetable and animal productions used in the manufacture of perfumery and toilet articles, interlarded with romantic incidents, making it at once a most valuable and entertaining book. Every one interested in the art of perfumery, either for amusement or profit, should possess one of these valuable adjuncts to an art, which delights our senses, without causing any deleterious effects, and is an accessory, not only to refinement and beauty, but also to health. The book contains three hundred and thirty-two pages, and is illustrated with thirty-three full-page engravings, depicting the characters and adventures in the narrative, besides being richly bound, making it a fine acquisition to any library. Price $3; sent by mail, prepaid, to any part of the United States or Provinces, or can be obtained of any bookseller, or of Clifford & Co., Perfumers, 23 School Street, Boston.

After April 1st there will be three prices for boxes at the Post-office, viz: $1.60, $2, and $4 per year. Holders of old lock boxes will please return their keys.

A democratic friend assures us that the democrats do not feel annoyed by the extracts from Daniel Marcy's speech which we keep at the head of one of our columns—in fact, that they are rather pleased to have us keep them there. Well, the republicans are rather pleased with it, too, and it pleases us also, so we guess we'll keep 'em there a while longer. It isn't often a political paper can please everybody.

John Treats no more!

At the Catholic fair in Manchester Daniel Marcy was voted a gold-headed cane as the most popular candidate for governor, receiving 2540 votes to 2120 for Mr. Cheney. The Times thereupon says: "Straws show which way the wind blows." That "straw" doesn't indicate much of a gale in Marcy's favor, anyway,—the only wonder is that Mr. Cheney received any votes at all in a Catholic fair.

News and Notes.

Rubenstein will hang March 24th for the murder of Sara Alexander in New York.

By an explosion in the Exeter coal mine at West Pittston, Pa., Saturday afternoon, four men were killed and six or eight wounded.

The steamship City of Galveston, Cape Haytien for New York, went ashore on the night of the 5th inst., on Mayaguana Island, West Indies, and, it is supposed, bilged. A heavy sea was running at the time. The vessel was coffee laden, and carried thirty passengers. She will probably prove a total loss. No lives lost.

The democratic daily paper at Washington says of Hambleton: "Occupying a representative position, as he does, his retention would cost the democratic party half a million votes. Just such things as this would turn a national election."

Miss Dora Wiley has resigned her position as soprano of the Boston English Opera Company. She will confine herself to church and concert singing hereafter.

The Minnesota House of Representatives has passed, by a vote of seventy-eight to twenty-eight, a bill to allow women to vote on all questions pertaining to the public schools.

The House committee on naval affairs is working away on the department business, and apparently accomplishing very little. Its chairman is a Tennessean, who has no fitness for the task. The committee has divided itself into a number of sub-committees. Each member is on two or three sub-committees, and the result is that each member is conducting an investigation by himself. So of other committees. But bye and bye the time will come for some searching inquiries into the army, the navy and the interior departments, and then we shall have, doubtless, some special committees, whose chairmen will be members who know how to conduct an investigation.

The National republican convention will consist of 754 delegates. The Southern States will send 264 delegates.

The Boston Herald says: A man named Thomas Cahill was recently murdered in Phillipston, Kings County, Ireland. The name brings up remembrance of the murder of Bridget Landregan, and it is probable that the murdered man is the same who was brought from Ireland to this country charged with that crime, but after being held in jail for six months was discharged without a trial.

A colored citizen of Boston named Charles Devine, a boot-black, was killed by being stabbed in the head with an oyster knife, early Sunday morning. He was thirty-two years old. John Riley, a boy of nineteen, has been arrested on suspicion of being the murderer.

"There's Tarbox," said a democratic member of the Massachusetts legislature, when he held a seat in the popular branch; "no one can tell what he will do next. He paddles his own canoe, which is all very well, but Lord help the party to which he belongs, for he generally sails out to attack the enemy before the fleet is ready to weigh anchor. The result is that he is gobbled up or squelched." His recent sally at Washington reminded us of the criticism of his political confrere.

The deposition of President Grant in behalf of Babcock was publicly taken at the White House Saturday. There were present besides the President, the Chief Justice of the United States, Secretary Bristow, Attorney General Pierrepoint, Major Eaton, of the counsel for the Government, Mr. W. A. Cook, of the counsel for Gen. Babcock, and two stenographers. It goes to St. Louis under seal. The examination was of considerable duration, beginning at eleven o'clock, and terminating at two o'clock in the afternoon. It is said to have been very thorough and was characterized by the straightforwardness which marks the President's utterances. The oath was administered by the Chief Justice, and the examination developed facts that Babcock had not influenced the Executive in selecting any official involved in the so-called whiskey ring; that he had not interfered in any manner to cause the suspension of the celebrated order for the transfer of Supervisors, but that its revocation was directed by the President himself in order that, suspicion being removed from the minds of those engaged in the frauds, they might the more readily be detected in their efforts to cheat the government out of the revenue on distilled spirits; that the President still has implicit confidence in the integrity of Babcock, and is satisfied with his explanation of the dispatches which have formed so important an element in his prosecution. The cross-examination elicited nothing of importance whatever. Its object seemed to have been more directed against the President than Babcock. It, however, developed the fact that if there had been anything wrong on the part of that officer, which the President emphatically stated he did not believe, it was entirely without the knowledge of the Executive. The President stated that during the twenty years Babcock had been intimately associated with him, he had not learned anything calculated to impair his confidence in his integrity. The testimony, as a whole is declared to be strongly in favor of Babcock's honesty.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times, referring to Mr. Blaine's speech on the finances, says: "Of course, everything which Mr. Blaine does is discussed with reference to the Presidential nomination, and the Eastern hard money men all consider that the speech has improved his chances for the nomination. There are a few men from the West, however, who, following the prejudices of their sections, think that this speech has done him harm."

One acre of budded orange trees in five years will yield a clear income of from one to three thousand dollars per annum; so will the lemon, pine apple and banana. An orange budded tree will bear in two years from the bud, and will reach perfection in seven; so with the lemon. The banana will bear in fourteen months from setting out; the pine apple in less time. Vegetation hardly ever dies in Sumpter county. Tomato vines will bear two years; so will beans. The planter never digs sweet potatoes only as he wants them; the vines do not die. Cane comes for years from the rattoon.—Palatka (Fla.) Herald.

The committee of the Mississippi legislature appointed to investigate the charges against Lieutenant Governor Davis have reported him guilty of accepting a bribe of $600 for the pardon of Darrenline, the murderer, and recommend his impeachment.

Ben. Harrison declines the republican nomination for Governor of Indiana and the choice of the convention will probably be Godlove S. Orth or the present Lieutenant-Governor, Leonidas Sexton.

The Worcester (Mass.) Palladium, forty-two years old, has suspended publication.

—Two apple women were in trade; one was selling apples two for one cent, the other three for one cent. One went off and loft the other to sell from both stands. She gave five for two cents. When the business was figured up, a result like this was reached:

30 apples, 3 for 1 cent	10
60 apples, 5 for 2 cents	25

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in bulk demand at the public libraries are "rapid and sensational." He thinks that parents ought to furnish children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "A worse literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or the hand to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have excites, stimulates and debases the intellect, unfits it for healthy food, fills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most under control. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can nowhere be so effectually poisoned as at its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by curious and eager children, must influence to a large extent the tone of thought and life of the million of those whose plastic minds come under their influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in the above to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all editors were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS), there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says:"in

THE AVALANCHE OF IMMORAL LITERATURE

That threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome and really attractive magazine is required for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in pen and pictures, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

Rev. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in an article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE FOR GIRLS and BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more trustworthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

In order to place this magazine within the reach of all, the publishers offer to send the 14 numbers (Nov., '75, to Dec., '76) for $5.00.

Or, for $5.00, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75, the full price of which is $7.00. Or for $8.00 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00.

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the cheapest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,500 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have five splendid series, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc., more than equal in contents to 20 volumes of ordinary children's books of 6,000 book pages costing $30.00!!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty-five Cents.

Daily Chronicle.

—"Young ladies have the privilege of saying anything they please during the leap-year," she said, eyeing him out of the corner of her eyes with a very sweet look.

His heart gave a great bound, and while he wondered if she was going to ask the question which he had so long desired and feared to do, he answered, "Yes."

"And the young men must not refuse," said she.

"No, No! How could they?" sighed he.

"Well, then," said she, "will you——"

"He fell on his knees and said: "Anything, anything you ask, darling."

"Wait till I get through. Will you take a walk, and not hang around our house so much?"

And he walked.—Oil City Derrick.

—One of the strong-minded in Washington interviewed Colonel Lamar, of Mississippi, recently, saying she believed the women of the South coveted the ballot.

"Possibly," said Mr. Lamar; "but do you know what you want far more than any franchise? You want a husband and a baby!"

The woman looked down thoughtfully, and murmured, half to herself, "I wonder if that will ever happen?"

"There!" said Mr. Lamar, "when you said that you looked sweeter than you ever did before in your life!"

Pimples, Eruptions, Rough Skin.

The system being put under the influence of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for a few weeks, the skin becomes smooth, clear, soft, and velvety, and being illuminated with the glow of perfect health from within, true beauty stands forth in all its glory. The effects of all medicines which operate upon the system through the medium of the blood are necessarily somewhat slow, no matter how good the remedy employed. While one to three bottles clear the skin of pimples, blotches, eruptions, yellow spots, comedones, or "grubs," a dozen may possibly be required to cure some cases where the system is rotten with scrofulous or virulent blood poisons. The cure of all these diseases, however, from the common pimple to the worst scrofula is, with the use of this most potent agent, only a matter of time. Sold by dealers in medicines.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package secured enough for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was strongly recommended to try your Pills, and used a few of them. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report no sign of disease. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to many others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.50 for three packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills and they have done more wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything but nobody did good. I took your Pills nearly three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials mention they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this place find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the past twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, constipated bowels and back and hips, rendering me unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have been advised to try your pills, a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day in my previous period to read in the Con. gregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as any man. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the kidneys, and I strongly recommended her to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them; I think they must be a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.50; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roxbury, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.50 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, greatly stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lazy, trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the War. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of the arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which promise to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration with a new draw-log a close. The course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE feels confident that it will proceed to fill the present performance, as constituting its claim for the support of all old patrons, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can depend for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are rallied under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of any party organization, and will approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. It is going to continue to search and record the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country knows and can trust; to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard money triumph won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as soon as they were duly organized it took up the battle of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equally decisive and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties have been forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may safely be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within or during years gained greatly from the parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this and with the methods which have already commended it to intelligent families, THE TRIBUNE will endeavor to merit a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by friendly critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has seen this position by the closest watchfulness and the most unwearied care to secure the fullest, freshest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

A STRANGE MEETING.

The following is furnished to the Rochester Express by a correspondent who signs himself "Gilgal:"

What strange events happen; what wonderful coincidences spring into being along the pathway of life of some persons! I have just learned of an eventful meeting between two soldiers of the rebellion, which I will give the readers of the Express:

Among the various regiments recruited in Central New York during the late war was the One Hundred and Sixtieth, which was sent to the Department of the Gulf, and attached to the army under the command of General Banks. This regiment took an active part in the operations against Port Hudson, and was one of the first to enter that place at the time of its surrender, July 9, 1863. It was one of the regiments of Wetzel's Brigade, and the following year took part in an expedition to Sabine Pass, between Louisiana and Texas, where a large amount of Confederate stores were destroyed. One of the companies of the One Hundred and Sixtieth was raised in Palmyra, New York, and among its members was Mr. O. S. Stevens, who served its full time, was discharged at its disbandment and wenjinto business at Palmyra.

A few days since Mr. Stevens had occasion to go to Hartford, Connecticut, and left home on the 5½ M. train on the Central railroad. After becoming well settled in one of the sleeping-cars, he discovered a tall, sandy complexioned man in the opposite section, who, though a perfect stranger, had a large Roman nose which Stevens thought he had seen before, but failing to recall any remembrance of such a face, he gave no attention to it until the train reached Syracuse, when a long arm reached across the aisle, and a brawny hand touched him on the shoulder, the stranger at the same time asking if they stopped there for supper. To this Stevens answered in the affirmative, telling him that if he would go along, he would show him where to get a good lunch. At that they passed out together, and after supper the stranger offered Stevens a cigar, and they went into the smoking-car, where the following conversation ensued:

"Well, stranger, I reckon you live somewhere in these parts?"

"Yes, sir, I live in Palmyra," said Stevens.

"And I live way down in Texas; I was what you used to call a 'Johnny reb' during the war."

"Ah, what part of the South did you serve in?" asked Stevens.

Thrusting his long legs under the seat in front and turning part way around, he said:

"I was at Port Hudson until your army nearly starved us out and we had to surrender. After I was exchanged I was a Texas ranger, and finally got reconstructed."

"And you were a prisoner at Port Hudson? Do you remember seeing the One Hundred and Sixtieth New York Volunteers there?" said Stevens.

"I think I do," said the Texan; "and, if I'm not mistaken that was the very regiment our boys first met."

"And do you remember trading canteens with one of them?"

"Yes, and I got a tin canteen with the initials O. S. S. on it."

"And I got a wooden one with J. T. P. on it," said Stevens.

"That was mine," said the Texan; "my name is John T. Pond. By George! we have drank from the same canteen, my old friend, give me your hand for life," and he gave a tremendous squeeze on Stevens' hand, which fairly brought the tears to his eyes.

If the conversation had been lively before it was doubly so then, Mr. Pond going into a full detail of his history before and after the war. He had left Connecticut twenty-two years ago, had settled at Sabine Pass, and was a part owner of a large mill, which Stevens' command had destroyed the year following the surrender of Port Hudson. He was now on his way to New Haven to visit a sister he had not seen in all these years. He said that he returned to Sabine after the war, rebuilt the mill, was successful, and now had secured a competence that enabled him once more to visit his friends at the North. Stevens gave him an accurate account of the destruction of his mill, the first he had ever obtained, and the two sat up and conversed throughout the entire night, while the sleeping car conductor wondered why they did not return to occupy their berths. The next morning they parted at Hartford, and though their first meeting had been as enemies, they bid each other good by with many regrets, such as the best friends only know.

A THIN MEAL.

He had tried in vain to procure a square meal, but his every word and action bore such unmistakable evidence of the professional tramp, that even his most artistic efforts and wily ways had this time failed him. He turned into the avenue off Tenth Street, where he had a few moments before disdainfully refused to shovel in a load of coal for his dinner, was just blessing the Washington people in general, and had about concluded to go South again, when his eyes caught the beautifully laid window of a dining saloon. He stopped and involuntarily cleared his throat. He gazed wistfully for a few moments, and then seemed lost in thought.

His face wore a puzzled expression for a short time, and then a happy thought seemed to strike him. Muttering something about "it's only a fashion anyway," he moved up to the window. Placing the bundle in front of him, on the window rail, he proceeded as in preparation for partaking of a meal. "Waiter," he begun, "haven't you forgotten something?" "Yes, a napkin, please;" "that's it, thank you." "Yes, small piece, rare; see that it's rare James." "Just a few scollops. Oh no, no, James, not coffee; chocolate, by all means, chocolate." "Well, is it good? Old? Sparkling? Quite certain? One bottle, then, James; lively!" Here he leaned back against the rail a moment, as if in waiting, and reaching down in his pants' pocket produced a "Barlow knife;" opening it he came up straight again and exclaimed, "Ah, that's nice, decidedly nice, James; I'll recommend you to my friends." Then reaching forward, he took an imaginary piece of "porterhouse" from the window-sill and deposited it upon the bundle. Diving into several other invisible dishes, he proceeded to devour things generally. "Capers on that chop are fine, James; decidedly fine." "Just open that bottle." "Ah, that's it." Here he stopped a moment and seemed to be trying something on his tongue. "James! oh, James!" he called, "take out that steak; the butter it was fried in was bad, James; decidedly bad!" Here he relapsed into silence, and seemed to be entirely occupied with his dinner. Finally he leaned back, drew the sleeve of his coat across his mouth, and exclaimed: "Taking it all in all, 'twas a pretty good meal, and I feel better." Then, taking up his bundle, he trudged into an alley, found an empty dry-goods box, he turned in and slept soundly until waked up by a policeman.—Washington Chronicle.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

To The Survivors of Rebel Prison Pens.

Jefferson Davis, in a letter dated New Orleans, Louisiana, January 29, 1876, and addressed to Hon. James Lyons, Petersburg, Virginia, makes a defiant denial of the arraignment made by Hon. James G. Blaine, of Maine, and Gen. James A. Garfield of Ohio, of his direct and personal responsibility for the cruel treatment of the Union soldiers who were prisoners of war to the Confederacy of which Mr. Davis was President. He goes further, and, like Mr. Benjamin H. Hill, Representative in the Forty-fourth Congress, from Georgia, who was also a member of the Confederate States Senate, from the same State, the rebel ex-President denies altogether that unnecessary suffering ensued among, or unjustifiable harshness or cruelty was practiced against, those of our soldiers who were so unfortunate as to be prisoners within the pens at Andersonville, Florence, Salisbury, Belle Isle, and Tyler, or in the tobacco warehouses of Libby and Castle Thunder. The denial is a bold and sweeping one. Its audacity rises to sublimity. It not only denies but accuses. The Union is assailed as having, through its officials and policy, treated the Confederate prisoners in its hands as bad or worse than our men were used at Andersonville, Belle Isle and elsewhere. It is also charged with causing the sufferings of the latter by the policy it pursued of refusing to exchange.

Now, as to one part of Mr. Jefferson Davis' denial and counter accusation, there is a direct unassailable method of obtaining evidence. The survivors of rebel prison pens still remain among us. Those of Andersonville formed an association which is still in existence. We call upon every man who was captured and confined by the Confederates during the civil war for slavery and disunion to at once give to the public a brief and direct account of his personal experiences. Let each man write to the nearest republican paper a simple statement of his name, regiment, rank, date of capture, length of confinement, when exchanged, the treatment he himself received as to food, shelter, medical care, &c., as well as to the action of those in charge. Avoid all rhetoric, denounce no one, give as far as practicable the names of Confederates officers, &c., in command; also, any special instances as to others known to the survivors, the details of which are readily substantiable.

With regard to the treatment of rebel prisoners in the northern entrepots, there is as direct a method of obtaining reliable testimony. Officers who were in command of such prisons are still living, as are also soldiers who were stationed thereat. Their evidence will be of value. In every place where such prisons existed local sanitary and Christian associations existed, the members of which busied themselves in caring for the sick and wounded, and in visiting the prisons and camps. Reputable citizens at Elmira, Rock Island, Chicago, Columbus, and elsewhere know the facts. Let them give their testimony. The honor of one's country should be sacred. You who fought for liberty and union surely have as vital an interest in that honor as the men who compelled you to fight by their mad attempt to perpetuate slavery and destroy the Union. Let us have the facts.

Bear in mind that the object of such communications is not partisan but historical. Two civilizations or systems of government have been and still are on trial. This question of Andersonville and its attendant horrors belong to the trial. The case has been reopened, and the verdict once solemnly rendered is now challenged. A cloud of witnesses are still living. Let them give the facts. Communications can also be sent to the office of The Republic, Washington, D. C., if writers do not desire to send to their county or other journals. Let every man respond, and at once. The good name of the Union is sought to be assailed, and a feculent treason seeks historical vindication by these audacious falsehoods.

Laconia.

The editor of the Democrat, smarting under the overthrow of the democratic power in Laconia last year, and galled to the quick, doubtless, by his knowledge that his party is destined to get a worse whipping this, indulges his inalienable right to "slop over" and scold. His complaint is comprised in the following extract:

Having no town hall, or other really convenient place in which to hold our town meetings, they have, for several years past, been held in Folsom Hall, a good enough place for them, provided other portions of the building in which the hall is, are not put to improper uses. But at the last town meeting rooms adjoining the hall were permitted by the owner to be converted to purposes that were unjust, improper and disgraceful. The owner of the hall and building, being a republican, allowed reckless, unscrupulous, unprincipled men of his party, men who cared more for party than for any question of morals or temperance, to have control of certain rooms, where rum was kept, into which drunken men were taken, or where men were got drunk, and being drunk, were surrounded by body guards of roughs and taken to the ballot box to vote, or in case they could not, even when drunk, be induced to vote the republican ticket, were either kept there by force, or get to drunk to vote at all.

Persons who have any acquaintance with the circumstances of the exciting town meeting last year need not be told that the above charges are false to the core. The republicans of Laconia took wise precautions last year—as we trust they will this—to protect men who desired to vote the republican ticket from the tricks and machinations which, ever since our acquaintance here, and we know not how much longer, have entered largely into democratic campaign tactics. But few of our people of either party need be told what these are. The grog-shops of Laconia have been exclusively in democratic hands, and all the corrupt influences which rum could work have been unsparingly applied to assist the democracy. This very Spring, it being announced that a French republican had opened a saloon, a rival declared with a royal oath that "There never had been a republican saloon in Laconia, and there never should be!" This tremendous influence of corruption has been freely used by the democracy year after year. For days and weeks even before town meeting men have been systematically filled with free liquor that they might be kept in a condition which should insure their democracy. Republicans have been taken in tow, plied with liquor by men who claim to be good citizens, and even church members, and then "ran off," or incapacitated from going to town meeting. To such an extent was this carried that one grog-shop attained the high distinction of being currently known as "The Dead House." We do not remember that the Laconia Democrat has ever uttered one word against those notorious outrages. But now, galled by defeat brought about in a measure by a frustration of these tactics, it howls lustily over the conduct of the republican room in Folsom Block last town meeting day. That room was an open one. Democrats as well as republicans visited it at will. Friend Vaughan, editor of the Democrat, we are informed, was himself one of the visitors. No man remained there except voluntarily, and we have no doubt that many went from town meeting with the proud consciousness that they had won a good fight, fulfilling their duties as citizens soberly and in their right minds, instead of being victims of the democratic roughs who were lying in wait to "spoil their votes" by getting them beastly drunk. A more quiet, orderly set of voters than those men who kept out of the democratic snare, was not seen that election day; and when the Democrat asserts that any "were either kept there by force, or got too drunk to vote at all," it states an unqualified, unmitigated falsehood, and if it will induce the democratic grog-shops of Laconia to keep their habitues as sober and orderly as were those who frequented the republican room in Folsom Hall, the next town meeting will be the most respectable ever held in Laconia.—Lake Village Times.

Winslow's Family.

It appears that Ezra D. Winslow "came honestly" by his dishonesty. He comes of a family of dissolute characters and lawbreakers who were well known years ago in and around Barre. Thomas Winslow was repeatedly arrested for counterfeiting and at last a box of bad bills was found in his cellar. His brother, Mark, was one of the most noted counterfeiters in the State, and ended his life by suicide rather than serve out a sentence of twelve years. Edward, another brother, followed the same trade and spent about half his life in jail. Lucretia, a sister, was in the gang and signed the bills. Afterwards removing to Pennsylvania, she became the reputed wife of a man who was presently hanged for murder, and had herself a narrow escape from conviction as an accomplice. Still later, she joined a strolling theatrical company, and died at the South. She was a person of talent and winning manners but of no principle. Two other sisters of the Winslows married well-known counterfeiters. This family history accounts both for the cleverness and the crimes of the Boston forger. He had inherited a taste for deception and for getting money dishonestly earned. It opens an interesting line of thought as to how far a man with such a lineage is responsible for his crimes and how much should be laid at the door of the first of his ancestors who went astray. We need hardly say, however, that any such philosophical speculations will not greatly benefit Winslow, if he is ever brought back to Boston.—Worcester Gazette.

His Lodge.

It got so at last, says the Detroit Free Press, that his wife began to wonder what business "the lodge" had on hand that it should meet four or five times per week. He was out four nights a week until eleven o'clock, and he came home with redness in his eyes, and his step was unsteady as he passed down the hall. He said "the lodge" business was mighty hard on the muscles, and that candidates were coming in by the hundreds. One night he groaned out in his sleep, and talked of "the right bower," and yelled out "spades!" and the wife wondered still more. The other evening she took a position where she could see who went up stairs into the lodge rooms. Her husband passed by and entered a place where rows of bottles adorn the shelves, and coffee and spice stand in a saucer on the counter to purify breath. When she went in he was one of four at a table. Each one of the four was looking at the pictures on some cards held in his hand.

"So this is the lodge, is it?" she inquired, as she stood before him.

He was caught and he resolved to make a clean breast of it. He laid his cards down, rose up and gave her his arm and said:

"I won't lie to you, Mary. This is not the lodge room, this is where we stop for a minute to beat the blasted enemies of our craft out of their surplus greenbacks! When I come to-night, Mary, I'll bring that shawl you spoke of."

The regularity with which that man now hangs around home every evening in the week is astonishing.

Theodore Thomas stopped his orchestra in the midst of a selection at a concert in Waterbury, Conn., last week, and remarked to the audience, "We should be much obliged if you would not keep time."

The Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs has sent a memorandum to the Spanish representatives abroad, instructing them to read it to the Foreign Ministers, and leave a copy, if requested. The memorandum, after pointing out that the Cuban insurrection is no longer led by natives of the island, but by foreign adventurers, continues: "Negroes, mulattoes, Chinese and deserters form the bulk of the insurgent forces, their army contains scarcely 800 white Cubans, while more than 40,000 of the latter are serving with the royal volunteers. Spain cannot come to any terms with such elements. She can only, after having obtained a complete victory, grant to Cuba all liberties which, but for the insurrection she would already possess, and which the neighboring island of Porto Rico, where slavery has been entirely abolished, fully enjoys. Reinforcements numbering 28,000 men have been despatched to Cuba within twelve months. The duration of the insurrection is in consequence of the difficulties of the country. Notwithstanding the insurrection the trade of Cuba has doubled during ten years. The more fertile parts of the island are untouched by the insurrection, and only a few districts have suffered from it. All foreigners sustaining losses will be indemnified, and the embargo on foreign goods be raised." The memorandum is considered as an indirect reply to the last note from the United States.

—A publication entitled "Secrets of the Sanctum" attempts to explain why some editors drink stimulating liquors. This secret is that "brain work" is so exhaustive that strong stimulants become necessary. As the best newspaper work is done by men who are either abstemious or temperate, and who do not recognize any such necessity, nothing could be more absurd than this author's explanation of the bad habits of a portion of the members of the press. Drunkenness is a savage vice, and does not belong to an advanced state of society, however much it may intrude itself. Fresh air and exercise are as good stimulants as the greatest "brain worker" need ask for. Mr. Greeley got on quite as well as any journalist of his time, and did as much work with his brain as any of his contemporaries. The quality of the work done by the average newspaper editor of the present day certainly does not give evidence of exhaustive effort. He is often but an egotistical and frothy braggart, who dares not venture an inch beyond the prejudices of his illiterate subscribers, and the idea that he needs extraordinary stimulants is simply laughable.

Amelioration and Cure.

Amelioration of the symptoms of a disease is, of course, one desirable object of medication, and there are, no doubt, palliatives which possess considerable remedial efficacy. The temporary disappearance of the indicia of a disease, is, too many instances, however, delude the sick into a belief that they are cured. Many of those who have borne grateful testimony to the permanent remedial effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, in cases of liver disorder, chronic constipation, intermittent and remittent fevers, urinary and rheumatic ailments, have also received the fact that the temporary relief occasionally afforded by the medicines which they tried before using the great restorative inspired hopes which were speedily dissipated by a return of the malady. The Bitters not only relieve, but if persistently and regularly taken, CURE the maladies to which they are adapted.

Some More.

We were called upon, Tuesday morning, by Mr. Drew, the temperance reformer, who assured us, for himself and Mr. Osgood, that neither of them heard Mr. Marcy make the remark attributed to him to the effect that a dollar a day is pay enough for a working man; that the temperance question was the sole subject of their conversation with him, and of his conversation at the time and place mentioned, so far as they know and believe; and that they are confident our informant is in error concerning this matter. This is conclusive, so far as Messrs. Drew and Osgood are concerned; as was the card of Alfred W. Haven, Esq., (the one published by us and signed by him—not the forged one published in the Times); we are satisfied neither of the gentlemen named heard the remark made.

The Times of Tuesday publishes a card from Mr. Drew, embodying the foregoing statement and attempts to explain why Capt. Marcy "has not denied the allegation of the CHRONICLE over his own signature," as we have repeatedly suggested he should do, by saying he has been out of the city for several days. Well, he was not "out of the city" the day the allegation was made, and he did not deny it then "over his own signature;" but instead Mr. Treat denied it over his signature and the forged signature of another. If Mr. Marcy did not say what was attributed to him, we are unable to see why he should have thought it necessary to send all over the State to see if others would deny that they heard him him say it before himself denying that he did say it; we did not communicate with any of the gentlemen we named before publishing the item, to see what they would say about it,—nor since; and it will require much more negative testimony than has yet come to hand to convince us that the positive evidence furnished us is not to be depended upon.

The New England Opera Troupe.

This organization, which is composed of some of our very best talent, are to present Balfe's charming opera, "The Bohemian Girl," at the Temple Saturday evening. The opera is to be given with an exceedingly strong cast, and a very attractive and enjoyable feature will be a finely drilled chorus. Most of the leading artists are already well known on the operatic stage, and most of them have had the advantage of study abroad. Miss Anna Starbird as Arline, Mrs. Jenny T. Kempton as Queen of the Gypsies, Mr. C. R. Hayden as Thaddeus, Mr. J. F. Rudolphsen as the Count, Mr. Stanley Felch as Devilshoof, Mr. F. G. Wiggin as Florestine, and Mrs. E. V. Rink as Buda, form a list of principals seldom combined. Miss Starbird and Mrs. Kempton have sung on the operatic stage in Italy, and the former was a member of the Kellogg company. Mr. Rudolphsen will be remembered as one of the old English opera favorites, and a very excellent vocalist. The troupe have met with unprecedented success, having never played to a small or unpaying house. Let this place not be the first to show a small audience. The Fall River News speaks of the New England Opera Troupe as follows: "The singing was unusually fine, and the choruses were given with proper energy and animation. The opera is one of the finest, and abounds with sweet, musical gems, that always are attractive to ears fond of melody. This company have a long list of engagements, and being fully launched on the wave of popularity, will undoubtedly find a warm reception among all music-loving communities."

Jottings.

The Portsmouth Artillery Company seem desirous of showing how competent they are to represent at the Centennial the revolutionary patriots of a hundred years ago, by fighting the revolution over again within their own ranks. On Monday evening Capt. Marvin placed Lieut. Urch and Orderly-Sergeant Payson under military arrest, and on Tuesday was himself complained of to the police authorities for keeping at the Company's arsenal a larger amount of powder than is allowed by law. Capt. Marvin appeared before Judge Page, Tuesday afternoon, when the case was continued to Thursday. There seems to be a good deal of antagonism in the organization, with the captain on one side and a large proportion of the command on the other; but what it is all about, or which party has right and military law on their side, we are not able to decide.

The Times announces that preparations are now being made for a union meeting of all the churches at the North church next Sunday afternoon for the benefit of the city mission. It is proposed to have a chorus with orchestra support of about six pieces to render Moody and Sankey hymns, Dr. E. B. Goodall acting as organist and leader. Addresses will be made by the several clergymen of the city, and during the exercises a collection will be taken for the benefit of the mission.

The best time made on our streets lately is said to have been shown by the horse driven by a prominent citizen on Tuesday, when an officer attempted to serve a summons on him,—though the horse's speed was very nearly equalled by that of the officer as he tore down cross streets to head off the team. It is rumored that the officer splashed the "slosh" all over the second story windows of houses on both sides of the streets he ran through.

We are informed that one practical result of the great temperance revival here has been to cause a very evident reduction in the receipts of some of the most largely patronized drinking saloons; and we should suppose the lesser ones would be affected in the same way and to a greater degree. Of course the renunciation of strong beverages, by so many persons heretofore accustomed to their use as have joined in the reform movement, must make a large decrease in the consumption of such fluids; and that a large number (if not all) of the signers of the reform club pledge are really abstainers is shown by the falling off in the saloon receipts. The interest increases with each meeting, and if but one-half of those who have joined and will yet join in the movement stick to their resolutions, a wonderful improvement will be assured in the moral and material condition of numerous families and individuals.

News and Notes.

During January the demand for postage stamps, postal cards and stamped envelopes reached the unprecedented amount of $3,500,000. The department has sold 90,000,000 postal cards since the 30th of June, 1875. The sales during the entire fiscal year which ended at that date were only 101,000,600. These figures are considered indicative of the rapid revival of business prosperity throughout the country.

Charles K. Landis, who was recently acquitted of the murder of Uri Carruth on the ground that he was insane, has been discharged from custody on the ground that he is insane no longer. That's the proper kind of insanity to have on hand,—to be too insane to be punished for crime but not insane enough to be confined in a lunatic asylum.

It is now positively asserted that Winslow is in Holland. He has not been arrested, but it is said an order has been issued to hand over to the American consul at Rotterdam all valuables found in Winslow's possession.

John Snell, a foreigner, died at Fabyan on Sunday from injuries received from a falling tree.

On Monday night a fire at Pittsfield burned out the Times and Prohibition Herald, and destroyed the post-office, telegraph office and Congregational church, and burned out the savings bank. Loss $40,000; insured.

A dispatch from London, Tuesday, announced the arrest of Winslow in that city. His family are in Rotterdam, and probably the next dispatch will be that nobody knows where he is. A later telegram confirms the arrest.

An Ohio correspondent says he admires Gen. Hayes, but thinks he does not fill the Presidential bill. He says, judging from the republican sentiment around him, the best course would be to take for a standard-bearer Bristow, and fly the legend "Death to all rings, eternal enmity to corruption, and reform forever." If Blaine would take the second place, a popular cry would be

"Bristow and Blaine, Kentucky and Maine."

Never in the history of the neighborhood, remarks the Butte (California) Record, has the outlook for a large harvest been so favorable as at present. The surrounding country is one vast grain field, and a jack rabbit can hide most anywhere in it. The faces of our farmers have lost the worried look worn so long. Business men are taking heart, and a feeling of coming prosperity pervades the entire community.

Inasmuch as a calamity similar to that at Cincinnati, is at least possible, in some of our places of public amusement, it may not be futile to give the statement, in short, of John Robinson, a veteran showman, who was in the Opera House, at the time of the panic. In the first place, children were employed to sell tickets, without regard to number; the regulations for admission were worthless, the house was jammed full of people. The same house had been emptied of an audience in three and a half minutes. Now, suppose there had been a fire; evidently the best thing one could have done would be to sit still until the people near the door had passed out; or in case of a panic to seek any other mode of exit than that toward which there was an insane rush. Let us go one step farther back. No person should enter any building where a large audience is to be gathered, if such building has not sufficient mode of exit, even in case of a panic. Of course no building will be so constructed that foolish persons may not run over each other to their damage, but those which are intended for large audiences should be so built that a cool and able-bodied man or woman could get out in some way, under the most adverse circumstances, in five minutes. A theatre does not burn down, nor does it become filled with smoke in that time. Clearly the calculation requisite for safety in an emergency of this sort must be made beforehand. The safest mode of reasoning and action would be to keep away from crowds.—Prov. Jour.

The second trial of Sawyer for the murder of Mrs. Emerson commenced at Plymouth on Monday. Attorney-General Lewis W. Clark and County Solicitor Geo. F. Putnam appear in behalf of the State, and Col. John H. George, Hon. Harry Bingham, C. A. Dole and F. O. Morrill for defendant.

On Saturday night a colored woman escaped from two men who were going to drown her from the St. Louis bridge. She had discovered proofs that the ruffians, named Wilson and Holland, were the robbers of the express car on the St. Louis, Kansas City & Northern Railroad some six weeks ago; and learning of her discovery they determined to kill her. She was chloroformed and gagged, kept in confinement all day, and in the evening was dressed in men's clothes, bound and gagged, and placed in a buggy. After passing the toll-gate she screamed for help, the gag having got loose, and the ruffians threw her out of the carriage and drove across the bridge with all speed. At the other end they were stopped for fast driving, by an officer, but jumped from the carriage and escaped. In the buggy was found a bottle which had contained chloroform, a trace-chain, a sledge-hammer and a car coupling-link, which were no doubt intended to be used to sink the woman after throwing her into the river. Holland was formerly a railroad conductor, but the colored woman did not know who Wilson was.

In the United States Circuit Court in New York, Judge Wallace ruled that an express company's receipt, containing a clause limiting its liabilities to fifty dollars unless the value of the package was stated by the shipper, was a binding contract, and no larger sum could be recovered, even though larger loss had been occasioned by the negligence of the defendant express company.

At New Orleans, two crooles had a hostile meeting on Friday with swords; both were wounded, but not seriously. On Saturday, two more creoles met on the "field of honor" to fight with rifles at forty paces, and after the first fire, neither being hit, the seconds interfered and succeeded in adjusting the affair. The next hostile meeting on the tapis will be between the editor of the N. O. Times, and a democratic member of the house. Matters in this case have progressed so far that the meeting has been arranged. Rifles have been chosen as the weapons. The difficulty in this case originated in a publication in the Times.

The steamer City of Quincy sunk with 450 tons of sugar, Sunday night, at Harding's Point, on the Mississippi. No lives were lost. The cargo was valued at $250,000.

The German government has resolved to build new railroads, to give employment to the unemployed iron-workers and other mechanics.

Stocks at the New York Stock Exchange are fluctuating rapidly and generally advancing, and "puts and calls" have been in large demand. We understand that small sums of money can be invested advantageously by applying to John Hickling & Co., Bankers and Brokers, 72 Broadway, New York. Those wishing information should write to them.

The New York counsel for George Miles, who is now in Windsor, Vt., State Prison awaiting trial for the robbery of the Barre Bank, have applied to Judge Barrett for a writ to change the venue, alleging in their affidavits that public sentiment in Washington county, Vt., is so strong against him that a fair trial cannot be had there. They propose to prove an alibi, and ask to have the trial held in Bennington county. Judge Barrett withholds his decision until the 22d.

The Ogdensburg Railroad Corporation held a meeting at Portland, Monday, but adjourned to the 26th without action. The road has not failed to pay its coupons, as reported, but in consequence of the necessity of making a connection with the Vermont division have pledged their earnings to a large amount, and asked the city to take care of the coupons upon their own city scrip issued in aid of the railroad. All of the coupons on the bonds sold by the company will be promptly met.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in brisk demand at the public libraries are "trash and worse." He thinks that parents ought to guide the children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "A worse literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or his hand to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have excites, stimulates and dulls sees the intellect, unfits it for healthy food, fills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most under control. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can no more be so deeply and widely poisoned as at its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by curious and eager children, must influence to a large extent the tone of thought and the drift of action of those whose plastic minds come under their influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in the above to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all editors were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS), there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says: "In

That threatens the children, none strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in arts and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

REV. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in an article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE FOR GIRLS AND BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more trustworthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

In order to place this magazine within the reach of all, the publishers offer to send the six numbers (Nov., '75, to Dec., '76) for $3.00.

Or, for $5.00, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75, the full price of which is $7.00. Or for $3.00 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00.

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the handsomest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,500 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have five splendid serials, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc.; more than equal in contents to 20 volumes of ordinary children's books of 6,000 book pages costing $30.00!!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty-five Cents.

Daily Chronicle.

—The "creeping" of railroad rails has attracted some attention of late, and, while we do not attempt to explain it, we offer a point on the fact that, on lines running north and south, the western rail "creeps" faster than the eastern rail—that is, this strange movement of the rail toward the south is more marked in one than in the other on the same track. Furthermore, it has been noticed that on such a line the eastern rail wears out the fastest. Both of these points, we think, can be explained by the motion of the earth, as it turns from the west toward the east. Everything that has free motion is dragged after the whirling globe; every wind that blows and every tide that moves feel the influence, and our train going north or south is pulled over toward the east, and naturally presses the eastern rail most heavily. The western rail, being relieved of its share of the weight, "creeps" more freely and quickly. It is also noticed that the wheels that run on the eastern rail wear out the first, and we can but think that this earth motion is the true cause. The practical side of this is that the eastern rail and wheel should be stronger.—Scientific American.

—It is stated that a recent examination of a large number of boys, in city and country schools, in England, shows that the country boys average an inch and a quarter in height, and seven pounds more in weight, than the city boys.

Pimples, Eruptions, Rough Skin.

The system being put under the influence of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for a few weeks, the skin becomes smooth, clear, soft, and velvety, and being illuminated with the glow of perfect health from within, true beauty stands forth in all its glory. The effects of all medicines which operate upon the system through the medium of the blood are necessarily somewhat slow, no matter how good the remedy employed. While one to three bottles clear the skin of pimples, blotches, eruptions, yellow spots, comedones, or "grubs," a dozen may possibly be required to cure some cases where the system is rotten with scrofulous or virulent blood poisons. The cure of all these diseases, however, from the common pimple to the worst scrofula is, with the use of this most potent agent, only a matter of time. Sold by dealers in medicines.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrotula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package, upon coming back for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my last dollar to lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hope of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for three more packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir.—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have exceeded my orders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done me, and they do so, too. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried almost everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, caused by taking cold in the Spring, which rendered me so bad that I could not pick up any small article from the floor. I had the best of doctors, and spent large sums for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken half the Pills I was a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stand as well as other folks. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels and Constipation, and I shall try to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the most praise a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rowlesday, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Cordial he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the hurrying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the prevailing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

PULMOCINE.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it is proposed to try how the powers of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fail to place or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the next year marks the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the state schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

Amid such a teeming and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued support of all old friends, and for the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan or personal prejudice or by the state of mind.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the lead of men who it can never be the event of occasions or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to get honest men, whom the country knows and can trust, to secure hard money, administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it comes that THE TRIBUNE finds itself trying the fruits for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to carry up the banner of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its advocacy of thorough and all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One record of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties have found themselves forced to adopt some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to parade some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within some five years compelled both parties to tie up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already succeeded in a popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 its position as a journal of long age by the side of critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most liberal expenditure to procure the earliest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

DON'T.

Don't insult a poor man. His muscles may be well developed.

Don't fret. The world will move on as usual after you are gone.

Don't color meerschaums for a living. It is simply dy(e)ing by inches.

Don't say "I told you so." Two to one you never said a word about it.

Don't throw dirt in your teacher's eyes. It would injure the pupil.

Don't worry about the ice crop. Keep cool, and you will have enough.

Don't turn up your nose at light things. Think of bread and taxation.

Don't buy a coach to please your wife. Better make her a little sulky.

Don't write long obituaries. Save some of your kind words for those living.

Don't imagine that everything is weakening. Butter is strong in this market.

Don't publish your acts of charity. The Lord will keep the account straight.

Don't mourn over fancied grievances. Bide your time, and real sorrow will soon come.

Don't put on airs in your new clothes. Remember the tailor is suffering.

Don't be too sentimental. A dead heart properly cooked will only make a savory meal.

Don't ask your pastor to pray without notes. How else can he pay his provision bill?

Don't depend wholly on Spaulding's prepared glue. It will not mend broken promises.

Don't ask the Lord to keep your garments "unspotted." He isn't renovating old clothes.

Don't linger "where your love lies dreaming." Wake her up, and tell her to get the breakfast.

Don't stand and point the way to heaven. Spiritual guide boards save but few sinners.

Don't worry about another man's business. A little selfishness is sometimes commendable.

Don't attempt to punish all your enemies at once. You can't do a large business with a small capital.

Don't imagine that you can correct all the evils in the world. A grain of sand is not prominent in a desert.

—A stump speaker, in dealing with the "modern physical degeneracy of women," exclaimed: "We must take good care of our grandmothers, for we shall never get any more!" It is so with mothers also, as a Connecticut merchant was surprised to hear, recently. His pastor was visiting him and his wife, and, after warning her that she must take better care of her health, he concluded thus: "Remember, my dear madam, your family. Your husband might replace you; but your children never could!"

—A Frenchman who had purchased a country seat was complaining of the want of birds in his garden. 'Set some traps,' replied an officer, 'and they'll come.' I was once in Africa, and there wasn't supposed to be a woman within two hundred miles. I hung a pair of earrings and a bracelet upon a tree, and the next morning I found two women under the branches.

—A certain parson, who is also a schoolteacher, handed a problem to his class in mathematics recently. The first boy took it, looked at it awhile, and said, "I pass." Second boy took it and said, "I turn it down." The third boy stared at it awhile and drawled out, "I can't make it." "Very good, boys," said the parson, "we will cut for a new deal." And the switch danced like lightning over the shoulders of those depraved young mathematicians.

—It is now generally believed that when Boss Tweed went up stairs to see if there was a robber in the house, he inadvertantly sat down upon a box of dynamite—because he is now being found all over the country. Norristown Herald.

—Chock Fu edits a Chinese newspaper in San Francisco. Add two I's to Fu's name, and you'll have the kind of men that edit too many English newspapers in the same city and elsewhere.—Norristown Herald.

—A female teacher in Maine recently attempted to chastise a boy, when he turned upon her and stabbed her with a gimlet. She has quit teaching since it has become such a bore to her.—Detroit News.

—"How much do you ask for that there velvet by the yard?" said Mrs. Rural at Stewart's. "That, madam," said the clerk, holding it up, "89, formerly sold at $14." "Thought so," said Mrs. Rural; "now, where's them 18 cent calicoes I seed advertised in the papers?"

—When a sad-browed stranger attends a Red River dance and asks a belle for her hand, she replies, "No sir; I don't dance with anybody without an introduce. I know my little biz, and I don't go waltzing 'round with any slouch unless I know his name."

—A Frenchman who has lived in America for some years says: "When they build a railroad the first thing they do is to break ground. This is done with great ceremony. Then they break the stockholders. This is done without ceremony."

—"Put the whiskey matter inside," shouts the editor to the foreman. "Ain't that where I always put it?" replies the foreman.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who reware the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

The Parton Marriage.

The Massachusetts legislature having refused to change the marriage law of that State, to accommodate Mr. Parton, the happy couple went to New York and were there married over again. The provision which he unwittingly broke when when he married Miss Eldridge, is in these words: "No man shall marry his mother, grandmother, daughter, granddaughter, step-mother, sister, grandfather's wife, son's wife, grandson's wife, wife's mother, wife's grandmother, wife's daughter, wife's granddaughter, brother's daughter, sister's daughter, father's sister or mother's sister." The same chapter provides that in all the above cases in which the relationship is founded on marriage, as in the present instance, the prohibition shall continue notwithstanding the dissolution of such marriage by death or divorce; and section 6 declares that "when persons resident in Massachusetts, in order to evade the preceding provisions, and with an intention of returning to reside in Massachusetts, go into another State or country and there have their marriage solemnized, and afterwards return and reside in Massachusetts, the marriage shall be deemed void in Massachusetts." Under this latter section of course Mr. and Mrs. Parton can never safely or satisfactorily become residents of Massachusetts again, as the Massachusetts law declares them not man and wife. But many citizens regard this provision as absurd as the English law which forbids a man to wed a sister of a deceased wife. But for the serious side of the affair, it might well pass for a Partingtonion joke.

The Advisory Council.

The advisory council of the Congregational churches to take action on the questions arising in the Plymouth Church controversy, convened in Brooklyn on Tuesday. Rev. Dr. Bacon was elected moderator, with Gen. Bates of Illinois and Hon. Nelson Dingley of Maine as assistant moderator. Six questions are submitted for the council's consideration. The first and second refer solely to the discipline of the church; the third question inquires of the council what course the church ought to adopt concerning members who absent themselves. This question is divided into five specific classes, embracing various motives of absentees. The fourth question, is whether Plymouth Church ought to have a mutual or other council of churches for the purpose of investigating the character of its pastor when requested to do so by a member of the church who has never admitted any charges against the pastor, and when such request is made for the first time, more than one year after an investigation had been had by the church itself, and the pastor had been sustained by a unanimous vote. The fifth question is whether the course of Plymouth Church and the committee in the conduct of the negotiations between the church and Mrs. Moulton concerning the call proposed for a mutual council has been wise and just, or whether there has been any error on the part of the church therein, which it should correct. The sixth question is whether the church in the principles and rules which it has provided for the maintenance of order and the administration of discipline, or in any known cases of its administration under those principles and rules has gone beyond its right as a church of Christ, so as justly to forfeit its claim to the confidence and fellowship of the Congregational Churches.

—Haywood, a California bonanzaire, defends himself from his wife's application for a divorce, by saying: "Let her have it."

News and Notes.

The Maine House of Representatives has passed a bill to abolish the death penalty.

The New London Telegram announces that Packer, who robbed the Bank of Commerce, suffered an attack of hemorrhage of the lungs Sunday, and that he is in a very feeble and broken condition of body and mind. He is deeply penitent, and declares that in an hour after the larceny he would have given worlds to have had the money safely back to the place from which it was feloniously taken.

The Spanish-Carlists were badly defeated on the 13th.

Schooner John S. Presson was badly damaged in Gloucester harbor during the gale of the 14th, and schooners Citizen and Ceres went ashore on Pavillon beach. The former will probably be a total loss. Schooner Eastern Star went ashore in Providence harbor.

The marriage of Senator Christiancy to a young woman forty-two years his junior, has naturally revived the old gossip about the marriage of old Baron Bodisco, the Russian Minister, to Miss Williams of Georgetown, and of President Tyler to Miss Julia Gardner of New York. Both of the two last mentioned marriages were very happy matches, and the young employe of the Treasury who has been so devoted an attendant of an infirm mother will doubtless cheer the lonely life of the Senator from Michigan.

It is said that a former resident of Limington, Me., has lost the use of his hands, owing to the excessive use of cider.

The democrats have carried Texas. The Dutch would capture Holland, too, if they were to try it.

The house on the "John Dennis farm," in Hancock, owned by John Carlton of Goffstown, was burned on the night of the 3d. A family had moved into the house the afternoon before and lost all their goods. Mr. Carlton is said to have had $2000 worth of native wine which was made on the place, stored in the cellar, on which there was an insurance of $1000. There was also an insurance of $900 on the house.

Carl Schurz says in his last letter to his paper: "A spectacle of helplessness more melancholy than the democratic majority in the House of Representatives now offers can scarcely be found in the history of parties. What great things were prophesied when this party should get into its hands even a part of the power of Government! And now the possession of this power in the House of Representatives has only afforded a new opportunity for one moral overthrow after another, until the best heads of the party curse their victory in the year 1874, because it has only brought their impotence to light and inspired their antagonists with new vitality. And yet we see the machine managers busy at work, not to carry through the nomination of one of their best men for President, but that of some one who entirely represents the want of substance and principle in the party, in order that in this way they may keep the old concern somehow together."

Abiel Haselton of Wilton was seriously and perhaps fatally injured while loading furniture into a wagon recently. His hip was broken and internal injuries were received.

It was Speaker Kerr who recommended the appointment of little John Wilkes Booth Hambleton's father.

While Ami Spaulding of Canaan was chopping alone in the woods, Monday, 7th, he was struck by a falling tree, which broke one leg and arm and cut a bad gash in his head, tearing off a large piece of scalp.

Before the people at the last election the democrats promised retrenchment and reform. So far they have only given us an eulogy on Jeff. Davis and a defence of Andersonville.—Philadelphia Press.

The Pittsfield fire is supposed to have been started by an incendiary, as another fire was discovered in a barn during the continuance of the great conflagration. Corinthian Lodge of Free Masons lost all their jewels, working tools, etc., but saved their charter, which was at the house of one of the officers. The total loss foots up nearly $50,000.

The Laconia reform club has seven hundred members.

The "old elm" on Boston Common was blown down in the gale of Tuesday night. Chimneys and stagings were blown down in Boston, the Baptist church in Chelsea was damaged, and (so says the Globe) trees were uprooted in Salem by the wind. A dry-shed in course of construction in Providence was blown down, and the storm was very severe in Worcester, Bangor, and in the State of New York. Concord, N. H., had a thunder storm by way of variety.

Winslow, the forger, is said to have actually landed at Rotterdam from the steamer in which he and his family crossed the Atlantic, and leaving his family at Rotterdam went himself to London, where he was caught after being there but a day or two. He asserted that his party got away with only $6000 and that he intended to have gone to either Portugal or Brazil for a permanent residence. He demands to be returned to America immediately, and says most of the newspaper stories about him are false.

Brig T. M. Tinker arrived at Norfolk, Va., recently, and was hauled upon the ways for inspection, when a portion of the sword of a sword-fish was found imbedded in the hull forward of the luff of the bow and below the copper on the starboard side. An examination showed that it had pierced through the copper and heavy planking, and that it was the cause of the leak.

Jerry Derochet, the dead-beat who swindled his passage from Sherbrook, Canada, to Suncook, by shamming he was a cripple, was caught in Hooksett, and ordered to pay $14.15 fine and costs. He went to jail.

How a Granger Advertised.

The Bangor "Whig" tells the following good story in connection with the recent meeting of Grangers in that city: During the sessions of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, in this city, the place of meeting was filled with farmers, their wives and fair daughters and some young bachelor farmers, who, of course, were anxious that the fair damsels should know that they yearned for some one to make brighter the farmhouse for them, superintend the dairy and darn the stockings for their spouses. But just how to pass round this information to the young ladies wasn't known. Finally it came about in one instance in the following amusing manner: The roll was called, and those who brought their wives and daughters were asked to answer "Here and wife," or "Here, wife and daughter," as the case might be. A large number of names had been called and every one turned to see who answered, and each time the "Here" was followed by an addenda; but at last came a name we'll call John Smith, and the young ladies all turned their eyes to where a tall, angular young farmer sat. He turned red, stammered, coughed, and, finally recovering himself, answered, "Here and single," and after the session they made the young man unhappy by accusing him of advertising for a wife.

Angelina Economizes.

Edwin has a hankering after political economy and things of that sort, and makes Angelina's life a burden to her with lectures upon the tendency of the age to extravagance, the shrinkage of values, the necessity of taking speedy steps toward specie resumption, and the like. Thursday he said to her at the dinner table, stirring his tea meanwhile in a very profound manner, "Angelina, the only hope for the public benefit lies in private virtue. The great man, Henry Carey Baird, has calculated, and his estimates have been verified by that eminent statistician, Alexander Delmar, some of whose letters in the Inter-Ocean you may not have read, that if every one of the 8,000,000 families in the American Union would only skim the soap grease off of their dish water and invest its proceeds in a sinking fund at 4 per cent. compound interest, the proceeds in one hundred and sixty-nine years, two months and eleven days would pay the national debt. There is at present a shrinkage of values to which we must accommodate ourselves if we anticipate or desire a return to the only solid foundation of specie payments. Economize, my love," he said, taking another lump of sugar, "economize." Now Angelina has, as she says, got tired of being preached at, and for her part, can't see why she, etc. On Friday morning Edwin came down to breakfast and found Angelina presiding over the breakfast tray, smiling as to her eyes, frowning as to her forehead, and ambiguous as to her mouth. She passed Edwin a smoking cup of coffee. He took a drink thereof; his lower jaw fell like the tail-board of a coal cart, and the beverage streamed out of the corners of his mouth and upon his shirt-front. "Holy smoke, Angelina!" he at length ejaculated, "do you want to poison me? What's that?" "Oh!" rejoined Angelina, "I thought I'd begin to retrench at once, so I put its own weight of burned peas to the coffee. It saves half our bill, you see," she continued, "and you wouldn't know the difference, would you?" "But," said Edwin, "here's a shingle nail, and two chunks of sugar cane and a bit of hoop, and a fathom of petticoat binding, and a tea spoonful of alluvium at the bottom of my cup. And have you nothing but Muscovado sugar in the house? If I were running a house I'd never let my supply of loaf sugar run short." "Oh, yes," responded his spouse, "but I wanted to economize, so I got this. It only costs nine cents—the other is thirteen." Then she fed Edwin with round steak instead of porter-house, and comforted him with bran bread, which is much less expensive than white, and gave him some nice chrome yellow butter, encrusted with salt crystals, and when he came home at night answered the bell herself, with her skirt thrown over her head and patches of coal dust on her nose and cheeks, declaring that she had dispensed with the services of the servant girl, so as to save $4 a week. When Edwin went to bed at night he sank through a deceptive super-structure of straw mattress and printed impressions of bed slats upon himself from the calves of his legs to the nape of his neck. Then he rose up in his wrath and said that he wanted his house run decently if the nation was whelmed in a sea of bankruptcy, and that by the great horn spoon, if there wasn't coffee and loaf sugar for breakfast next day he'd know why.—Chicago Tribune.

—"Who," remarked the preacher, looking intently at the pew in which the editor of the Springfield Republican slept, "shall stop this flow of blood? Murders in New York, murders here at home, murders in New Hampshire. Who shall be the first man that a justly indignant people shall hang?" Then Samuel Bowles looked up and murmured "I nominate Charles Francis Adams," and went to sleep.

—George Dawson in a recent speech in England told a story of a Gloucestershire peasant's heroic curse. He had wrestled for a long time with a very tough piece of oak on which he had been unable to make any impression, and at last burst out with the impreccation: "Dom they pigs that didn't eat thee when thou wast an acorn."

—Dr. Malherbe says that sewing silk in sometimes impregnated with acetate of lead, and that such silks poison the mouth if brought into contact with it. Add to this risk, the extra dentist bills resulting from the cracks made in the teeth by the biting of thread and silk, and make a virtuous resolve that you will always use your scissors to sever threads.

—The wife of the Marquis of Bute was recently delivered of twins—a pair of Butes, as it were.—Detroit News.

—When Senator Conkling was offered the place of Chief Justice and declined it, Jere. Black was asked why he refused the office. "For the same reason," replied Mr. Black, "that I would refuse to be Emperor of China if it was offered me—because I could not speak the language."

—The King of Sweden has been in the habit of commuting the death sentences of murderers to imprisonment for life, but finds that the practice has led to an increase of murders, and he has accordingly abandoned it.

A Suggestion to the Nervous.

Robust people who have, all their lives, eaten, digested and slept well, can scarcely be expected to appreciate the blessing of strong nerves as well as those who, having undergone all the misery entailed by weak ones have eventually regained their nerve power. In order to experience the unspeakable relief of a change from an enfeebled and unrestful to a vigorous and tranquil condition of the nervous system, the nervous invalid should try a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Under the bracing and soothing influence of that benign tonic and nervine appetite returns, digestion becomes complete and painless, and sleep revisits weary eyes. The causes of nervous weakness are to be found in imperfect digestion and assimilation, and the feeble performance of other vital functions resulting therefrom. The Bitters remove these causes, as well as the nervous symptoms which they produce.

An Appeal

To the Men and Women of Portsmouth:

We are in the midst of a great temperance revival. A tidal wave of reformation is sweeping over our State, and over New England: it has reached Portsmouth at last, and the hearts of men and women are being stirred in behalf of fallen humanity as they have never been before. A few weeks ago it seemed as though our fair city was to be left as the stronghold of the demon Alcohol, and the youths and stalwart men, fast then in the iron grasp of a debasing habit, were to have their bands still more closely riveted. Thank God deliverance has come at last, and to-day scores of men in our midst rejoice not only in new resolutions strongly made, but in the fact that an enduring and sustaining moral support is being woven about them day by day through the actions of their fellow men.

Five weeks ago the Portsmouth Reform Club was not in existence; to-day it is well established and has 550 names on its pledge book, very many of them formerly drinking men. In three months we will number one thousand names. In six months we can vie with Concord, Haverhill, Dover and Nashua in the glorious work. No good work can go on to a full fruition without money, and this at the present time is the great and pressing want of our Reform Club. We want a large and well-appointed club-room in which these reformed men can meet, inform their minds, discuss their plans, and mature their campaign. We want money for books, newspapers, furniture, incidental expenses, and to pay for the use of a Hall for public meetings. In short, we want one thousand dollars in money and as much more pledged for future necessities. Can we not have it? This is for the people of Portsmouth to answer. Every dollar granted shall be carefully, and as far as possible, wisely used to help on their cause and uplift fallen men and women. Our Club labors under peculiar disadvantages. We have no public Hall free for our use. In Dover the use of the City Hall is freely extended to their large and growing club, while the club at Manchester has without expense the use of Smyth's fine hall for its Sunday meetings; and that of Concord, two thousand strong, the gratuitous privilege of Mr. White's beautiful Opera House.

In Maine and in Massachusetts the towns and cities are vying with each other in extending encouraging words, sympathy, and money to help on this reformation. The club at Augusta was presented with $200 by Hon. J. G. Blaine, while many smaller sums have swelled this fund to a large amount. Concord has given $1000 in money, and pledged one thousand in addition, Mr. White alone putting his name down for $200. Dover people, from the commencement, ten months ago, have extended all the aid asked for; sums from one dollar to one hundred dollars being freely given, and more pledged. It is the same in Manchester, Salem, Peabody, Haverhill, Gloucester and scores of other towns and cities. What will Portsmouth do? Never before have men in our midst had such influences surrounding them, such opportunities for reformation. May God give us wisdom to grasp the glorious chance, and pluck from it all its fruits.

MRS. B. F. THORNDIKE,
MRS. A. W. HAVEN,
JOHN S. TREAT,
A. P. STEVENS.

Once More.

The Times of Wednesday evening says we "don't want to own up" that we "published a malicious slander on Hon. Daniel Marcy;" that we "wriggle and twist" and find ourselves "compelled to acknowledge that every one of the party with whom Capt. Marcy was conversing denies the allegation" we made. We acknowledge that we don't want to own up that we published a malicious slander, and that we don't mean to, either, as we have done nothing of the kind. As to which party to this controversy has done the most "wriggling and twisting" we leave others to decide; but that we have acknowledged "that every one (the italics are the Times', not ours) of the party with whom Capt. Marcy was conversing denies the allegation" we deny point blank. We have acknowledged, promptly and fully, the denials of all the gentlemen we named as having been "of the party with whom Capt. Marcy was conversing" that they heard him utter the sentiment attributed to him; indeed, we fancy we made Mr. Drew's disclaimer, for himself and Mr. Osgood, a little stronger than did his card as published in the Times. We did not think it necessary for us to question any of them as to what they would have to say on the subject before publishing our item, nor afterward; but what they have said we have cheerfully published,—as we should have published a denial by Mr. Marcy had he publicly made one.

But we did not name "every one of the party with whom Mr. Marcy was conversing," and among those we did not name was our original informant and a gentleman who stood near while he was "one of the party." We have already suggested that if Mr. Marcy was charged with expressing a sentiment he did not express, his forbearance in not promptly contradicting it is unaccountable; he has never been accused of not being ready and willing to fight his own battles, and in at least one instance within our memory he came out promptly and sharply enough to convince anybody that he knew just where he stood. But in this case, even after Messrs. Haven, Drew, Osgood and Treat have all made plain and explicit statements, all which we have published, we are still without the indignant denial from Mr. Marcy which we were positively assured on the best democratic authority we should find in the first issue of the Times after our disturbing item appeared.

Had such a denial, square and unreserved, been published promptly as was promised, without any waiting to find out what others would say, and been afterward backed up by the "negative testimony" which the Times blames us for not accepting as alone sufficient to refute the positive evidence at first furnished us and the corroborating evidence we have since received, we might have thought it possible our informant had misconstrued some expression of Capt. Marcy's, and should have at once published our authority, as we repeatedly promised we would; but the long delay of Capt. Marcy in making a personal denial, even after all the encouragement afforded by the denials of others, would have satisfied us that our information was correct had we previously had any doubts on the subject,—which we did not have or we should not have published the statement.

But this dispute keeps us up late nights, writing things in answer to the Times,—and we like to go to bed at a proper hour; so, as Mr. Marcy hasn't cared enough about the matter to deny it himself, though he has had a week to do it in and has been repeatedly invited by us to do it, we don't know as we care much about it either, and shan't invite him to take a hand in the game any more. He may do as he pleases; he generally does; so shall we; but we won't be kept up so late another night writing answers to our pugnacious neighbor, the Times.

Another Old Bible.

Mr. T. G. Swinfield of this city has shown us another of the old Bibles which the Centennial year seems to have invested with special interest. The covers are of hard wood, probably "British oak," sheathed with leather and protected by brass bands and corner-pieces of the rudest workmanship. In the front of the book is the Book of Common Prayer, followed by a curious genealogical record of Christ's ancestry, reaching back to Adam and Eve; then comes the Bible, including the Apocrypha, bearing date 1615; then "Two right profitable and fruitfull concordances, or, large and ample tables alphabetically," printed in 1619 or 1620, we cannot tell which, the first date appearing on the title page and the latter after "finis;" a liberal collection of psalms, some of them set to music, and a few prayers, occupying the last part of the book. From the family register we learn that "John Swinfield and Ann Hall married September the 29: andom 1702;" and that "Ann Swinfield was born July the 28 day Anodomany 1703," a numerous family following; the register is brought down to the year 1835, the entries having overrun the blank leaves and encroached on the margins of other pages, and the quaint spelling of the olden days having gradually given way to more modern usage as the years went on. The book has been in the Swinfield family over a century and three-quarters. It is a curious illustration of the scarcity and small consumption of books in the "good old times," that a work so large and so costly as this must have been when purchased, should still have been in the market eighty years after its publication and probably without any subsequent editions having been issued.

Jottings.

The Reform Club have a meeting this evening at Mechanics' Hall. Speaking by members of the Club.

The funeral of the late Major Alexander Rice took place from St. John's church, Wednesday afternoon.

The blow of Tuesday evening, which made things lively in many other places by "unroofing" trees and throwing down chimneys, also blew plenty of slate from the roofs of buildings on Congress street and capsized a chimney on Water street, in this city, besides twisting branches from trees in various parts of the city; but it wasn't strong enough to prevent the leap year assembly taking place as previously announced, for our Portsmouth belles face a gale to attend a dance as readily as they do to go to prayer-meeting.

The members of Dearborn S. F. E. Co., No. 1, are making extensive arrangements for a promenade concert and ball at Franklin Hall, Monday evening next, it being the eve of Washington's Birthday. The managers are determined to make it first class in every respect, and to this end they have secured Harlow's full Band, and made every provision in reference to details that is essential to the completeness of an affair of the above description. If all attend who have purchased tickets, they will have a big crowd.

The Times says: Rev. Mr. Fowler closed his revival labors here on Monday evening, preaching a powerful sermon of warning and advice to those who had made religious professions. The success of these meetings has, we understand, been gratifying, though the number of conversions does not equal those made during the labors of Rev. Henry Durant. The revival evangelical churches will continue to hold daily prayer meetings.

Centaur Liniments.

So nearly perfect are the recipes of these wonderful pain-soothing and healing Centaur Liniments, that we can confidently say they will alleviate any pain arising from flesh, bone or muscle derangements. We do not pretend that they will mend a broken leg or exterminate boils, but even in such cases they will reduce the inflammation and stop the pain. Nor can we guarantee the proper results where the body is poisoned by whiskey. Temperance is as necessary to a proper physical, as mental condition.

The White Centaur Liniment is particularly adapted to all cases of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Erysipelas, Itch, Sprains, Chilblains, Cuts, Bruises, Stings, Poisons, Scalds, Scalions, Weak Back, Pains in the side, Wounds, Weeping Sinews, Burns, Frosted Feet, Palsy, Earache, Tooth-ache, Headache, Ulcers, Old Sores, Broken Breasts, Sore Nipples, Sore Throat, Croup, Diphtheria, etc. The most of these complaints the Centaur Liniment will cure; all of them it will benefit. It will extract the poison from bites and stings, and will cure burns and scalds without a scar. The following is but a sample of a thousand similar testimonials:

"ANTIOCH, ILL., Dec. 1, 1874.

My wife has, for a long time, been a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism. She has tried many physicians and many remedies. The only thing which has given her relief is Centaur Liniment. I am rejoiced to say this has cured her.

W. H. RING, Postmaster."

It is an indisputable fact that the Centaur Liniments are performing cures never before effected by any preparation in existence,—like Chronic Rheumatism of thirty years' standing, straightening fingers and joints which had been stiff for six years, taking the soreness from burns, &c.

One dollar, or even fifty cents, invested in Centaur Liniment will be within reach when an accident occurs, and will do more good than any amount of money paid for medical attendance. When physicians are called they frequently use this Liniment, and of course charge several prices for it.

THE YELLOW CENTAUR LINIMENT is adapted to the tough skin, muscles and flesh of the animal creation. Its effects upon severe cases of Spavin, Sweeny, Wind-Gall, Big-Head and Poll-Evil, are little less than marvelous.

Messrs. J. McClure & Co., Druggists, cor. Elm and Front Sts., Cincinnati, O., say:

"In our neighborhood a number of teamsters are using the Centaur Liniment. They pronounce it superior to anything they have ever used. We sell as high as four to five dozen bottles per month to owners of horses and mules."

We have volumes of testimonials describing cures of Sprains, Kicks, Galls, Poll Evil, Big-Head, and even Founders, which are little less than marvels. No owner of an animal can afford to be without a bottle of Centaur Liniment, which any day may prove worth twenty times its cost.

Castoria.

Cross, sickly babies and children may enjoy health and mothers have rest, if they will use Castoria Worms, feverishness, teething, wind colic, sour stomach and undigested food make children cross, and produce sickness.

Castoria will assimilate the food, expel worms, and correct all these things. For twenty years Dr. Pitcher experimented in his private practice to produce an effective Cathartic and stomach regulator which would be as effective as Castor O.I, without its unpleasant taste or recoil.

The reputation of his experiment extended. Physicians and nurses rapidly adopted his remedy, to which he gave the name of Castoria.

Castoria is as pleasant to take as honey, regulates the stomach and bowels, and does not gripe. It is adapted to all ages, contains no alcohol, and is absolutely harmless to the most tender infant.

Try Castoria once and you will never be without it.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in brisk demand at the public libraries are "trash, and sensational." He thinks that parents ought to guide the children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "A worse literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or his hand to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have excites, stimulates and debases the intellect, unfits for healthy food, fills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most under control. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can never be so effectually poisoned as at its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by curious and eager children, must influence to a large extent the tone of thought and the drift of action of those whose plastic minds are most under influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in the above to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all children were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS), there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says: "In

That threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome and really attractive magazine is needed for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has risen and a higher platform, and commands for its service wider resources in arts and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

REV. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE for GIRLS and BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more attractive and worthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

Or, for $5.00, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75, the full price of which is $7.00. Or for $8.00 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00.

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the handsomest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,500 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have five splendid series, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc.; more than equal in contents to 20 volumes of ordinary children's books of 6,000 book pages costing $30.00!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty-five Cents.

Bleeding from Lungs, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Consumption. A Wonderful Cure.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 13th, 1874.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—I had suffered from Catarrh in an aggravated form for about twelve years and for several years from Bronchial trouble. Tried many doctors and things with no lasting benefit. In May, '72, becoming nearly worn out with excessive Editorial labors on a paper in New York City, I was attacked with bronchitis in a severe form, suffering almost a total loss of voice. I returned home here, but had been home only two weeks when I was completely prostrated with Hemorrhage from the Lungs, having four severe bleeding spells within two weeks, and first three inside of nine days. In the September following, I improved sufficiently to be able to be about, although in a very feeble state. My Bronchial trouble remained and the Catarrh was tenfold worse than before. Every effort for relief seemed fruitless. I seemed to be losing ground daily. I continued in this feeble state, raising blood almost daily until about the first of March, '73, when I became so bad as to be entirely confined to the house. A friend suggested your remedies. But I was extremely skeptical that they would do me good, as I had lost all heart in remedies, and began to look upon medicine and doctors with disgust. However, I obtained one of your circulars, and read it carefully, from which I came to the conclusion that you understood your business, at least. I finally obtained a quantity of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, your Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets, and commenced their vigorous use according to directions. To my surprise, I soon began to improve. The Discovery and Pellets, in a short time, brought out a severe eruption, which continued for several weeks. I felt much better, my appetite improved, and I gained in strength and flesh. In three months every vestige of the Catarrh was gone, the Bronchitis had nearly disappeared, had no Cough whatever and I had entirely ceased to raise blood; and, contrary to the expectation of one of my friends, the cure has remained permanent. I have had no more Hemorrhages from the Lungs, and am entirely free from Catarrh, from which I had suffered so much and so long. The debt of gratitude I owe for the blessing I have received at your hands, knows no bounds. I am thoroughly satisfied, from my experience, that your medicines will master the worst forms of that odious disease Catarrh, as well as Throat and Lung Diseases. I have recommended them to very many and shall ever speak in their praise.

Gratefully yours,

WM. H. SPENCER.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the blood.

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon received more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For the last three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and had lost my pluck, when I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and received to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package for my best friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLASTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say I have found the wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to my friends for a package for me. I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried nearly everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills at a time and anything. In one of my tea-times I noticed that they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have spent a great deal of money for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded it was useless to try more. I noticed one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My doctor is surprised from information of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 16, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. Tells with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Reminsdale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Cordial he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New-England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be rendered still more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the War. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many problems to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and, particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopeful signs that a long and long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE could only appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford to spend such a year as 1876 is dispensed with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or political or sectarian bias.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banner. But it can never be the servant of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and disapprove of the evil in either. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to enlist honest men whom the country knows and can trust, to secure hard money, honest government, and the economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to put the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Indian Ring, stopping leaks in the Treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by party names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to join hands and work with us, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the vigorous and decisive judicial tone we will keep its columns free from personal wrangling, and we have no time to replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and its newspaper will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor to their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so compicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1872 and 1873 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has even this position by the closest watchfulness and the most careful attention to procure the most intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

FEEDING THE BEASTS.

"We are getting along quite well, and will be able to make a right nice showing when our centennial visitors arrive. How much have we spent did you say? Well, we have already expended over $400,000."

The conversation took place in a house known as the "Carnivora," and the parties were Capt. Thompson and a Bulletin reporter.

"What's a lion like that worth?" said the reporter, pointing to a very fine male specimen that was engaged growling at him.

"Well," replied the captain, "I couldn't say. There is no standard valuation for such fine animals. I've bought one for $25, and have known them to sell for $2500 and $3000. You've got to buy them as best you can. There's no regular market value."

"There's your old friend who held the Chesapeake," pointing to the latest acquisition in the leopard line. "He's just as cross as ever. He isn't fond of forming new acquaintances. This one here is a female of the Japanese species. She's a bad lot. She's the one that ate her three young ones last week."

"Suppose you enlighten the public as to the feeding of these animals."

"Well, all carnivorous animals are fed six times a week. We count one day out of the seven—Thursday."

"Why do you make them fast one day in the week?"

"You see, we try to follow nature. None of these animals in their wild state succeed in finding food every day. Then, again, we make the break in order to provide against exigencies that might arise. You see, we get our supply of meat from a butchering firm that is under contract to supply us. Well, now, suppose they should fail us for a day or two, or the meat should come in frozen, then, as a matter of course, the animals could not be fed and their health would suffer. Which is the biggest eater? Why, the Bengal tiger. He and the lion are the heaviest eaters. We are giving the tiger more than the lion. His allowance is sixteen pounds of meat per day. How much does it take to serve all the carnivora? Well, let's see—180 pounds."

Counting fifty two weeks to the year, and six days to the week, this would make the total amount of meat used 56,160 pounds, which, at six cents per pound, foots up a cost per annum of $3369.60 for food for the carnivora alone.

"The hyenas you'd suppose to be big meat eaters, wouldn't you?" said Capt. Thompson.

"We answered that such was our opinion.

"Well, it isn't so," said the captain. "They eat very little meat. We give them plenty of bones, which they munch and crunch and grow fat on. See how sleek they look. All the animals require more or less bone food for the lime therein contained. Now the birds we feed regularly every day. All the seed-eating birds have enough seed set before them each day to last them twenty-four hours. The monkeys we feed twice a day. For breakfast they get bread and milk, and for dinner they get vegetables, bread and milk. Then, you know, the visitors are continually feeding them."

"Have they any special favorite in the vegetable line, captain?"

"Oh, my; yes! They are extremely fond of sweet potatoes."

"How about the snakes, captain?"

"I can't say much about the snakes, as we hardly know when they do eat. We have to keep offering the food, and when it suits them they take it, and when it does not they leave it alone. Sometimes they'll feed once in two or three weeks, sometimes every two or three months, and they have been known to do without food for six months."

"What's their bill of fare?"

"We generally give them rats, guinea pigs, rabbits, pigeons, frogs, mice and small birds. The rattlesnakes seem to prefer rats and small birds. The pigs and rabbits we give to the bons. All are given to them alive. They wouldn't think of touching anything dead."

"Where do you get your supply of rats and mice?"

"Right here. Why, the grounds are overrun with them. Why, sir, we've got some water rats over there," pointing to the beaver dam, "that come up and take the food right away from the beavers. The rhinoceros we feed on hay, bran and potatoes. The bears we feed principally on bread. The sea lions and fish eating birds we feed on fish. We use about sixty pounds of fish per day. The eagles get meat. In winter we commence feeding them at three o'clock in the afternoon, and in summer an hour later."

"How about the elephants, giraffes, camels, buffaloes, deer, etc.?"

"The giraffes and elephants and camels and deer and all hay-eating animals are fed twice a day on hay and grain. We give the giraffes carrots semi-occasionally to regulate their bowels."

"Did you experience trouble in moving that fellow?" said we, pointing to the rhinoceros, who seemed proud of his new quarters. "No more trouble than is experienced at any time in moving a weight of 6000 pounds," replied Capt. Thompson. —Phil Bulletin.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President—Lincoln—will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who reverse the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

Grand Rally at Concord.

The republicans of Concord opened the campaign, Wednesday evening, by a rousing rally at Phenix Hall, every seat being filled, four hundred persons standing. The crowd was so dense that hundreds went away without getting within hearing distance of the speakers. So eager were people to be present that hundreds of ladies and gentlemen went to the Hall shortly after six o'clock. At half-past six, a special train brought a delegation of hundreds from Fisherville, who marched to the Hall headed by Brown's Cornet Band.

Gen. Harriman presided and made an eloquent address of three-quarters of an hour. He was followed by Hon. Julius C. Burrows of Michigan, who spoke with such great effect at Portsmouth last year. His speech was convincing and impassioned, was interspersed with argument, anecdote and appeal, and was enthusiastically received. The peroration was grand and effective, electrifying the audience and producing an enthusiasm rarely witnessed even in the excited contests which have made New Hampshire a famous political battle ground.

Mr. Burrows will remain on the stump until the close of the campaign. His appointments thus far are: At Milford, last evening, Thursday; Bristol, Friday; Manchester, Saturday; Laconia, Monday; Great Falls, Tuesday; Dover, Wednesday.

O. C. Moore, Esq., the talented editor of the Nashua Telegraph, opened the campaign at Wakefield Corner on the 14th, his other appointments thus far being Rochester 17th, New Boston 18th, Barrington 19th, Laconia 21st, Canterbury 22d. He is in such demand that the State committee are having printed 10,000 copies of his speech for gratuitous distribution.

The following speakers are engaged: Gen. Harriman, Senator "Dick" Oglesby of Illinois, James F. Briggs, Chas. H. Burns, Henry E. Burnham, Gen. A. E. King, Hon. Wm. P. Frye, A. W. Tenney, Ex-Gov. Edward F. Noyes, Gen. James A. Garfield, of Ohio, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, of New York, Gen. A. F. Stevens, Gen. Simon G. Griffin, Hon. Jacob H. Ela, C. A. Sulloway, and—several more to hear from.

Queer Statements.

Capt. Alexander Murray, U. S. N., well known about here, has been before the naval investigating committee at Washington to tell what he knows about navy yard management; and unless he has been misrepresented in the published reports he certainly made some very queer statements. He said "it is an ordinary thing for ships to be put in order before election, painted, calked, and coppered, and then after election sent back to rot;" asserted that the watchmen are generally low politicians on duty eight hours, and generally dishonest; advocated the employment of the marines in place of watchmen, by which he said $900,000 a year would be saved to government, and would have the Naval Constructor "one of the regular naval officers, appointed from the line." The last recommendation explains what all the rest means, viz: that in Capt. Murray's opinion "the line" should rule omnipotent, and no one else have a word to say concerning naval affairs. He is not the only naval officer who entertains the same idea, but there are other people who can't see it in that light yet, thinking the proper place for a naval "line" officer is afloat and that he is entirely out of place as a boss in a navy yard. Engineers, boatswains, sailmakers, carpenters, etc.,—men who really have work in the direct line of their professions to superintend on the navy yards,—it is well enough should be there; but what special fitness for running navy yards line officers possess has never yet been shown. We have more than once been told that the yards will never be run economically until "the line" takes hold and does it; but this plea is awfully thin to any person who has ever been on a navy yard and noticed how large a proportion of the money appropriated goes to make things pleasant for the officers. At some other time we may give some illustrations of what kind of economy has been practised in a yard we know of, by line officers, but not just now; we will glance at one or two of Capt. Murray's statements.

He says he has had a variety of experiences in navy yards and that in his judgment they are "used to a shameful extent for partisan political purposes." We can vouch for a portion of that statement, as he was here in '62, '63 and '64 and we are satisfied it is no fault of his or the political influence he sought and used in this city and Washington that he is not now Commandant of this yard. And we doubt very much whether he could give to the committee the names of the ships that he charges the department with putting in condition for service previous to an election and then sending them back after election to rot. We supposed this committee were after facts, not mere assertions. His reflection on the Naval Constructors and suggestion to put "line" officers in their places is certainly original. These gentlemen of the "line" are educated at the expense of the people and are supposed to make themselves proficient in seamanship and navigation so that they can sail and command our ships of war with honor to themselves and credit to the country. The training which they receive in no way fits them to perform the responsible duties of designing and building vessels; they have only such a smattering of naval architecture as is picked up from a text book on that subject, and very few could tell what materials enter into the construction of a vessel of war or how they are distributed to afford the requisite strength. Our navy would be in a fine condition in a short time if its destiny was consigned to the mercies of such amateurs. The science and practice of naval architecture are not picked up lying around loose at Annapolis or on the deck of a ship of war, but by hard study and the practical application of a life time, and we do not imagine the country is yet ready to or ever will trust one of its most important interests to the hands of non-professionals.

But one charge in Capt. Murray's testimony is simply outrageous,—his wholesale slander of navy yard watchmen as being "low politicians" and thieves. In point of fact, "the politicians" generally have but little to say as to the appointment or retention of watchmen, the naval officers themselves making most of the appointments; and unless we are greatly mistaken (and we don't believe we are) there are now on the navy yard here a very respectable number of watchmen—four or five—who were appointed by Capt. Murray himself when he was an officer of the yard!

The "economizing" advocated by Capt. Murrray could be well started in another quarter. The wages of naval officers are as high now as during the war, while the wages of nearly all other people have dropped from ten to twenty-five per cent., or even more; now if ten per cent. were taken off the wages of every naval officer who receives $2000 or more a year, a saving of some $350,000 a year would be effected at once, without any injury to the service; and the reform might well be extended to a complete revision of the navy lists and laws, with a view to prevent the making any more officers for our much-officered navy until the retired and shore-duty lists shall have been reduced to something within the bounds of reason, and a much larger proportion of officers on the active list shall have got where they properly belong—afloat.

News and Notes.

The British ship W. J. Hatfield, Capt. Scovill, from Philadelphia for Bremen, was abandoned Feb. 6 in lat. 44, lon. 34, and soon after sunk. All of the crew were lost except two, who were picked up by a boat from barque Fioka, from Baltimore, and landed at Queenstown Feb. 15. The W. J. Hatfield was 891 tons register and owned in Yarmouth, N. S. The ship when fallen in with was in a dismasted and waterlogged condition. The boat failed to get alongside the vessel owing to the high sea. Three men jumped overboard, one of whom was drowned, but the two others were saved. The rest of the crew were unable to speak or move from exposure and want of water. The Fioka lay-to during the night, but at daylight the Hatfield was invisible, and it is believed that she foundered with all on board.

Owen Welsh, of Ansonia, Conn., missing since November last, has been found in the Naugatuck river, gashed with an axe and doubtless murdered.

On the 16th, Syracuse, N. Y., and Titusville, Pa., elected republican mayors. Titusville has had democratic mayors for three years past. Williamsport, Pa., was carried by the republicans the same day.

One Williamson, a notorious bond forger and "pal" of Spence Pettis, has been arrested in New York, where he was one of a firm of brokers on whom he imposed with forged bonds. His partners found him out and caused his arrest. He was one of the circulators of the forged bonds on the New York Central Railroad, Buffalo & Erie Railroad and Western Union Telegraph Company, by which the swindlers got several hundred thousand dollars in 1873.

It appears that Winslow actually landed in Holland, but in a pilot-boat and not from the Rotterdam, having become frightened by the steamboat captain's telling him there was an extradition treaty between Holland and the United States. He is in Clerkenwell House of Detention, London. His wife is on the way to join him.

A newspaper correspondent, speaking of hotels, makes the following sensible remarks: "While a traveler can get good accommodations at many hotels in a great city, there is always a decided preference given for one having a wide reputation. This is one reason why the Westminster of New York is such a great favorite. We say one, for there are other reasons. It is true that on account of so many great celebrities making this house their home while in New York, the name of the Westminster is known far and wide, but another and more important reason is that everything at the Westminster—room, suits, cuisine, convenience of location, etc.,—is unsurpassed, while the rates of charges are no higher than at other first-class hotels. The traveler therefore enjoys the advantage of stopping at a celebrated hotel for the same amount he would have to pay at others not so well known."

The Dancer's Cramp.

The decline of the ballet is an unquestionable fact, the cause of which we cannot pretend to fathom. Judging, however, from some revelations made by Dr. Schulz and an Austrian physician, we should be inclined to attribute it to the circumstances that the greater the attainments of a danseuse the more irksome becomes a certain liability attending the profession. This drawback consists of a peculiar cramp to which all other cramps are a joke. It begins in the soles of both feet, increasing in intensity till the whole body is implicated in the contraction, and palpitation of the heart is produced, ending in insensibility. Dr. Schulz, having discovered that this malady—or, at any rate, the extreme form of it—occurred only in the case of the best dancers, those intrusted with the performance of the pas suel, hunted it through all the most complicated movements known to the profession, and at last found a sufficient cause for its appearance in that beautiful step now so rarely seen, to execute which the dancer poises herself on the extreme point of her chaussure. This step, says Dr. Schulz—telling tales out of school—cannot indeed be produced without the help of shoes expressly made for the purpose, strengthened at the tip, and furnished with a support running up to the inner side of the toe on which the whole weight of the body rests. The doctor adds that he was able by the employment of electricity to overcome the more serious results of the "dancer's cramp," but could devise no means of removing the muscular pains which render what looks like fairy pastime some of the hardest and most harassing work to which the human frame is subjected.—Pall Mall Gazette.

—A few days since one of the Cornell professors perpetrated a practical joke upon himself worthy to be cherished in the archives of the institution. He had occasion to visit a small closet, in which the janitor keeps his tools, situated in the basement, near the engine. Not wishing to be disturbed while there he locked himself in and slipped the key into his pocket. During his manipulations he forgot that he had the key in his possession, and upon trying to get out, imagined himself the victim of some malicious physicist. He waited some time for his tormenter to repent, and then became exasperated. He pounded the door, kicked, wept, and swore through the keyhole, but in vain. The janitor had gone down town, and there was none to heed his cry. In the course of the afternoon he returned and accidentally discovered the mighty fallen into a sullen fit of distrust, and destitute of all confidence in humanity. When the professor sat down to his newspaper after supper that evening, and happening to put his hand into his pocket, found the key to that closet, he immediately went into the back yard and ran a wheelbarrow back and forth over himself for half an hour.

—A dealer in rags and junk in New Bedford, a few days since, purchased of a woman 40 pounds of what purported to be rags. As he left the house he noticed that she and her friends who were present were mightily amused about something, though they were apparently trying to conceal their merriment. When he examined the rags, however, the cause was found. The woman, in her anxiety to make weight, had placed in the bag about 30 pounds of lead pipe. As a pound of pipe is worth more than three times as much as a pound of rags, it is evident the profits of the woman on her trade were not such as she had planned.

—It was in Portland, Me., one evening. Three of them were killing a cat. One of them held a lantern, another held the cat, and the third jammed a pistol into the cat's ear and fired it, shooting the man who was holding the animal in the hand, and wounding the party with the lantern in the arm. The cat left as soon as it saw how matters stood, and that ill-feeling was being engendered.

Anti Club Room.

Eds. Chronicle: I am a strong temperance advocate, and always have been from my youth, but was sorry to see in your paper that appeal for money with which to get up a club-room. [Club-rooms often are great evils,—they keep people from their homes, and give them a taste for staying anywhere but at home.] It will be much better for each of the reformed to take two or three cents of what they have saved each day by leaving the cup of intoxication, buy a newspaper and go home (clothed in their right minds) to their families, parents, or boarding-houses, and read them to their friends in a quiet way, like good citizens.

SOBRIETY.

Jottings.

Civil Engineer B. F. Chandler, of the navy yard, is in Worcester, Mass., where his eldest daughter is lying at the point of death.

The Boston Journal says: "We hear that Mr. Isaac W. Frye, for many years the commercial editor of the Boston Courier, is failing very rapidly. He is among the last of a former generation of newspaper men, who has adhered to journalism through life." Mr. Frye is a native of this city, but has long been a resident of Massachusetts.

The New England Opera Troupe appear in the "Bohemian Girl" at the Temple on Saturday evening. The Boston Transcript of Jan. 20 contained the following notice of this company: "The performance of 'The Bohemian Girl,' by the New England Opera Troupe last evening, at the Chelsea Academy of Music, may be characterized as very satisfactory and creditable. The chorus of this organization is a remarkably good one, doing its work with force, precision, and spirit." Tickets now on sale at Preston's. See advertisement.

Our friend Nathaniel of Texas doesn't think very highly of the movement to abolish capital punishment in Maine, as he believes the death penalty helps deter vicious men from great crimes. He says he should be much displeased at having to go to State prison for life,—queer prejudices some people have,—but would sooner go there twice than be hung once. But then Nathaniel of Texas is not a vicious man, so he isn't competent to judge as to which form of punishment has the greatest terrors for great rascals.

The Woman's Temperance League are to hold their bazaar on next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at Franklin Hall.

In the family lot on the Rice farm at Kittery, whither the remains of the late Alexander Rice were conveyed yesterday, now lies seven generations. Near by the lot is growing a rose-bush known to be over 200 years old. This estate was once owned by Sir Fernando Gorges and deeded by him to the Withers family, and in 1652 it was given as a marriage dowry by Thomas Withers to his daughter Mary Withers on her nuptials with Thomas Rice. Thus it will be seen that this farm has been in the Rice family for a period of two hundred and twenty-four years,—or two and a quarter centuries.—Times, 17th.

Sloop Z. S. Wallingford, of Dover, was driven high and dry ashore on Pavilion beach, Gloucester harbor, during the gale of the 14th, and considerably damaged.

On Thursday Capt. Marvin of the Portsmouth Artillery Company was required by Judge Page to recognize in the sum of $300 to appear at a higher court, on a complaint that he has kept somewhere a larger amount of powder than he had a legal right to do.

The Times man attempted to make us set up late again, Thursday night, to answer him on that "dollar a day" matter; but he couldn't manage it. He suggests that we want to "retire in good order" and that we "will be better appreciated in the future if we confine ourself to the truth when we attempt to 'write up' any of our citizens." He may rest assured that we shall confine ourself strictly to the truth in the future, as we have always done in the past, and that when we do "retire" from this battle-field it will be in the very best of order. We don't feel any anxious inclination to retire at all coming on yet, however, though we confess 'tis rather straining on the shoulder to hit out at nothing, right along.

FABLES.

[N. Y. World.]

THE UNFORTUNATE ELEPHANT.

An elephant had been endeavoring to rive the bole of a knotted oak with his trunk, but the tree closed upon that member, detaining it and causing the helpless elephant intense pain. He shook the forest with his trumpeting and all the beasts gathered around him. "Ah, ah, my friend," said a pet chimpanzee, "you have got your trunk checked, I see." "My dear children," said a temperate camel to her young, "let this example teach you to shun the bole." "Does it hurt much?" said a compassionate gnu: "Ah, it does; it does; it must; I have been a mother myself." And while they were sympathizing with him the unfortunate elephant expired in great agony.

Moral—The moral of the above is so plain as not to need explanation. Talk is cheap.

THE DEY AND THE KNIGHT.

A Christian Knight was playing draw-poker with the Dey of Algiers for a monarch's ransom. The fearless Christian observed that the Grand Vizier was looking over his shoulder and telegraphing the quality of his hand to the despot, but repressing his indignation at the discovery of his perfidy he dealt his antagonist four kings and a jack and himself three aces and two small hearts, having previously taken the precaution of placing the fourth ace upon his knee. The Moslem ruler drew one card and the Christian warrior two taking an opportunity of replacing one of them with the card on his knee. The betting was long and arduous, but, finally, the Christian, not desiring to prolong the agony of his brave opponent, called him. What, then, was his surprise when the Dey brought forth four kings and an ace, the ace that he had so prudently placed on his own knee, while his own hand consisted of three aces, a queen and the seven of diamonds. With the remark that he would not play in a game where cheating was going on, the disgusted Christian returned to his English mission and salted another silver mine.

Moral—Honesty is the best policy, and no man knows what a Dey may bring forth.

THE CENTIPEDE AND THE BARBARIC YAK.

White a centipede was painfully toiling over the Libyan desert he was encountered by a barbaric yak who scornfully asked him how were his poor feet? The humble creature made no reply at the time, but some days later found the barbaric yak taken in the nets of the hunter and almost devoured by insects, which fled at the approach of the centipede. "Help, help, my good friend!" exclaimed the unfortunate beast; "I cannot move a muscle in these cruel toils, and the ravenous insects have well nigh devoured my delicate flesh." "Say you so?" responded the centipede; "Can you really not defend yourself?" "Alas! how can I?" replied the yak; "See you not how sturdily I am bound?" "And is your flesh, then, so delicate?" "It is, though I say it who should not." "Then," said the centipede, "I guess I'll take a bite myself."

Moral—The other man's extremity is often our opportunity.

THE PROCRASTINATING BROKER.

A procrastinating broker met a rich but simple capitalist who was going down to Wall Street with a bag of gold. "To-morrow," he said to himself, "I will unload some Pacific Mail on that snoozer." But lo! when the morrow came, he found that the capitalist had gone short on Union Pacific the night before, and lost his pile!

Moral—Never put off till to-morrow the man you can do to-day.

THE EDITOR AND THE GIRAFFE.

An editor was seated in a lofty tower writing an article on "Sweet William," when a giraffe, who was passing along the street, poked in his head at the window and ravenously swallowed the copy, with every manifestation of delight. The horrified editor fled precipitately to the beer saloon in the basement and after quaffing a mug of ale discovered that he had left his pocket-book up stairs and did not know the barkeeper who had served him.

Moral—Thus we see the folly of going to extremes.

THE RHINOCEROS AND THE DROMEDARY.

A thirsty rhinoceros having to his great joy encountered a dromedary in the desert of Sahara, besought the latter animal of his mercy to give him a drink, but the dromedary refused, stating that he was holding the fluid for an advance. "Why," said he to the rhinoceros, "did not you imitate my forethought and prudence, and take some heed to the morrow?" The rhinoceros acknowledged the justice of the rebuke. Some time afterward he met in an oasis the dromedary, who had realized at the turn of the market and was now trying to cover his shorts. "For Heaven's sake," he gasped to the rhinoceros, who was wallowing in the midst of a refreshing pool, "frust me for a nip." "When I was thirsty," replied the rhinoceros, "you declined to stand the drinks, but I will give you a horn." So saying, he let the graceful sunlight into the dromedary's inards.

Moral—Virtue is its own Reward.

The Moon over the Seven Stars.

The seven stars are in the constellation Taurus, the English of which is The Bull. On celestial maps only the head and fore-quarters of the Bull are pictured out. The seven stars are back of the neck; only six are visible to the naked eye.

The seven stars in Scripture are named Pleiades. In Job 9:9 they are so called: in chapter 38, v. 31, it is asked, "Caust thou bind the sweet influence of Pleiades?" Not only in the Bible are they so called, but in other ancient writings.

Late in the afternoon and evening of Thursday, 3d inst., the moon was in the constellation Taurus and went directly over the seven stars. They, at least the most of them, were eclipsed by it. Of course we were on the lookout to see the show. No almanac had named its coming, but we found it out in spite of that neglect, so they can't help it. The almanac makers are very good to tell us about the morning and evening stars, and (some of them) when they are of the principal of the stars rise and set. All right; but will they please tell us in future more relative to other wonders that are to appear in the heavens from year to year? Otherwise some, who would gladley see them, will fail of the privilege. [And Mr. Leavitt, in his almanac this year, seems careful to give us a variety of spelling; as on the first page, cover, it is "almanac;" in the next, being the title page proper, it is "almanack."]

But back to the moon across the seven stars. For a time it was cloudy, but before seven o'clock the clouds broke and the moon came out bright. It had just passed its first quarter. The stars about it could not be seen for the brightness of the more splendid luminary; but the moon was over a portion of the seven stars. At this time it was nearly in the meridian, but much further north than the sun's place at noon. It soon became cloudy again, with falling snow and by midnight the seven stars were left behind by the moon, as that orb was hastening forward, and at about one o'clock, although not seen because of the clouds, went down below the horizon.

Centaur Liniments.

So nearly perfect are the recipes of these wonderful pain-soothing and healing Centaur Liniments, that we can confidently say they will alleviate any pain arising from flesh, bone or muscle derangements. We do not pretend that they will mend a broken leg or exterminate boils, but even in such cases they will reduce the inflammation and stop the pain. Nor can we guarantee the proper results where the body is poisoned by whiskey. Temperance is as necessary to a proper physical, as mental condition.

The White Centaur Liniment is particularly adapted to all cases of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Erysipelas, Itch, Sprains, Chilblains, Cuts, Bruises, Stings, Poisons, Scalds, Sciatica, Weak Back, Pains in the side, Wounds, Weeping Sinews, Burns, Frosted Feet, Palsy, Earache, Tooth-ache, Headache, Ulcers, Old Sores, Broken Breasts, Sore Nipples, Sore Throat, Croup, Diphtheria, etc. The most of these complaints the Centaur Liniment will cure; all of them it will benefit. It will extract the poison from bites and stings, and will cure burns and scalds without a scar. The following is but a sample of a thousand similar testimonials:

"ANTIOCH, ILL., Dec. 1, 1874.

My wife has, for a long time, been a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism, she has tried many physicians and many remedies. The only thing which has given her relief is Centaur Liniment. I am rejoiced to say this has cured her.

W. H. RING, Postmaster."

It is an indisputable fact that the Centaur Liniments are performing cures never before effected by any preparation in existence—like Chronic Rheumatism of thirty years' standing, straightening fingers and joints which had been stiff for six years, taking the soreness from burns, &c.

One dollar, or even fifty cents, invested in Centaur Liniment will be within reach when an accident occurs, and will do more good than any amount of money paid for medical attendance. When physicians are called they frequently use this Liniment, and of course charge several prices for it.

Messrs. J. McClure & Co., Druggists, cor. Elm and Front Sts., Cincinnati, O., say:

"In our neighborhood a number of teamsters are using the Centaur Liniment. They pronounce it superior to anything they have ever used. We sell as high as four to five dozen bottles per month to owners of horses and mules."

We have volumes of testimonials describing cures of Sprains, Kicks, Galls, Poll Evil, Big-Head, and even Founders, which are little less than marvels. No owner of an animal can afford to be without a bottle of Centaur Liniment. They pronounce it superior to anything they have ever used. We sell as high as four to five dozen bottles per month to owners of horses and mules."

Castoria.

Cross, sickly babies and children may enjoy health and mothers have rest, if they will use Castoria. Worms, feverishness, teething, wind colic, sour stomach and undigested food make children cross, and produce sickness.

Castoria will assimilate the food, expel worms, and correct all these things. For twenty years Dr. Pitcher experimented in his private practice to produce an effective Cathartic and stomach regulator which would be as effective as Castor Oil, without its unpleasant taste or recoil.

The reputation of his experiment extended. Physicians and nurses rapidly adopted his remedy, to which he gave the name of Castoria.

Castoria is as pleasant to take as honey, regulates the stomach and bowels, and does not gripe. It is adapted to all ages, contains no alcohol, and is absolutely harmless to the most tender infant.

Try Castoria once and you will never be without it.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in brisk demand at the public libraries are "vapid and sensational." He thinks that parents ought to guide the children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "A worse literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or his hand to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have excites, stimulates and debases the intellect, unfits it for healthy food, dills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most undeveloped. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can never rise higher than its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by curious and eager children, must contribute to a large extent the tone of thought and the drift of action of those whose plastic minds come under their influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in this article to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all editors were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS) there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says: "In

That threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is needed for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in art and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

REV. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in an article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE for GIRLS and BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more trustworthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

In order to place this magazine within the reach of all, the publishers offer to send the 14 numbers (Nov., '75, to Dec., '76) for $3.00.

Or, for $5.00, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75, the full price of which is $7.00. Or for $8.00 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00.

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the handsomest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,500 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have five splendid series, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc.; more than equal in contents to 20 volumes of ordinary children's books of 6,000 book pages costing $30.00!!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty-five Cents.

Bleeding from Lungs, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Consumption. A Wonderful Cure.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 13th, 1874.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—I had suffered from Catarrh in an aggravated form for about twelve years and for several years from Bronchial trouble. Tried many doctors and things with no lasting benefit. In May, '72, becoming nearly worn out with excessive Editorial labors on a paper in New York City, I was attacked with Bronchitis in a severe form, suffering almost a total loss of voice. I returned home here, but had been home only two weeks when I was completely prostrated with Hemorrhage from the Lungs, having four severe bleeding spells within two weeks, and first three inside of nine days. In the September following, I improved sufficiently to be able to be about, although in a very feeble state. My Bronchial trouble remained and the Catarrh was tenfold worse than before. Every effort for relief seemed fruitless. I seemed to be losing ground daily. I continued in this feeble state, raising blood almost daily until about the first of March, '73, when I became so bad as to be entirely confined to the house. A friend suggested your remedies. But I was extremely skeptical that they would do me good, as I had lost all heart in remedies, and began to look upon medicine and doctors with disgust. However, I obtained one of your circulars, and read it carefully, from which I came to the conclusion that you understood your business, at least I finally obtained a quantity of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, your Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets, and commenced their vigorous use according to directions. To my surprise, I soon began to improve. The Discovery and Pellets, in a short time, brought out a severe eruption, which continued for several weeks. I felt much better, my appetite improved, and I gained in strength and flesh. In three months every vestige of the Catarrh was gone, the Bronchitis had nearly disappeared, had no Cough whatever and I had entirely ceased to raise blood; and, contrary to the expectation of some of my friends, the cure has remained permanent. I have had no more Hemorrhages from the Lungs, and am entirely free from Catarrh, from which I had suffered so much and so long. The debt of gratitude I owe for the blessing I have received at your hands, knows no bounds. I am thoroughly satisfied, from my experience, that your medicines will master the worst forms of that odious disease Catarrh, as well as Throat and Lung Diseases. I have recommended them to very many and shall ever speak in their praise.

Gratefully Yours,

WM. H. SPENCER.

Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package returned to purchase for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time done no work. For about the last five years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for three packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills yesterday and have taken half the four doses for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many when good they say they have done anything. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried almost everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials you said that they were worth ten dollars a box; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this place find $1.50 for three boxes more for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism and Liver and Kidney Complaint, the latter causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor, and have spent $100 for medicine, with great relief, for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Co-prepitationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and sent you the price of a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as any man. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will last long. My sister was troubled from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.50; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. Tell you with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockdale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.50 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most memorable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which promise to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democrats, and it is supposed to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. Its record will be a matter of history for all time, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the Static schools, will prove a most important factor in the future politics of the Republic. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopeful signs that it will witness the long delayed revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE can hardly fail to satisfy the public demand for the present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the access of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, uninfluenced by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will explicitly and earnestly advocate the principles under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of any party or sect; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of either. It can only and always be the friend of the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country can trust, to secure honest money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard money victories won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and is earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York which is busy fitting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it has the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One cause of the policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been the efforts of politicians to force THE TRIBUNE to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may safely be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have this will into or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to public favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its readers free from personal wranglings; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and its heretofore will represent its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so long and so largely enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 it has received a larger number of new subscribers than any other journal, and its circulation has been greater than in any previous period in its history. It has with this position by the closest watchfulness and the most liberal expenditure to procure the freshest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

NEW DIAMOND FIELDS.

A report has just been received of the accidental discovery of a deposit of brilliants in the coast range of San Mateo county. The story is told by George F. Mondou, the discoverer. Mr. Mondou says that on Sunday last he visited the family of James W. Bell, owner of the Bell ranch on San Gregorio Creek, San Mateo county. While there the subject of the existence of quicksilver on the Bell ranch was broached, and Mondou suggested to James M. Bell, a son of the James W. Bell above named, that they prospect the adjacent hills for cinnabar. These hills are a continuation of the New Almaden range, and contain good indications of having large deposits of quicksilver. It is only a short while since, in fact, that a very important discovery of cinnabar in this very range of hills, and in the neighborhood of the alleged discovery of diamonds, was reported in the San Mateo newspapers. Mondou's proposition was accepted, and the two at once started out with picks, shovel and pan. They ascended San Gregorio Creek, which is a narrow ravine bounded on each side by steep and rocky slopes. Their attention was finally attracted by a large bowlder resting in a crevice in the rock on a bed of bright sand. After a little labor the bowlder was removed, and behind it lay a mass of brilliant crystals embedded in the sand. Neither of the two men knew the nature of the brilliants they had so unexpectedly unearthed, but both were impressed with the idea that they were of some value. Hastily scraping together the contents of the crevice, they packed it carefully into bags and then concealed them, having, however, previously picked out from two to three hundred specimens of the sparkling crystals. They then returned to the ranch house and showed one of the specimens to the elder Bell. He at once gave it as his opinion that the stone was a rough diamond, and was very anxious to learn the whereabouts of the discovery. Neither his son nor Mondou would, however, give any information whatever until he gave them a bill of sale for a third interest each in a diamond claim on San Gregorio Creek, reserving to himself the other third. The bill of sale represents that "the claim is particularly described about four feet square under a big bowlder rock." The discoverer, George F. Mondou, further alleges that he showed some of the specimens to persons in the town of San Mateo, who profess to be precious stone experts, and they pronounce them to be pure diamonds. He is now in this city, and says that he took one of the stones, asserted to have been found under the bowlder, to a jeweller, whose name he had not taken the pains to ascertain, and he not only declared it to be a rough diamond, but offered him $25 for it. The stone is about one-third the size of an ordinary garden pea. The largest specimens are about double the size of a castor bean. Mondou says that he and his partner prospected the neighborhood carefully for other deposits, but failed to find any. He represents that great excitement prevails among the neighboring ranchmen, who have left plough, harrow and seeding machines, and taken to the hills to prospect for diamonds. This afternoon he returns to Redwood City to record his claim, in the richness of which he has, apparently, the greatest faith.—San Francisco Bulletin.

THE BAD LANDS.

It is not an agreeable piece of information, this which Gen. Hazen forces upon us so persistently, and with an array of evidence too strong to be questioned. He insists that "the region of country between the 100th meridian and the Sierra Nevada Mountains, all the way from Mexico to the British Possessions is practically valueless for all [agricultural purposes;" and having made this startling statement he goes on to prove it, for he returns to the charge again and again, with fresh re-enforcements of witnesses. It hurts our national egotism to be told that Uncle Sam is no longer "rich enough to give us all a farm." We have been in the habit of looking with satisfaction upon the wide blank spaces on the map of the United States and carving them into future States, rich and populous like Wisconsin or Missouri, dotted with towns and cities and covered with a network of railways. Not for a century to come, it was thought, would the political economist have other advice to industrious young men seeking a broad field for their energies than to Go West, and the proffer of free homesteads would, it was confidently believed, long serve to attract to our shores the stream of European immigration. Now we are called upon to reconstruct our ideal future map, and to leave the vast area between the present picket line of advancing settlement and the slopes of the Sierras—a region about equal in extent to that between the Mississippi River and the Atlantic, pretty much as it now exists. There will be, Gen. Hazen tells us, a few more mining camps in the gorges of the mountains, a few more pastoral colonies along the river valleys, and here and there an agricultural settlement in localities, where water can be had for irrigation, but that will be all. The Mauvaises Terres of the early French voyageurs, which they placed in what is now Dakota, extend, it would appear, over fully one-third of our whole national domain.

The fact which Gen. Hazen again puts before the public has long been known, to army officers, miners, explorers, and others who have traversed the heart of the continent, and was probably much better understood by the country at large fifteen or twenty years ago than now. Then the overland journey to california was an affair of weeks or months, and travelers who made it got correct and lasting impressions of the region they traversed. Now, people are whirled through from Omaha to San Francisco in Pullman cars, and about all they recollect of the journey is that they ate antelope meat at some of the stations, saw a few prairie dogs and perhaps a buffalo, and stopped a day or two at Salt Lake to get a look at the Mormons. This new evidence of the almost complete sterility of the region west of the 100th meridian is therefore a disagreeable surprise to most people. No single fact bearing upon the future of the republic is of more importance. It will change radically the nature of our material growth. To use a figure from botany, the country will soon cease to develop, like the exogens, by external layers of new structure, and must, like the endogens, fill out from within. The loose and spongy fabric of our Western civilization cannot be extended for a thousand or fifteen hundred miles further toward the Pacific. It has almost reached its limit. Is this to be regretted? Possibly, looking to the far future, it is, but for the next century or two the wide wastes of arid plains and sage-brus desert that hedge us in may prove a blessing in disguise. There will come, of necessity, a more solid, homogeneous growth of population within the present limits of settlement, and this will bring the conditions for a larger measure of comfort and real prosperity, and a higher phase of intellectual life. A sparse population never attained a superior degree of culture. Art, invention, literature, education, all flourish best where there is a friction of mind against mind.

No one need fear that there will not be room enough for the generations which are to come after us. The Eastern and Middle States can support a much larger population than they now have, and in the oldest of the Southern States there are hundreds of thousands of acres of tillable land growing nothing but dwarf pines and brambles. The great Appalachian region, stretching from the Catskills to Western Alabama, is still a wilderness. When its lateral valleys are cultivated like those of the Swiss Alps it will sustain three or four millions of people. West of the Allegheries the opportunities for growth are almost unlimited. Take, for example, the State of Iowa, with 50,000 square miles of surface—good farming land the whole of it—and a population of only a little over a million. France, with less than four times as much territory, supports 36,000,000 of people. The fat prairies of Illinois, already gridironed with 7,000 miles of railway, will one day maintain in comfort five or six millions of inhabitants. The rich Valley of the Mississippi is well able to support a teeming population. Why then should we lament if the Great American Desert of the old school atlases should indeed be a reality? So far as concerns us and our descendants for many decades to come, the existence of the "Bad Lands" may prove a help rather than a hinderance in working out social, industrial and political problems.—N. Y. Tribune.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President—Lincoln—will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

—Mr. Punch, being asked his opinion of the present ladies' dress, replied: "I highly approve the present fashion, comprehending as it does the highest graces of the two most distinguished models of female beauty—having in front the Venus de Medici, behind the Venus de Hottentot!"

News and Notes.

At a trial in New York, Mr. N. H. Fowler testified he paid Fernando Wood $5,000 for the office of Corporation Counsel. The Hon. Fernando denied this charge, saying the agreement was simply that Fowler should contribute liberally to the funds of the Mozart Hall organization. Mr. Wood will, it is believed draw up the plank of the next democratic platform which arraigns the republican party for faithlessness to the cause of civil service reform.

The City Council of Hartford appropriated ten thousand dollars to pay for labor on the streets for the sole purpose of furnishing work for the needy who could get no other employment. The price offered was $1 per day for a man and $1.75 for a man and team. But these terms are indignantly rejected by the laborers, who express a determination to starve first.

The New Haven Union (soft-money democratic paper) says: "The democratic Senators are afraid that their brethren in Louisiana will become too hot-headed and do something rash. They accordingly telegraphed down there not to inaugurate a new slaughter just at present, or words to that effect."

Apropos of the fact that a Manchester landlord had just turned two poor men's families into the street because these men would not agree to vote the democratic ticket, the Manchester Mirror advises the democrats not to force the fight in that direction, rather unkindly adding that a similar policy of proscription on the part of the republicans "would starve the democratic party of Manchester to death in five weeks."

Barque "Queen of Hearts," from Liverpool October 1, 1875, for Miramichi, N. S., arrived at St. John, N. B., on the 14th inst., after a terrible passage of four and a half months across the Atlantic. She experienced tremendous gales which blew away most of the sails and carried away several spars; lost one man overboard, used up all the provisions except a quantity of rice, and had to put into Bermuda.

A correspondent of the Biddeford Times, vouched for as a gentleman of undoubted veracity, writes that paper from Buxton concerning some animal which has been prowling about his premises, and seems to have progressed by a series of prodigious bounds, the longest distance covered in one bound being sixty-one feet by actual measurement! The beast is supposed to be a cougar, the largest and most dangerous "cat" found in America, and some Saco gentlemen propose to make it lively for him.

Chas. E. Leland, proprietor of the popular Delevan House at Albany, and the aristocratic Clarendon Hotel of Saratoga, has recently opened the new and magnificent Rossmore, of New York City. The Rossmore is conducted in Leland's best style and at popular prices. It is conveniently located, being on Broadway, 42d street, and 7th Avenue, but three blocks west of Grand Central Depot, near the Elevated Railroad; twenty minutes from Wall street, and of easy access to all parts of the city.

The list of creditors of the Sturtevant Manufacturing Company of Lebanon numbers 639, which is the largest list of creditors of a bankrupt ever published in New Hampshire, with one exception. The company's liabilities are over $200,000.

A young Norwegian music teacher who has been stopping in Conway last Summer, was seized by masked men Wednesday night and carried through the streets on a rail for two hours. He then agreed to leave town before Saturday, and was released.

Two steamers, the Strathclyde, bound to Bombay, and the Franconia, bound from Hamburg to the West Indies, collided off Dover, England, on the 17th. The boilers of the Strathclyde exploded and the vessel sank almost instantly. The Franconia was much damaged and had her bows stove in. The loss of life by the sinking of the Strathclyde was frightful. Fifty-nine of the passengers and crew went down with the vessel. Only a few of those on board were saved.

A faint idea may be formed of the extent to which Sebastapol was fired upon by the allied armies and fleets when it is stated that, from a tax of sixpence per hundred weight, which the Russian Government levied upon the proceeds of the sales of old iron, shot, and shell, a sum of nearly $75,000 was realized.

Steamer George Appold, from Baltimore for Boston, ran into the German ship Baltimore in Chesapeake Bay on Monday night, tearing away the ship's lower rigging and chain plates on the port side and bringing down her maintop gallantmast. On the same night the same steamer ran down and sunk the schooner John Henry, the captain and crew of the schooner being saved. They had best get up a reform club on board that steamer.

Steamship Adriatic has been libelled for $225,000 for sinking ship Harvest Queen. The steamship was released on $300,000 bonds.

Superintendent of Education Cardozo, of Mississippi, is to be impeached, the House voting 101 to 4 in favor of it.

Later reports state that but nineteen lives were lost by the disaster to steamer Strath Clyde at Dover, England.

The death penalty abolition bill passed the Maine Senate on Friday, 18 to 11, having previously passed the House.

—The Brooklyn Argus is of opinion that Mr. Evarts, Centennial orator, is already limiting himself to a diet of eagle's eggs. But it doesn't say how many the talon-ted gentleman must eat aerie's equal to the occasion.—Norristown Herald.

"Put the whiskey matter inside," shouts the editor to the foreman. "Ain't that where I always put it?" replies the foreman.

Death of Charlotte Cushman.

Charlotte Saunders Cushman died in Boston on Friday, at a few minutes past 9 o'clock A. M., of cancer. She was born in Boston on the 23d of July, 1816, so that had she lived to see another birthday she would have been 60 years of age. She was the daughter of a hair-dresser, and her early years were full of the hardships and privations entailed by poverty. But faithful study, hard work and brilliant genius enabled her to win the foremost place in her chosen profession, and for many years her name has signified all that is best in her beloved art. She was a lineal descendant of Robert Cushman, who was largely instrumental in sending over the Mayflower, and whose son, Thomas Cushman, came to this country in 1621. She was never married.

A New Weapon.

Mr. Keykel of Passaic City, N. J. has for fourteen years past, in connection with a New York mechanic, been at work on an invention which promises to revolutionize ordnance. There was recently an exhibition in public of the gun. The one used looked like a 12-foot gas pipe, with a half inch bore, carrying a needle-shaped bullet. On the under side of the gun are metallic pockets, each filled with as much powder as the load at the breech. As the gun is fired these additional charges of powder explode as the projectile passes through the barrel, so that before it goes out it receives the impelling force of each additional charge. Being spread along the barrel the danger of an explosion is averted and the force increased to a wonderful degree. The first shot fired was through a solid mass of monitor iron four inches thick, which the projectile pierced as though it was a pine board, and buried itself several inches in an oaken stump, against which the iron had been placed. Then a shot was fired at a target composed of twelve plates of three-eighths-inch plate iron securely strapped together. The bullet went through this. One of these cannons, of six-inch bore, has been completed and will be tested before United States officers in a few weeks, and it is estimated will send a ball from twelve to fourteen miles.

"Ma," said he, "does God go to Sunday school?" "Certainly, my son." "Then I guess I'll get out my playthings and have a play-spell while He's gone!"

We have received from the publisher, Mr. John B. Clarke of Machester, the "History of New Hampshire." Mr. Isaac Walker, Principal of Pembroke Academy and New Hampshire editor of the New England Journal of Education, under date of February 3, writes as follows: "The History of New Hampshire, written by Prof. E. D. Sanborn of Dartmouth College, and published by John B. Clarke, Esq., of Manchester, is a book that cannot fail of entertaining and profiting the reader. These gentlemen have done themselves credit, and performed a good service to the State in bringing before the people, on this the Centennial year of our country, such facts as will help to a suitable remembrance of the heroism and devotion of the early settlers. Although at different times in the past the History of New Hampshire has been written, yet there are reasons why it should be re-written, and we doubt not that many, especially our youth who would otherwise remain unacquainted with the part New Hampshire has taken in the formation and maintenance of republican institutions, will by this means not only gain new ideas but also receive new incentives to noble and patriotic lives. In the author's style all the essential properties seem to be combined. The book is neatly printed and substantially bound. In reading this history we were impressed with the idea that it might be used as a text-book in our schools, with valuable results. There is certainly need of a more thorough acquaintance with the history of our State than is apparent from our own experience. The work merits a general circulation." The book is substantially bound, printed on fine paper, and will be sold through local agents in each town in the State. Price $2 a copy.

The Club Room Question.

Eds. Chronicle:—The "strong temperance advocate," who signs himself "Sobriety," in your issue of Friday morning, throws cold water upon an eminently worthy object, that of procuring a hall or room, suitable for the ordinary purposes of a reading-room, where men can go and inform themselves of the current topics of the day and at the same time be free from temptation,—designed particularly for those reformed men who are not favored with the comforts of pleasant homes, affording them a retreat from their old temptations and from those who would drag them into former paths. As such, we shall give the proposition our cordial support, and we trust all those who can honestly write themselves "sobriety" will do likewise. A REFORMED MAN.

Eds. Chronicle:—The answer to "an appeal" by "Sobriety" is about as fair a show of one of the characteristics of quite a numerous element in our midst as anyone might wish to see. Let ever so respectable and numerous a body of citizens consult on the most feasible method of accomplishing a great and general good, and a minority will at once jump at a chance to oppose the plan, not because it is not good, but because in their opinion, it is not the very best,—or in other words because the idea did not originate in their own fertile brain. Let a convention of the most prominent business men of our city hold a meeting for the purpose of devising means of overcoming a great nuisance in our midst, and there is not an egatist but will step up with "his peculiar modus operandi" for the purpose of creating a dissension, and like a dog in the manger defeat the accomplishment of anything. Let a military company be organized at the expense of the State, the State paying taxes to support the same, and every subordinate officer and even private must have a voice as to how, when and where the orders shall emanate, and expect the tax-payers to foot the bills. Let a large and respectable body of the community desire to establish a Reading Room, which shall be public to all, and at once some great mind will oppose the conception,—and perhaps, if it were possible, attempt to get an act of the city authorities to make it a misdemeanor to have a Club Room, and thereby try to induce the visitors of saloons and doggeries to abandon their haunts. "How long will these things be thus." REVILO.

Jottings.

Portsmouth Grange will celebrate the second anniversary of their organization, on Wednesday evening, March 1st, by a social levee at their hall. The following officers have been elected to fill vacancies: Secretary, Mrs. F. W. Miller; Trustees, A. A. Fernald, J. F. Adams, Mrs. M. P. Jones; Finance Committee. A. M. Pray, John A. Hodgdon, Mrs. Wm. L. Philbrick; Purchasing Agent, Wm. P. Israel.

The Portsmouth Artillery, under direction of Capt. Marvin, are to fire a salute on Washington's birthday.

Mr. John Somerby, one of our oldest residents, and a veteran member of the Masonic fraternity, is now lying dangerously ill at his residence. He contracted a very severe cold at the recent complimentary levee tendered him by the members of the order.

The North church declined the invitation to the advisory council, assigning as a reason "That as a special religious interest prevails at home, they can ill afford the absence of their pastor and one working member for so long a time as deemed necessary by the council."

Mechanics' Hall was crowded again, Thursday evening, at the Reform Club temperance meeting, and nearly fifty names were added to the club pledge book. Over five hundred dollars were contributed to help on the good work, on Thursday.

Commodore Shufeldt advocates the abolition of this navy yard, as a measure of economy. He may not know—but it is a fact for all that—that navy work is done fully as well on this yard as at any other in the country, and at less cost that at any other.

Rev. Daniel P. Noyes, of Newburyport, delivered the second lecture in the course at Kittery Point Congregational Church, on Monday evening, 14th inst. His subject was "John Winthrop and the first settlement of Boston," and all who heard the lecture say it was the finest and most finished they have heard for years.

Acting Sailmaker James W. Wingate of this city has been ordered to the United States steamer Juniata.

What He Lost.

An exchange prints the following as the actual speech of a reformed man at a temperance meeting:

"I have been thinking, since I came into the meeting to-night, about the losses I have met with since I signed the total abstinence pledge. I tell you there isn't a man in the society who has lost more by stopping drink than what I have. Wait a bit till I tell you what I mean. There was a nice job of work to be done in the shop today, and the boss called for me. 'Give it to Law,' says he. 'He's the best hand in the shop.' Well, I told my wife at supper-time, and says she, 'Why, Laurie, he used to call you the worst. You've lost your bad name, haven't you?' 'That's a fact, wife,' says I. And it ain't all I've lost in the last sixteen months, either. I had poverty and wretchedness, and I've lost them. I had an old ragged coat and a 'shocking' bad hat, and some waterproof boots that let the wet out at the toe as fast as they took it in at the heel. I've lost them. I had a red face and a trembling hand, and a pair of shaky legs, that gave me an awkward tumble now and then. I had a habit of cursing and swearing; and I've got rid of that. I had an aching head sometimes, and a heavy heart, and, worse than all the rest, a guilty conscience. I think God! I've lost them all! Then I told my wife what she had lost. 'You had an old, ragged gown, Mary, says I. 'And you had trouble, and sorrow, and a poor wretched home, and plenty of heart-aches, for you had a miserable drunkard for a husband. Mary! Mary! thank the Lord for all you and I have lost since I signed the God Samaritan pledge?'"

—The Saratogian draws the following sad picture:—It was a rather odd spectacle seen last evening on a certain street in this village. A young man, made loquacious as well as boozy by liquor, started for home, but was seen to settle up against a fence post to rest. The post was about the size of a man, and had a round head on it, so it looked very much in the fog like a human being, and hence it was not so very strange that the tipsy young man should get into a loving confab with the post. Suddenly he was seen to throw his arms about its neck, and give it a spasmodic hug. Imagine the feelings of the young inebriate, however, when, instead of returning his embrace, the man's head all at once came off in his arms and he rolled into the gutter with it locked in close embrace. It was a horrible thing, and no doubt his confused and disordered fancy heightened the horror, for he no sooner saw that he had pulled off his friend's head than he uttered a terrible cry of alarm, and staggering to his feet ran off as fast as his uncertain legs could carry him.

— A Canadian wag has issued a series of military orders in imitation of the recent changes made by the Horse Guards in England. "The Dominion navy," he says, "consisting of two screws and a stone boat, will rendezvous at Fort Erie; Toronto will be defended by the city council under command of the mayor. If the Americans do invade, it will only be after due legal notice, and, in the proportion of only three to one in infantry, a dead equality to be rigidly maintained for cavalry and artillery, which are to be on both sides horse for horse, and gun for gun."

—A dealer in rags and junk in New Bedford, a few days since, purchased of a woman 40 pounds of what purported to be rags. As he left the house he noticed that she and her friends who were present were mightily amused about something, though they were apparently trying to conceal their merriment. When he examined the rags, however, the cause was found. The woman, in her anxiety to make weight, had placed in the bag about 30 pounds of lead pipe. As a pound of pipe is worth more than three times as much as a pound of rags, it is evident the profits of the woman on her trade were not such as she had planned.

—A Frenchman who had purchased a country seat was complaining of the want of birds in his garden. 'Set some traps,' replied an officer, 'and they'll come.' I was once in Africa, and there wasn't supposed to be a woman within two hundred miles. I hung a pair of earrings and a bracelet upon a tree, and the next morning I found two women under the branches.

—A certain parson, who is also a schoolteacher, handed a problem to his class in mathematics recently. The first boy took it, looked at it awhile, and said, "I pass." Second boy took it and said, "I turn it down." The third boy stared at it awhile and drawled out, "I can't make it." "Very good, boys," said the parson, "we will cut for a new deal." And the switch danced like lightning over the shoulders of those depraved young mathematicians.

—A stump speaker, in dealing with the "modern physical degeneracy of women," exclaimed: "We must take good care of our grandmothers, for we shall never get any more!" It is so with mothers also, as a Connecticut merchant was surprised to hear, recently. His pastor was visiting him and his wife, and, after warning her that she must take better care of her health, he concluded thus: "Remember, my dear madam, your family. Your husband might replace you; but your children never could!"

—A physiognomist writes that regular white teeth seen at once upon the mouth opening, but not always entirely seen, denote acuteness, truth and goodness. Small, short teeth which are seldom pure white, denote strength. Long teeth always imply weakness and want of spirit. Those which are firm and strong, whatever the color, denote strength and firmness. If the upper gum is much seen immediately on opening the mouth, it generally denotes dullness and coldness.

Centaur Liniments.

So nearly perfect are the recipes of these wonderful pain-soothing and healing Centaur Liniments that we can confidently say they will alleviate any pain arising from flesh, bone or muscle derangements. We do not pretend that they will mend a broken leg or exterminate boils, but even in such cases they will reduce the inflammation and stop the pain. Nor can we guarantee the proper results where the body is poisoned by whiskey. Temperance is as necessary to a proper physical, as mental condition.

The White Centaur Liniment is particularly adapted to all cases of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Erysipelas, Itch, Sprains, Chilblains, Cuts, Bruises, Stings, Poisons, Scalds, Sciatica, Weak Backs, Pains in the side, Wounds, Weeping Sinews, Burns, Frosted Feet, Palsy, Ear-ache, Tooth-ache, Headache, Ulcers, Old Sores, Broken Breasts, Sore Nipples, Sore Throat, Croup, Diphtheria, etc. The most of these complaints the Centaur Liniment will cure; all of them it will benefit. It will extract the poison from bites and stings, and will cure burns and scalds without a scar. The following is but a sample of a thousand similar testimonials:

"ANTIOCH, ILL., Dec. 1, 1874.

My wife has, for a long time, been a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism. She has tried many physicians and many remedies. The only thing which has given her relief is Centaur Liniment. I am rejoiced to say this has cured her. W. H. RING, Postmaster."

It is an indisputable fact that the Centaur Liniments are performing cures never before effected by any preparation in existence,—like Chronic Rheumatism of thirty years' standing, straightening fingers and joints which had been stiff for six years, taking the soreness from burns, &c.

One dollar, or even fifty cents, invested in Centaur Liniment will be within reach when an accident occurs, and will do more good than any amount of money paid for medical attendance. When physicians are called they frequently use this Liniment, and of course charge several prices for it.

THE YELLOW CENTAUR LINIMENT is adapted to the tough skin, muscles and flesh of the animal creation. Its effects upon severe cases of Spavin, Sweeny, Wind-Gall, Big-Head and Poll-Evil, are little less than marvelous.

Messrs. J. McClure & Co., Druggists, cor. Elm and Front Sts., Cincinnati, O., say:

"In our neighborhood a number of teamsters are using the Centaur Liniment. They pronounce it superior to anything they have ever used. We sell as high as four to five dozen bottles per month to owners of horses and mules."

We have volumes of testimonials describing cures of Sprains, Kicks, Galls, Poll Evil, Big-Head, and even Founders, which are little less than marvels. No owner of an animal can afford to be without a bottle of Centaur Liniment, which any day may prove worth twenty times its cost.

Castoria.

Cross, sickly babies and children may enjoy health and mothers have rest, if they will use Castoria Worms, feverishness, teething, wind colic, sour stomach and undigested food make children cross, and produce sickness.

Castoria will assimilate the food, expel worms, and correct all these things. For twenty years Dr. Pitcher experimented in his private practice to produce an effective Cathartic and stomach regulator which would be as effective as Castor Oil, without its unpleasant taste or recoil.

The reputation of his experiment extended. Physicians and nurses rapidly adopted his remedy, to which he gave the name of Castoria.

Castoria is as pleasant to take as honey, regulates the stomach and bowels, and does not gripe. It is adapted to all ages, contains no alcohol, and is absolutely harmless to the most tender infant.

Try Castoria once and you will never be without it.

Foreclosure of Mortgage.

BE IT KNOWN that on the tenth day of August A. D., 1875, I peaceably entered upon and took possession of a certain tract of land and the buildings thereon, situated in Derry in the County of Rockingham and State of New Hampshire and bounded described as follows, viz: Westerly by the highway leading from the dwelling house of John Hemphill to the dwelling house of Joseph Hemphill, on the easterly side of said highway. Northerly by line of land of Joseph Hemphill. Easterly by line of land of John Gregg and southerly by line of land of said Joseph Hemphill, containing by estimation twenty acres more or less, conveyed in mortgage to Frank J. Colligan by Martha G. McLaughlin and John McLaughlin by their deed dated September 17, 1869, and recorded in the Rockingham Records Lib. 428 Fol. 188 and by the said Colligan assigned to Joseph Hemphill by deed dated April 3, 1872, and by the said Hemphill assigned to me the said Cyrilla by deed dated January 27, 1873, for condition broken and for the purpose of foreclosing the right in equity of the said Martha G. McLaughlin and John McLaughlin and all persons claiming under them or either of them, to redeem the same and at the same time publicly declared the purpose and object of my said entry and possession.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in brisk demand at the public libraries are "rapid and sensational." He thinks that parents ought to guide the children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "A worse literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or his hand to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have excites, stimulates and debases the intellect, unfits it for healthy food, fills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most under control. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can never be pure if fed by poisoned as at its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by children and eager children, must influence to a large extent the tone of thought and the drift of action of those whose plastic minds come under their influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in the above to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all editors were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS), there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says: "In

That threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome and equally attractive magazine is required for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in arts and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

REV. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in an article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE for GIRLS and BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more trustworthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

In order to place this magazine within the reach of all, the publishers offer to send the 14 numbers (Nov., '75, to D. C., '76) for $3.00.

Or, for $5.00, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75, the full price of which is 7.00. Or for $8.00 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00.

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the handsomest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,000 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have five splendid serials, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc.; more than equal in contents to 20 volumes of ordinary children's books of 6,000 book pages costing $30.00!!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty Cents.

Bleeding from Lungs, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Consumption. A Wonderful Cure.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 13th, 1874.
R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—I had suffered from Catarrh in an aggravated form for about twelve years and for several years from Bronchial trouble. Tried many doctors and things with no lasting benefit. In May, '72, becoming nearly worn out with excessive Editorial labors on a paper in New York City, I was attacked with Bronchitis in a severe form, suffering almost a total loss of voice. I returned home here, but had been home only two weeks when I was completely prostrated with Hemorrhage from the Lungs, having four severe bleeding spells within two weeks, and first three inside of nine days. In the September following, I improved sufficiently to be able to be about, although in a very feeble state. My Bronchial trouble remained and the Catarrh was tenfold worse than before. Every effort for relief seemed fruitless. I seemed to be losing ground daily. I continued in this feeble state, raising blood almost daily until about the first of March, '73, when I became so bad as to be entirely confined to the house. A friend suggested your remedies. But I was extremely skeptical that they would do me good, as I had lost all heart in remedies, and began to look upon medicine and doctors with disgust. However, I obtained one of your circulars, and read it carefully, from which I came to the conclusion that you understood your business, at least. I finally obtained a quantity of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, your Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets, and commenced their vigorous use according to directions. To my surprise, I soon began to improve. The Discovery and Pellets, in a short time, brought out a severe eruption, which continued for several weeks. I felt much better, my appetite improved, and I gained in strength and flesh. In three months every vestige of the Catarrh was gone, the Bronchitis had nearly disappeared, and no Cough whatever and I had entirely ceased to raise blood; and, contrary to the expectation of some of my friends, the cure has remained permanent. I have had no more Hemorrhages from the Lungs, and am entirely free from Catarrh, from which I had suffered so much and so long. The debt of gratitude I owe for the blessing I have received at your hands, knows no bounds. I am thoroughly satisfied, from my experience, that your medicines will master the worst forms of that odious disease Catarrh, as well as Throat and Lung Diseases. I have recommended them to very many and shall ever speak in their praise.

Gratefully yours,
WM. H. SPENCER.

Ten years ago Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. established their advertising agency in New York City. Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the wildest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is that organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.
The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the Greeide engraved in addition to its literary merits.—N. Y. Evening Post.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—Dear Sir: Over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have been able to work. For one or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took your Pills, when I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hope of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. Your medicine has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended it to several friends, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your packages of Pills, and can truly say they have done my wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. Have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials you sent me there was a mistake. Pills are in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back of the loins, and unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, but all to no purpose, and have concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken half of them I was a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wants to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. E. T. LANE.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
— USE —
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.
"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will be the subject of primary discussion, and enter largely in to politics. In trade, commerce and production industry there are hopes that it will witness the long desired revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance as constituting the claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the access of many new ones. Its intelligence office can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, and discussions partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles for which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice in every victory which proves to be victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country knows and can trust, to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fortifying the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the existing system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have been within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to the public favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the assertions and lies its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe that a journal is a valuable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has been to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh est intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the abler work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished writers on the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

"MARY JANE SIMPSON."

At the time Virginia City, Nevada, was burned, an animal perished in the flames which, the Virginia Enterprise thinks, albeit of the much abused race of mules, merits from her many virtues and great sagacity a more than casual notice. This mule was Mary Jane Simpson, an animal well known to every miner in the Belcher and Consolidated Virginia mines, having worked eight months in the latter and a year and a half in the former. She was of more than common descent, her mother being a thoroughbred Kentucky mare and her father a descendant of a most illustrious family of Andalusian asses, and she retained, to the fullest extent, the excellencies of both parents. She was first purchased by W. H. Smith, Superintendent of the Belcher, and was set to work on the 1,300 foot level, enduring the unknown perils of the descent with a calmness which won the admiration of all beholders. Here, with Victoria Woodhull, a less intellectual beast, she toiled on for eighteen months without seeing the light of day, until at length the incline reached the 1,300 foot level, hoisting machinery was put in, and her labors in the Belcher were ended. She was then, with Victoria Woodhull drawn again to the surface and sent out to graze in one of the richest ranches in Washoe Valley, and here Victoria met her death from lack of the good horse sense that distinguished Mary Jane, for putting her head between two of the boards of the fence surrounding the field, she did not know enough to draw it back again, and so perished miserably. When the Consolidated Virginia 60-stamp mill was built, Mary Jane was bought by the superintendent and set to hauling ore through a covered gallery 500 feet long, leading from the main shaft to the mill, her shift lasting from 3 o'clock in the afternoon till 11 at night. She soon began to learn the signals from the call-bells and whistles, and ran her own work without any one to direct her or jog her memory, and no man could be more valuable than she in her proper sphere. When three bells struck at 11 o'clock at night, she would immediately step out of the track, but instead of going at once to her stable would wait for the men to come out of the shaft, nearly all of whom saved something from their dinners for her. All food was acceptable to her—apples, eggs, pie, roast beef—nothing given to her would she refuse. When visitors passed through the gallery, Mary Jane, with true politeness, would crowd up against the wall and let the ladies pass, needing no orders to do so, but evidently feeling she was the proper thing. During her eight hours shift she would haul, on an average, $30,000 worth of ore, and, during her twenty-six months of work in the two mines she has probably felt the weight of $18,000,000—$10,000,000 from the Belcher and the remainder from the Consolidated Virginia. Benjamin Smith, her groom, a man unmarried, and, as far as known, with no earthly attachment except for Mary Jane, clung to her with an enthusiasm romantic in the extreme. When the fire broke out on the 26th of October, Mary Jane's stable was involved in the catastrophe, and so fiercely did the flames rage that it was impossible to get her out. When all hope of saving her was at an end, the faithful Ben Smith, anxious to shorten her agonies, crawled, at the risk of his life, under the burning floors of the hoisting works with a revolver in his hand; but the smoke stifled him, the flames scorched him, and with hair and whiskers singed, he barely escaped the fate of his beloved mule. When the ruins cooled he went to Mary Jane's stable, and among the ruins found a few charred and calcined bones, and these he placed in a box and, with many tears, buried them just outside the fence of the Masonic Cemetery, placing over the spot a board bearing this inscription, born of the inspiration of sorrow:

Sacred to the memory
MARY JANE SIMPSON.
The widdin was only a mule,
Still, she was nobody's fool.
Stranger, tread lightly.

Thus ends an uneventful history, yet one worthy of contemplation as showing how efforts in the humblest sphere of life may make the lowliest memory blessed.

—"Jennie June" relates this reminiscence of her life in Southbridge, Massachusetts: I had only one enemy in Southbridge, to my knowledge, and that was an elderly deacon's wife. The way it came about was this: I was my nephew's teacher, as well as my brother's housekeeper, and on one occasion, when we had been invited to dine in state at her house, she called out to Egbert in a high voice from her end of the table, "Sonny, won't you have some puddin'!" and to the horror and consternation of his papa and myself, the terrible infant replied, quite as loudly, "I guess if you lived at our house my aunt would make you say pudding." I am sure at that moment I wished grammar and correct pronunciation were with truth at the bottom of a well, but it was of no avail. Going home, my reverend brother remarked, "It will never be forgiven, Jennie"—and he proved to be right; it never was.

—Mrs. Jones wishes her husband was like Sothern's conundrums—"Something no fellow can find out." On the contrary, any fellow can find him out any evening, and pretty late too.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

News and Notes.

The doorkeeper of the House of Representatives whose duty it is to hoist the flag which gives notice that the body is in session, is a faithful devotee of the Confederacy and has no heart for any colors except those which represent the lost cause. He loves the pay that his present position secures, but he cannot yet persuade himself to perform its duties. So he hires a negro to hoist the flag at ten cents a day, but proudly does the duty of lowering it himself. Speaker Keer hardly knows what to do with this over-zealous rebel. He would like to kick him out, but is restrained by the reflection that the act would cost the party several thousand votes in the South.

A South Carolina democratic paper says they propose to carry the next election by "fair or foul means." This it way it talks: "The democrats mean to carry the State at the next election! Such was Leslie's dread warning to the Legislature last week in his speech on the Barnwell-Blackville question and it is the truth. The people are becoming thoroughly aroused on this subject, and are determined to succeed by fair or foul means. The next campaign will be short, sharp and decisive. Every white man will be expected to cast his vote. Those who stand back and take no part in the contest will be branded as traitors and cowards. The State must be carried for the democracy. If the radicals cannot be persuaded to give up the fight by fair means, we must contribute money to the success of the campaign, and if need be resort to another and more terrible appeal. The democrats carry the next election at every hazard."

A Maine woman took $80 pounds of honey, which she sold for $133, from a single swarm of bees the past summer.

Lieut.-Gov. Davis, of Mississippi, has been impeached.

The Mayor of New Orleans and the city administrators are to be investigated on charges of fraud and corruption.

Sam Randall, the leader of the democratic reformers of the House, is one of the original boss salary thieves.

The State essayer of Maine reports that the vein of ore lately discovered on Dr. C. D. Bradbury's farm in North Woodstock contains gold and silver in paying quantities. The mine is on a high hill about six miles from the Grand Trunk railway station at Bryant's Pond.

A Texas marksman writes to Bogardus, the pigeon-mangler, offering to "shoot him anywhere in the State of Texas." Bogardus has sagely determined not to visit Texas this year.

The Milk Producers' Association of Massachusetts and New Hampshire is to hold the fourth of the series of winter meetings in Westboro' Mass., on the 24th inst. The subject to be brought up for discussion is "Taint in milk; the cause and cure." Also, the "Economy of steamed or scalded food for milk stock."

A man registering his name as Charles Davis, of Bath, Me., committed suicide at a hotel in Newport, R. I., on the night of the 15th instant. He took morphine.

Some of the school-boys in North Brookfield, Mass., last week hung one of their number to a stove pipe, and but for his timely discovery it would have proved fatal.

The impeachment scheme at New Orleans seems to be getting weak. It is stated that the majority of the conservative caucus oppose the impeachment of Gov. Kellogg.

European advices states that if the insurrectionary provinces of Turkey do not accept the Andrassey proposals of peace, England will consent to an Austrian occupation of the provinces at the Porte's expense, and will send British fleets to the Adriatic and Black seas. It is further stated that Russia is encouraging Roumania to revolt, and will help that province with an army of 150,000 men if need be. That sick Turkey is likely to be carved up before another Centennial.

The Rochester, N. Y., Union (democratic) complains that although Congress has been in session two months the proceedings of the democratic House of Representatives have neither benefitted the country nor reflected credit upon the democratic party, which is responsible for its action.

Three men were killed by a boiler explosion at Framingham, Mass., on Friday.

The Great Falls Journal says Congressman John H. Burleigh of the first district of Maine has announced himself as a candidate for a third term.

The irrepressible conflict between an editor of the New Orleans Times (a democratic paper) and a democratic member of the Louisiana House was gallantly repressed on the "field of honor." Nobody was seriously hurt, as there was no fighting. Rifles and sudden death for two had been ordered.

Three murderers, natives of Sicily who killed a countryman of theirs in 1874, were hanged in St. Louis on Friday.

While Maine is abolishing the death penalty Iowa is talking about re-establishing it, murders having largely increased in number in the latter State since hanging for murder has been played out.

George Webster, manager of the Kentucky State Lottery, was found dead, on Friday morning, in a ditch near his residence, in the suburbs of Louisville.

Harvey Rudd was shot and instantly killed while robbing the house of Squire Sutherland, at Dublinton, near Tarrytown, N. Y., Thursday morning.

John O'Brien, who pleaded guilty of attempting to kill a republican editor at Shreveport, La., and was sentenced to a year in the parish jail for the crime by a democratic judge, has left the jail, having become tired of confinement. O'Brien's services will probably be needed again by the White Leaguers, so he will not be captured.

The Kern Valley (Cal.) Bank was entered by burglars on the night of the 18th, while the cashier was working at his accounts. They knocked down and chloroformed the cashier, and robbed the bank of $27,000, of which $22,000 belonged to the County Treasurer. The cashier was found insensible on a table next morning.

The monument to dead confederates recently erected at Woodstock, Virginia, by the Ladies' Memorial Association, has this inscription: "They died in the defence of the rights of the South, in the war between the States, from 1861 to 1865. The soldier died for his country. Success is not patriotism, defeat is not rebellion."

Street railroads in the Southern cities are not proving lucrative sources of wealth to their proprietors and stockholders. The Atlanta companies are making no money scarcely, if at all paying interest. Macon has about played out, only a car occasionally being run, and then at a loss. Montgomery has stepped altogether, and the outfit of cars and mules were sold at auction to satisfy the demands of creditors.

"They Don't Know It at Home."

Not long since a lady returning home late at night encountered three young girls in a Broadway car, on their way home from the concert saloon in which they were engaged. The oldest of them was not over seventeen years of age. Their boisterous, uncouth manners attracted her attention. They were all pretty girls, with intelligent faces. One of them was very drunk, and so sick that several times she was obliged to retreat to the platform. The lady listened to them talk. She found that two of them boarded together, the third "kept house," as she called it. She had a furnished room and a night key. "No landlady," she said, "can call me to account for my hours." Suddenly this girl drew a deep breath and said:—"O, girls, I'm going home for the holidays—won't I have to be on my good behavior! Mother'd be killed to see me here." And her face fell as the recollection of home crossed her mind. The others laughed and jeered at her, but until she got out of the car she laughed no more.

When she left, bidding the others good-night, the lady followed her, and made speech with her. At first the poor girl resented it, but won upon by the gentleness and genuine solicitude of the lady she finally asked her up to her room. And there all night the woman staid talking with the unfortunate child, pleading with her, wrestling for her return to virtuous ways. This child, the daughter of a minister's widow, in one of the northern counties, had come to New York two years ago when she was fifteen, to maintain herself and "help mother and the children." The snares of the great city were too much for her, and before many months she fell. "But they don't know it at home," she said. "It would kill mother. I send her all the money I can rake and scrape, and she thinks I make good earnings in the shop. She'd go mad if she could see the shop I worked in! I thought I'd die last Christmas when I went home. I got along very well till prayer-time—I thought I'd die. I tried to be good, but every little while I'd do or say something that would make mother say, 'I'm afraid, dear, that you don't have very refined companions in the store.' It will be worse this year, for I am worse."—N. Y. Mail.

—A Nevada man says of the trade dollar: "A man that would make a dollar the size of that belongs not to this age of enlightenment, but to the dark ages of the world, when they had iron coins, and a stove lid passed for a twenty-five cent piece, and an amalgamation pan for a four bit piece."

A Valuable Work.

The Centennial History of the United States, from the Discovery of the American Continent to the Close of the First Century of American Independence. By James D. McCabe, Author of "A Manual of General History," "The Great Republic," Etc., Etc.

It is well known fact that the great mass of our people are compelled to rely, for their knowledge of the history of their country, upon the outline works intended for the use of schools, which by their very nature are brief, designed for the comprehension of children, and in every way unsuited to the adult mind. There has long been felt a genuine want of a History of the United States, covering the whole period from the discovery of the Continent to the present day, and presenting in a succinct and comprehensive form the history of our country through its various periods, from a higher and more thoughtful standpoint than would be proper in a school history. This demand we are happy to say is satisfactorily met in "The Centennial History of the United States" a work which is evidently destined to take rank as the Standard History of our country. The author, James D. McCabe, is an able and well known historical writer.

We most heartily commend this work to our readers. It is no dry mass of details, no bombastic effort to inflame the national pride, but is a clear, vivid, and brilliant narrative of the events of our history, from the discovery of the American Continent to the present day. It gives a most interesting account of the Indians of North America, from the time of the coming of the white men. The voyages of Columbus, the explorations of the different nations of Europe, and the wanderings of the Spaniards in search of gold and immortal youth, are told with graphic power. The story of the Revolution is related with all the interest of a romance; then follows a clear and succinct account of the formation of the Federal Constitution, the Second War with England, the Mexican War, and the events of our history up to the commencement of the Civil War. The History of the Civil War is related with intense vigor, and with strict fidelity to truth. The author writes throughout with calmness and impartiality, and pleads the cause of no section or party. The book contains an Appendix, giving an account of the approaching International Centennial Exhibition.

It is comprised in one large and handsome volume, of 925 pages, and contains 442 fine engravings on steel and wood. The book is issued by the National Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, whose imprint is a guarantee of the excellence of the workmanship. The price is low considering the character of the work, and each subscriber is presented with a handsome lithographic engraving of the Centennial Exhibition Buildings and Grounds. An Old-Time Team.

The Bennington Banner prints from an old paper a communication from that town dated Dec. 25, 1717, which quaintly tells this story: "A very odd kind of a providence happened lately in our neighborhood, viz: Mr. Zebulon, a framer living about five miles north-east of this township, having trained up a couple of large bears to the plough and other services, clapped them before his sled last week with twenty schippies of wheat for the new city. The animals drew extremely well for four miles and a half, when the halter of the near bear giving way, the farmer set about replacing it; but while he was thus employed, the brute, seizing him by the right leg, tora it miserably, and both bears hauling at once, ran away with the sled, so that with the utmost difficulty he got home in four hours on foot. Messengers were despatched to look for the sled and cargo, and two days being spent in fruitless search, they were given up for lost; but on the third, at noon, the noise of a team near the house was heard, and young Gad Stanhope jumped up to see who was coming, when behold, to his great astonishment, it proved to be two bears drawing the sled into the barn, with no earthly thing in it except four large bears and three cubs. The lad and two men that happened to be then in the house ran nimbly, and, shutting the barn door, with my long gun I shot them all through a crevice."

Couldn't Spare Him.

My friend, Colonel Richard Wintersmith, says the Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer, was walking up the avenue one day, accompanied by Mrs. Wintersmith and another lady. The sidewalk was icy. Just in front of them perambulated a perfumed attache of the French Legation. Suddenly the high diplomatic boot heels struck upon a particularly smooth spot of ice; there was a flash of feet in the air, and the whack of a head with hair parted in the middle upon the cold and unfeeling bricks; then a frantic getting up and a hasty glance around to see who was laughing. * It happened that the risibilities of the ladies who accompanied Colonel Wintersmith were excited. The furious Frenchman produced a delicate piece of pasteboard from the pocket of his silk vest, and proffered the same to the martial Kentuckian.

"Sare, ze ladies you have ze honare to protect have offer me le gross ensult. I sall look to you for ze satisfacshong."

The Colonel bowed with that peculiar grace and empressement which would drive the late earl of Chesterfield mad with envy a hundred times a day were he alive to witness them, and responded—

"My dear sir, I am very sorry that you take that view of it, but, if you insist on satisfaction, permit me to make a suggestion which I have no doubt will commend itself to your judgment. My wife has two brothers, either of whom she could spare more conveniently than she could me, for I am the only husband she has, and she never could get another like me, if I should be slain. If it is all the same to you, please hold one of Mrs. Wintersmith's brothers responsible in this matter."

And the Colonel bowed another of his overwhelming bows and passed on, leaving the astounded little Frenchman absorbed in blank stare at the nearest lamp post.

—Flies cause one-fifth of all the profanity in the world. This is the opinion of a bald-headed man.

—The Brooklyn Argus thinks that one reason why George Washington was such a good man was that he never had much experience with a gas meter.

—The New York papers tell about a "drawback on sugar." That's nothing. There has been a fearful pull-back on 'lasses all summer.—Chicago Tribune.

—The late Reverdy Johnson leaves twelve children, about fifty grandchildren, and several great-grandchildren, nearly all of whom were present at the anniversary of his golden wedding on Nov. 16, 1869.

—There was one old fox which for a period of several years had continually evaded the fleetest and keenest-scented hounds, the scent invariably being lost in the vicinity of a house situated in the woods and far removed from any habitation, and which was used as a storehouse for pelts. At last one day the hounds started the old fox, and away he went in the direction of the house with a pack of young hounds in full cry after him, but on nearing the house he disappeared, leaving the hounds and hunters non-plussed as usual. While the hunters gathered in and around the house discussing the frequent mysterious disappearance of the fox, an old veteran hound came limping up, and entering the door set up a vigorous barking, and tried to jump up on the wall. His singular action attracted the attention of the hunters, and an examination was made, and the fox was found suspended by his tail to a nail in the wall, keeping perfectly still, and looking, unless closely observed, like the pelts with which the walls were hung. This plainly showed that the old fox when too closely pressed had taken refuge in the house and hung himself up on the nail by his tail, which was the reason for the dogs always losing the scent at that particular place.—Nevada Reveille.

A Suggestion to the Nervous.

Robust people who have, all their lives, eaten, digested and slept well, can scarcely be expected to appreciate the blessing of strong nerves as well as those who, having undergone all the misery entailed by weak ones have eventually regained their nerve power. In order to experience the unspeakable relief a change from an enfeebled and unresistful to a vigorous and tranquil condition of the nervous system, the nervous invalid should try a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Under the bracing and soothing influence of that benign tonic and nervine appetite returns, digestion becomes complete and painless, and sleep revisits weary eyes. The causes of nervous weakness are to be found in imperfect digestion and assimilation, and the feeble performance of other vital functions resulting therefrom. The Bitters remove these causes, as well as the nervous symptoms which they produce.

Keefer struck Heilman with a mud ball and the latter becoming incensed drew a revolver and attempted to shoot Keefer. The revolver being taken away he procured a heavy oak stick and struck his antagonist across the head, causing death in a few moments. Heilman and a boy named Mills concerned in the quarrel are in Bloomington jail.

—The great steamer Tokio, of the Pacific Mail line, was twice on fire during her last voyage to Japan and China. The first time two days out from Yokohama, in a terrible gale, a fire was discovered in her coal bunkers, which took three days and nights to quench, and on her return trip from Hong Kong, when four days out, another fire broke out in her store-room, which took two hours to subdue. In both instances, the passengers knew nothing of the danger they were in, which speaks well for the discipline of the crew.

The Club Room Question.

Most men who drink rum are fond of society; because they become temperate, are they less fitted to enjoy society? Must they, like inmates of a State prison, when their day's work is done be immured within the walls of a narrow room? Must they see no persons, and converse with none except such as may be at their own homes? Some people are so unfortunate as to have no place which may be called a home; must they mope around stoves at boarding houses, where there may be none with whom they have friendships, or whose company is congenial, and read solitary newspapers? Must temperate men seclude themselves from all society and become anchorites?

What are the Portsmouth Athneum, Mechanics' Reading Room, or Mercantile Library Association Room, but club rooms? Yet all three of the above named institutions, being endowed with more or less wealth, and somewhat exclusive, are not accessible to all persons; and even if accessible it might not please all to visit them. Sometimes I think that churches even are nothing more or less then religious club rooms, and so expensive that some persons find it difficult to attend such as suit their inclinations.

Why then may not a body of temperate, sober men have a club room where they can enjoy themselves in a rational manner, as well as others? When men banish themselves from the saloons, shall they have no other place of meeting? Is temperance designed to make their pleasures less?

VIATOR.

Marines vs. Watchmen.

The Journal of last week, in an article in opposition to the abolition of the marine corps, quotes from a newspaper article published in 1866, when the same measure of "economy" was advocated by many persons—most of whom, however, like many of those now making so much noise in Congress over reform, knew nothing about the matter under discussion one way or the other. Then, as now, a principal argument of the supporters of the marine corps was that marines would make far better watchmen than civilians; and then, as now, the advocates of the retention of the marine corps considered it necessary to supplement their arguments and assertions in favor of the marines, by undeserved depreciation—slander, in plain terms—of the civilian watchmen. The article quoted by the Journal is as follows:

"It is worthy of attention that no large fire has ever occurred at any of our navy yards where a guard of marines was on duty. Had the New Ironsides been in charge of even a corporal's guard of marines, instead of a number of irresponsible watchmen, the fire never would have occurred, and the Government would not have been a loser thereby of a sum equal to the amount appropriated for the support of the entire corps. The pay of the watchmen for one year in our navy yards, added to the property lost through their inefficiency, would support a marine corps of more than double the present number of men. The difference between a well drilled, responsible soldier as a guard and sentinel, and an irresponsible civilian, ought to be evident to all, and especially to those who have our national property under control."

We not remember the circumstances connected with the burning of the New Ironsides, nor know whose fault it was she was burned; but we do know that within a few years two ships—the California and Ticonderoga—have been saved from burning at this navy yard by the vigilance of watchmen, and that twice within about a year watchmen have discovered and extinguished fires which had caught one of the yard blacksmith shops. And the only fire which has amounted to anything on this yard for a long time—the burning of the pitch-shed—was promptly discovered by a watchman, but owing to the inflammable material could not be put out. The idea advanced that a marine is a more "responsible" man than a civilian watchman is a rank absurdity, so for as this navy yard at least is concerned. We are not assailing the marine corps or its members when we assert that of a large proportion of the enlisted marines nothing is known prior to their enlistment, and that they have no particular stake either of reputation or property in the community where they happen to be stationed; whereas the watchmen on this yard are with but one or two exceptions married men with families, residing in this immediate vicinity, and "responsible" for a faithful performance of their duties not only to the officers of the yard but to public opinion as well. And so far as we ever heard the yard officials have never found fault with the faithfulness of the watchmen; but we remember that some years since the brass carriage-trucks were stolen from under an eleven-inch gun on board a ship lying at the navy yard, with marines (but no watchmen) on guard, neither trucks nor thieves being ever discovered.

And we think the Journal writer makes a mistake when he says all nations have marines in their navies, for we believe the French navy has had no marine corps for years, the seaman doing all the duties performed by both seamen and marines of other nations. But while it is all right for those who think the marine corps should be upheld, to defend it, a very poor way to do that is to condemn by wholesale a body of men quite as respectable and "responsible" as the marines, to say the least.

Jottings.

Don't forget the Promenade Concert and Ball of Dearborn S. F. E. Company tonight. The managers have made arrangements for a pleasant affair, and we predict for them a successful time. Harlow's full Band will be in attendance.

The Woman's Temperance League Levee commences to-morrow evening at Franklin Hall. See advt.

It is asserted that the control of the Direct Cable Company has passed into the hands of the Anglo-American Cable Company and Western Union Telegraph Company.

One of our exchanges, published in the interior of the State, refers to the chronic candidate (the "poor man's friend!") of the democratic party as "David" Marcy! Such is fame.

The entertainment given by the New England Opera Troupe at the Temple on Saturday evening (not a good night for shows, in this city,) was attended by a very good audience, and fulfilled all the promises made in their advertisement. The chorus was the best heard in the Temple for many a day,—powerful, prompt, and true to time and tune,—showing superior natural ability in its members, careful drilling and skillful leadership; the leading artists are too well known in the musical and dramatic world to need any commendation from us, so we will only say that they proved their high reputation to be deserved, and that lovers of really good music who did not attend this opera missed a rich treat.

The religious revivals at Greenland, Hampton and Seabrook continue, and large accessions to the membership of the several churches have recently been made.

Those hard-up Hartford laborers who "indignantly reject" the city's offer of one dollar a day to those who need employment and can get no other work to do, needn't come to this city to look for a better job,—for reasons, see last week's issues of this paper.

On Sunday morning a resident of this city, smoking a Centennial clay pipe, took a Centennial pitcher in his hand and started for a neighbor's to get some Centennial milk to put in his Centennial coffee; but on the way he happened to walk over (or tried to walk over) an extra slippery place and took a Centennial sit-down, bit off the stem of his Centennial pipe, and scattered the Centennial milk-pitcher all over the neighborhood. The Centennial swearing he published was fierce to behold.

Plenty of amusements laid out for this week: Monday evening, Dearborn Engine Company's ball; Tuesday, general lay-back on account of Washington's Birthday, salutes at sunrise, noon and sunset, by the Portsmouth Artillery Co., Capt. Marvin, and in the evening ladies' leap year assembly in Congress Hall; and on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings the Levee of the Woman's Temperance League at Franklin Hall. In addition, the Reform Club will probably have one or more of their spirited and benefit-accomplishing meetings, though the announcements have not been handed in to us as yet.

We have received from the publishers, Sheldon & Co., Dear Lady Disdain, by Justin McCarthy. This is one of his best books, as all those who have had the pleasure of reading it as it has appeared monthly in the pages of the Galaxy are aware. There is a peculiar charm about the writings of Justin McCarthy which is attractive to all readers.

Round My House: Notes of Rural Life in France in Peace and War, by Philip Gilbert Hamenton, author of "Intellectual Life," "A Painter's Camp," etc. This book, as its name indicates, is a description of Rural Life in France, written by one who is able to accurately portray the habits and manners of the people, he having been a resident of the country, and not like most writers on foreign countries a rapid traveller who takes but a superficial glance at the places and people to professes to picture.

G. W. Carleton & Co., of New York, will publish in a few days the first monthly number of a new periodical, entitled Record of the Year—being a sort of Reference Scrap-Book, or Record of nearly every important event during the month worth preserving; together with a careful selection of the choicest current miscellany, all properly indexed. The first number will contain a fine steel portrait of the late millionaire, William B. Astor. Will be edited by Frank Moore, famous as the projector of The Rebellion Record. This curious and original work will be gladly welcomed, we think, by all classes of readers.

"American Wit and Humor" is the title of one of the most readable books of nonsense that we have met with for some time. It is a collection of humorous stories of the bench, bar and pulpit; the parlor, shop and field; the stump, the senate and the sea; in short, it is a book for everybody and everybody will read it with zest. It is published by Harper & Brothers, and for sale by all booksellers.

The Biddeford Times, not receiving sufficient encouragement to warrant a continuance of its publication, has wisely suspended, and the publishers, Messrs. Watson & Sons, will now give all their attention to the weekly Maine Democrat. We should have supposed a paper so deserving encouragement as the Times would have received at least a "living" patronage in Saco and Biddeford.

Death of Mr. John Somerby.

Mr. John Somerby, whose dangerous illness had previously been chronicled, died on Saturday evening, Feb. 19, aged 90 years and 29 days. Mr. Somerby was born in Newburyport, Mass., but has resided in this city for more than an average lifetime; he was an upholsterer by trade, and carried on a furniture business here for many years. He joined the Masonic order in 1819, and became a member of St. John's Lodge, No. 1, Jan. 16, 1834—making him 55 years a Mason and 42 years a member of St. John's Lodge at the time of his decease. At a later date he became a Knight Templar; and in all his associations he ever retained the respect and fraternal good will of the brotherhood. On the evening of Jan. 16, of this year, a complimentary reception and banquet was given by the Order at Masonic Hall, to Mr. Somerby and Mr. Lewis Bruce, the two oldest Masons in this city which was the occasion of a most pleasant interchange of kindly feeling. The funeral will take place under the conduct of the Knights Templar, on Tuesday afternoon, from the Middle street church.

Twenty-five Dollars in GREENBACKS.

A Present to every Customer

Who buys one dollar's worth or more of goods, and a chance to secure one of the above valuable

GIFTS.

I have adopted a new plan for the distribution which will commend itself as being more favorable to the purchasers. Every customer will get a present as before: for the second gift each one will draw for himself (or herself) from a box containing the checks for the more valuable Prizes, so that the first purchaser is just as likely to get the Sewing Machine or $25 in Greenbacks, as the last.

Curious.

Fishes swallow their food whole; they have no dental grinding machinery furnished for them. Frogs, toads and serpents never take any food but that which they are satisfied is alive. If a bee, wasp or hornet stings, it is nearly always at the expense of its life. Serpents are so tenacious of life that they will live for six months without food. Turtles dig holes in the sand on seashores and bury their eggs. Lobsters are very pugnacious, and fight severe battles. If they loose a claw another grows out. Naturalists say that a single swallow will devour six thousands flies in a day. The tarantula of Texas is nothing but an enormous spider. A single codfish produces more than one million eggs in one season. A whale suckles its young, and therefore is not a fish. Toads become torpid in winter and hide themselves, taking no food for five or six months. Serpents of all species shed their skins annually, like sea crabs and lobsters. Turtles and tortoises have their skeleton partly outside, instead of within the body. It is believed that crocodiles live to be hundreds of years old. In South America there is a prolific honey bee that has not been furnished with a sting. In the darkest nights fishes pursue their usual movements the same as by daylight. Seals are as intelligent as dogs, and like them may be made to perform many tricks.

—In a suit between a firm which for nearly half a century has sent brandy to the United States and other firms, to restrain the latter from using an imitation of the former's trade mark, tried at New York lately, Judge Robinson has decided against the plaintiff. He finds that the trade mark is well established, that the defendants are imitating it, that the registering of the trade mark under the United States law merely gives a new remedy, and does not deprive the plaintiff of the old remedy before the State Court, and that in fact, but for one thing the plaintiff would be fully entitled to the injunction asked. That one thing is that the trade mark purports to be placed on "pint and quart bottles," and the bottles do not hold either a pint or a quart. The quart bottles hold little more than 23-30 of a quart and this is a known and deliberate matter on the part of the plaintiff since the firm claims a reduction at the custom house on account of this shortage. A party coming into a court of equity is bound to come up with clean hands. This calling of bottles, pints and quarts which do not hold pints and quarts, says the judge, is calculated, if not intended to deceive customers. It is not necessary to show that any one has actually been deceived. It is enough that the matter is calculated to deceive the unwary and unsuspicious. The rule of caveat emptor is not favored in equity, and cannot be used by a plaintiff to support his demand for equitable relief. The injunctions are therefore denied.

—She is a woman, weighing, it was supposed, about 250 pounds, but her husband could not induce her to be weighed. So the other day he was driving out with his wife, and drove up to Mr. Dorman's store, in Auburn. The wife did not notice that the team stood on Mr. Dorman's hay-scales. While he was talking with a gentleman at the door his whole team was being weighed. He then drove over to Lisbon street and left his wife to do some shopping. Then he drove back to Mr. Dorman's hay-scales and the team was weighed—minus the wife. It was but a simple sum in subtraction to discover the weight of the woman. On getting home the joke leaked out, but his neighbors declare that Caleb will never see another day of judgment in which he will be more sorry for his sins than he did the hour when his wife learned that she weighed two hundred and forty odd pounds.—Lewiston Journal.

Ten years ago Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. established their advertising agency in New York City. Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has ever been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for themselff or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 2, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package of your medicine is more to me than all the liquor took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir.—I received one package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. I have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can say anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.00 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stand up or bear any small article from the poor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally completely lost my health. In the fall of 1874, I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist, and thought I would try the pills just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep my nights and work my days. Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will last. It has cured me of Neuralgia, Constipation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I have not still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be glad to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health Restored to Her Husband. Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

AN ESSAY ON FISH.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Fish may be divided into two classes—codfish and fresh fish. The propriety of dividing them into classes will be at once apparent when we reflect that they are usually found in schools.

The mackerel is not exactly a codfish, but he comes so much nearer being a codfish than a fresh fish that he is for the present classified with the former.

Fish exist in sizes to suit the purchaser, from minnows to whales—which are not fish, strictly speaking. Neither is the alligator a fish; but if we attempt to tell what are not fish this article will far exceed its intended limits.

The herring is not absolutely a fish; he is a suggestion of departed fish. But the strongest suggestions of departed fish are smelts. The herring sustains the same relation to the finny tribe as the Egyptian mummy to the human race.

Fish are caught by measure and sold by weight—that is, they are caught by the gill and sold by the pound. They are sometimes caught by weight—wait till you get a bite.

Contentment is the chief requisite to the successful fisherman.

Surveyors are apt to be good fishermen, because their lines and angles are apt to be all right.

The mermaid and fish woman may also be mentioned in this connection. The former is a good illustration of what is meant by the ideal, and the latter as fitly represents the real.

Many land animals are reproduced in the sea. Thus we have the dogfish, the catfish, sea lions and sea horses, but no sea mules. None of the above have hind legs, and any manner of mule without hind legs would be a conspicuous failure.

It may not be out of place to mention Jonah in this connection. He was not a fish, but was once included among the inhabitants of the deep. There has been considerable dispute as to the name of the fish that swallowed the gentleman above mentioned, some persons arguing that the throat of a whale is not large enough to swallow a man. This objection seems to be inconsequential.

Jonah might have been made in a smaller mold than other men. Moreover, it is certain that he was cast over before being swallowed—cast over the rail of the vessel.

There has been much speculation, also, as to the cause of Jonah's expulsion from the whale's interior, but the theory most accepted is that he soured on the whale's stomach.

He was very fortunate in reaching land since he had no pilot. If he had taken a pilot with him into the stomach of the whale he would doubtless have selected Pauncheous Pilate as the proper man.

Jonah was the first man who retired from the Department of the Interior, and Delano was the last one.

But we digress. Let us return to our fish.

The codfish is the great source of all salt. In this respect Lot's wife was nowhere, however, it would be well to "remember Lot's wife."

The saline qualities of the codfish permeate and percolate the vasty deep and make the ocean as salt as himself. Weighed in his own scales he is found wanting—wanting considerable freshening. He is by nature quite sociable, his principal recreation being balls—fish balls.

The codfish was worshipped by the Greeks; but he is only half as well treated by the inhabitants of Cape Cod—he is simply shipped. Hence the difference between the Greeks and the inhabitants of Cape Cod.

Small fish are usually harmless, but parents cannot be too careful about permitting their children to play where large fish abound, as it is an established fact that the big fish frequently eat up the little ones.

The jelly fish is perhaps the best understood of all the finny tribe, because, being translucent, it is easy to see through him.

The greatest number of fish is eaten on Friday, and the next greatest number on Saturday, because those that are left over are warmed up for Saturday's breakfast.

Argumentative persons are fond of stating that it is grammatical to say the five loaves and three fishes were ate, since five and three were always eight. They should be treated with silent contempt.

Fish are provided with air bladders, so that they can rise from the depths of the sea by simply filling these bladders with air. If any one is disposed to ask where they get the air for such inflation, let him understand in advance that this article is not intended for the solution of petty conundrums.

There are many interesting rumors about fish which might be mentioned, but the foregoing facts may be considered as offish-al.

—A Fort Madison man went into his cow stable the other day and by mistake mixed her up a nice warm mash of saw dust, instead of bran. The cow merely supposing that hard times had come and they were all going to economize, meekly ate her supper, and that man never discovered his mistake until the next morning, when he milked that cow and she let down half a gallon of turpentine, a quart of shoe pegs and a bundle of laths.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

The Democratic Flurry.

If a man wholly uninformed on our National affairs were to read the democratic papers alone, he would naturally imagine that the democratic party (through the agency of the rebel brigadiers in Congress) is really striving to bring about a National reform; but to any one who knows the history of that party and the character of its at present recognized leaders, and who takes the trouble to examine what Congress has done, it is sadly evident the democratic majority in Congress cares only to make party capital, and recklessly ignores the good of the whole people. The reason for this is plain enough. The democrats won a majority in the House of Representatives by loud professsons of "retrenchment and reform" to be effected by them when they secured the power, and much was expected of them when the new Congress met. They at once set to work; soldiers who fought against secession were "reformed" out of subordinate positions to make room for ex-rebels, a large majority of committee chairmanships were given to the South, the number of committee clerks was (ostensibly) reduced, and everything seemed to be going on nicely, when suddenly one prominent democratic Representative made a furious arraignment of the North and all who fought for the Union, another re-affirmed the democratic doctrine that "this is no nation," and Robert Toombs made a grand, old fashioned democratic speech to the legislature of his State, which the democratic legislators received with cheers. The result of these indiscretions alarmed the democratic fuglers in Washington; a trusty messenger (an ex-rebel general) was sent to New Hampshire to see what the effect had been here, and his report alarmed them still more; something had to be done to counteract the pernicious effect of this truth-telling by prominent democrats, and done quickly, so as to have a proper influence on the Spring elections; and the result has been an indiscriminate onslaught upon the appropriation bills, cutting them down regardless as to whether or no the public service will suffer in consequence, and some most remarkable "investigating"—the whole business being evidently aimed at helping the democratic party instead of the Nation. We will give a few ins ances of what these remarkable "reformers" have accomplished.

One of the first retrenchments the democrats accomplished was to reduce the number of committee-clerks in the House; but the green hands they appointed couldn't do the work, clerk after clerk was asked for and granted, and in six weeks after Congress met the number of committee-clerks was greater than ever before.

Another retrenchment proposed is to cut down the salaries of all government clerks. Now it happens that the salaries of the several classes of clerks were fixed by the democrats themselves in 1854, under the Frank Pierce administration, and have never been raised; so that really their pay under republican administration is less than it was under the democrats, by the difference between what a greenback dollar will purchase to-day and what a gold dollar would purchase in 1854. But capital must be made for "the party," and common sense and decency must stand aside. The Congressmen, themselves, however, get $1500 a year each more than they did then; and if they want to go back to the former figures nobody will object. No danger of any such "reform" as that, however.

The consular and diplomatic appropriation bill has been cut down,—and to a figure which must reach injuriously upon the service. The protection and extension of our commerce in other parts of the world are of vast importance to the country, and able men—such men as cannot be hired at starvation wages—at foreight ports and capitals are of great service; the salaries of the four principal ambassadors were fixed by the democrats, under Frank Peirce; —but it is "all republican extravagance," the democratic majority in Congress must make capital for the party, so the diplomatic appropriation bill must be liberally slashed at, even though the best interests of the country do suffer in consequence.

The fortification appropriation bill has been cut down almost to nothing. This is right enough. Mr. Wheeler of New York was the prime mover in the reduction and nearly all the republicans supported it. However, the democrats about "see what we've done" as loudly as though they were the sole authors of the "reform," which consists simply in not at present spending money for works which can at present be done without.

The democratic "investigations" seem even more wildly conducted than their "retrenchment." Instead of demanding facts, the committees seem satisfield with the wildest statements of discharged or sore-headed officials, and gravely publish as proofs of republican corruption assertions which cannot be supported by facts, or facts which cast no blame on any one. For instance, Capt. Murray (whose ridiculous evidence we have before mentioned) said it was common for a ship to be taken out of dock, calked and painted, etc., just before election, and after election sent back to rot. Had he been asked to name a single vessel so used he could not have done it; yet his wild talk serves as an excellent text for the democratic press. So of a statement made by Naval Constructor Varney, that naval constructors who went into yards a few years ago, poor, have since become rich on $2500 a year; but he didn't name one of these men, nor was he asked to. Further, he endeavored to give the democratic party some capital to work on by saying the government set up a private builder on this navy yard—evidently intending to convey the idea that there was some underhand work about the building of the so-called "contract" vessel, the fact being that she (with others) was built under a special act of Congress, to see if the statement so often made by the democrats that vessels could be built more cheaply by contract than in the regular manner, was true.

This sudden democratic spasm of virtue has for its sole end the "good of the party," particularly in the line of counteracting the effect of the indiscreet utterances of the rebel brigadiers in Congress; but if this end is attained in this State by any such means we have underrated the intelligence of the voting population of New Hampshire.

News and Notes.

It is stated on official authority that the Sioux, Cheyenne and Arrapahoe Indians have been and are yet making the most extensive preparation possible for an outbreak in a few weeks.

Reverdy Johnson had $100,000 insurance on his life.

Alexander H. Stephens is worse again. There are no hopes of his recovery.

John B. Gough has recovered from his recent illness and gone to Canada.

Two masked men attempted to unshackle the two forward cars on a Panhandle train near Urbana, O., for purposes of plunder, but the conductor shot one of the men and the other fled.

In Philadelphia a commission of lunacy has decided that Helmbold is insane.

The democrats get along swimingly in their retrenchment programme until they reached the democratic clerks in the House. Then they stopped. It was easy and pleasant to cut down the pay of republican officers, but to reduce the salaries of democrats was quite another affair, not to be thought of for a moment. Still they can't see how to justify the cutting down of the pay of chiefs of divisions in the Treasury Department who work all the year round unless they cut down the pay of the House clerks who draw the same salary and who work but nine months a year. So they think of restoring the Treasury salaries to the old figure. Great thing, this democratic economy.—Portland Press.

Even in New England the soft-money movement is assuming alarming proportions, and there appears to be a strong probability that the inflationists will capture the Connecticut democratic State convention this week.

The New York democrats are kicking badly because that State has no representative on Mr. Lamar's finance committee. Ohio, inflationist to the core, has two representatives; New York, hard-money, has none. All doubt as to the attitude of the democracy is fast vanishing.

The Cincinnati Enquirer (democratic) announces that if the democrats nominate hard-money candidates it will probably turn its attention to agricultural topics during the canvass. From present appearances there is little prospect that it will be obliged to engage writers on agriculture.

The report that our legation at St. Petersburg has been disgraced by the appearance of its Secretary, Gratiot Washburne, as an agent of a Paris circus turns out to be a falsehood, utterly groundless. But the democratic papers will keep on repeating it just the same.

He intimates that he will not come back.

A young man named John Stevens, living in Logansport, Ind., two years ago fell heir to an estate of $12,000, which soon after was paid over to him. Now, having squandered his substance in riotous living, he brings an action against the trustees of the estate for the recovery of its value, alleging that he was not of age at the time the property was turned over to him. This is about the meanest case of "baby-act" pleading extant.

The funeral of Charlotte Cushman took place in Boston on Monday, from King's Chapel.

The Hartford Times is "not aware of any democratic paper in New Haven or in Connecticut which supports the inflation or paper-currency doctrine." Either the Times has not yet seen the New Haven Union, or it intends to read that paper out of the democratic party. The Union is a democratic paper, strongly for inflation, and claims to represent a large proportion of the Connecticut democracy. The Times says: "the democratic party of Connecticut is united to-day, as it has been for the last generation, in favor of a sound currency—the currency of the Constitution." But what does "the currency of the Constitution" mean, when the phrase is used by a democratic paper? The Times is for gold, the Union is for paper. "Who shall decide," etc.

Another Carlist stronghold has been taken by the Spanish government forces, Don Carlos has dismissed his junta and entrusted the arrangement of affairs to his military leaders, the latter are said to be escaping from Spain as fast as possible, and there is a possibility that the civil war is near its end. If votes show which way the wind blows, there wasn't much of a hurricane at the Catholic fair last week, Marcyward. At a Catholic entertainment, not advertised among the Protestant public, and patronized mainly by Catholics, that Mr. Marcy only led Gov. Cheney 120 votes on the cane, is a matter for surprise and sober reflection—to the democracy.—Manchester Dispatch.

Wellington's Opinion of Napoleon.

Wellington has been censured for want of judgment in selecting the plains of Waterloo as his battle ground, French military critics contending that the Duke fought the battle in a position full of difficulty. This charge he indignantly repelled, and, after thoroughly exonerating himself, concluded by saying: "My plan was to keep my ground till the Prussians appeared, and then to attack the French position, and I executed my plan." Wellington was ever just toward those who opposed him. When asked what he really thought of the talent of the Emperor Napoleon as a great general, he said; "I have always considered the presence of Napoleon with an army equal to a force of 40,000 men, from his superior talent and from the enthusiasm which his name and presence inspired in the troops." On another occasion the Duke also said that he thought Napoleon superior to Turenne, Tallard or any of the old generals of former times; but Napoleon had this advantage over every other general, himself in particular, that his power was unlimited. He could order everything on the spot as he pleased. If he wanted reinforcements they were sent; if to change the plan of campaign, it was changed; if to reward services, he could confer honors on the field of battle; whereas, he, the Duke, and other generals, were obliged to write home to Ministers, and await their decision, perhaps that of Parliament; and he himself, had never had the power of conferring the slightest reward on any of his followers, however deserving.

A Suggestion to the Nervous.

Robust people who have, all their lives, eaten, digested and slept well, can scarcely be expected to appreciate the blessing of strong nerves as well as those who, having undergone all the misery entailed by weak ones have eventually regained their nerve power. In order to experience the unspeakable relief of a change from an enfeebled and unrestful to a vigorous and tranquil condition of the nervous system, the nervous invalid should try a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Under the bracing and soothing influence of that benign tonic and nervine appetite returns, digestion becomes complete and painless, and sleep revisits weary eyes. The causes of nervous weakness are to be found in imperfect digestion and assimilation, and the feeble performance of other vital functions resulting therefrom. The Bitters remove these causes, as well as the nervous symptoms which they produce.

Naval Repairs.

The democratic papers are trying to make political capital out of the statement that naval vessels have been practically rebuilt, and at nearly as great a cost as it would require for new vessels, "under the pretense of repairing," since the war. Without either denying the truth of the statement or defending such a method of getting new ships in place of old ones, we may be allowed to remark that, if such things really be, the method is not original with the republican party, having been practised by the democracy long before the republicans even won a national victory. We remember having seen an old-style sailing seventy-four—one of the "serving-mallet" class whose length of keel, breadth of beam and depth of hold were nearly equal, and in which one gun's crew were liable to have their teeth knocked out by the handspikes of the men at the adjacent guns—at this navy yard, many years ago, waiting to be "repaired." Her name was the "Franklin," and she was "repaired"—into being one of the finest modelled and ablest steam-frigates of our own or any other navy; and this was done under a democratic administration, too, and to help the democratic party to political victories. The fact is that the old-line democracy invented the plan of making new ships by "repairing" old ones—and repairing them so thoroughly that nothing would be left of the old ones but their names—when they didn't want to ask for or couldn't get appropriations for new vessels; and if the republicans have followed their example, however wrong it may be for them to have done so they have done no worse than the democrats have done in the past and would do again if they had a chance,—for we are assured the democracy never changes.

The Temperance Meeting.

About half-past six o'clock Sunday evening, people of both sexes began to gather in front of the Temple doors, to await their opening at the hour advertised, seven o'clock. When the clock struck seven, Chestnut street, from the corner of Warren street to Congress street, was one complete jam of humanity; crowding, pushing and fretting because of their predicament. In less than ten minutes after the doors were thrown back the house was filled to overflowing, stage and all, and many went away unable to get seats.

The singing, together with orchestral accompaniment, all under the leadership of Dr. E. B. Goodall, was good, and everybody present seemed to enjoy this portion of the exercises. The president, Mr. John S. Treat, opened the meeting by reading a letter of encouragement from a friend of temperance abroad, after which he introduced E. C. Bailey as the speaker of the evening. Mr. Bailey was formerly editor and proprietor of the Boston Herald (which paper attained a great degree of prosperity under his management) and is a man of keen observation and possessed of a large amount of practical information. He has amassed quite a fortune, and, like a sensible man, proposes to enjoy a portion of it himself, rather than fret his life out in caring for it, and then leave it behind as a bone of contention for the inheritors. He entertained his audience by relating some of his personal experience and observations of the people of the several countries of Europe, especially in relation to those fluids which severally serve them as beverages. For instance, said the speaker, in France it is light wines, about the strength of our currant wines; in Germany it is lager, likewise in Prussia and Austria; and in Russia it is tea,—a very fine article, the like of which is never seen in this country. In Norway and Sweden, lager beer is drank; and, in fact, nowhere in Europe is there any drunkenness of any account, save in Great Britain, more especially in England and Ireland.

A full report of his lecture, (which contained much information) would fill three issues of the CHRONICLE, and so we must forbear. The speaker committed one great error. He spoke an hour and three quarters, a quarter of an hour too long, and tired his audience all out, and destroyed, partially, at least, the force of his good, common sense remarks. We learn that the usual Thursday evening meeting of this week will be dispensed with on account of the Fair of the Women's Temperance League at Franklin Hall, which is to be continued that evening. Next Sunday, another grand rally will be held in the Temple to which all are invited. Mr. Charles W. Gardner will address the meeting, and will be followed by "testimonies" from the reformed members of the club.

Then and Now.

The vast difference between public sentiment in this city on the temperance question to-day, and what existed here years ago, is forcibly brought to our notice by comparing a temperance meeting in the Temple which we attended some thirty years or more since, with the mass meeting held there on Sunday night last. In the former instance not more than two hundred persons were present, a considerable proportion of whom were Sunday school children, (we were of that assortment of good children,) the rest being mainly members of the Washingtonian Society. During the meeting the speakers were repeatedly disturbed and the women and children frightened by howlings and hootings in the entry and under the windows, three false alarms of fire were raised outside, and a brick and bottle were thrown into the hall, the bottle coming very near hitting the writer endwise in the face. Last Sunday night, instead of a small gathering of persons despised (or at least hated) as fanatics and impertinent intermeddlers in other people's affairs, we saw an immense throng of enthusiastic men crowding into the house, with none to dare annoy them even if any wished to. Who says the former times were better than the present?

Hard Case.

A case of undeserved suffering and gross neglect has been reported to us, which, if the circumstances are as stated shows in no very favorable light the gratitude of corporations, and some other things. Our information is as follows:

On the 13th of August last Mr. John Parkins, living on Bridge street, and an employe of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad Company, saw an iron rail lying across the track, and a train approaching at full speed. At the risk of his life, he removed the rail and saved the train, but was himself struck by the cars and had his leg mangled in a shocking manner, since which time he has been helpless. On the night of the accident, Hon. Frank Jones told Mrs. Parkins that he would see that she did not suffer from want; the Railroad Company would pay her husband's salary right along, and he would see she was provided for. When the railroad pay day came Mrs. Parkins went down and got her husband's pay for two weeks,—which was pay up to the date of his receiving the injury, since which time he has received nothing from the corporation beyond their payment of the doctor's bill. In December Mrs. Parkins, not having seen Mr. Jones or heard a word of his promised assistance, went to his office; he was not in, but she was told to call on a specified day. She did so; Mr. Jones was at that time too busy to spend any time talking to the suffering woman, as several gentlemen were there to consult with him about a horse-trot; but she waited until the more serious horse-trot was duly discussed, when Mr. Jones told her he had to go on other business, but would call at her house at 6 o'clock that evening; and in this way he finally disposed of the matter, she never having seen him since. The woman is now at work what little time she can spare from attending her invalid husband, for the sum of $3 per week, to support her husband and herself; but at last has been compelled to ask assistance from the city, which assistance we understand has been promptly granted, as it should be.

Such is the story as related to us; and unless Mr. Jones' conduct in the matter is misrepresented his memory must be short or his reputation as a friend of the poor built on a very narrow foundation.

John Elwyn's Will.

We copy from the Times the will of the late Hon. John Elwyn, admitted to probate at the session of court holden at Exeter on the 15th inst. The following is a verbatim copy of the document, and is printed precisely as it was written. The words in capitals are pen-printed in the will, in large Roman letters. Mr. Elwyn's eccentricities are manifest throughout this most singular document.

We then JOHN ELWYN of Portsmouth in the County of Rockingham and State of New Hampshire being of sound mind and memory but now seventy years old, I mean this instrument to be my LAST WILL and TESTAMENT:

there seems to be a little estate worth the gathering in of; careless it is to one through my whole life of money wickedly careless you may say if you choose though I never threw it very wilfully away I shall die much poorer than I might; for full very full my head always has been from my earliest babyhood of something or other else and never of money, and I never could do two things at one time: still and notwithstanding I never once let my thinkings about money stop at all, nor slacken ever my book work nor head work of what kind soever it might be, still there is a little estate to gather in:

my lands in Portsmouth altogether some seven hundred and fifty acres, this that I am doing nothing with at all is worth well more than fifty thousand dollars is righter nearer seventy-five thousand: then I believe near about already a hundred thousand dollars besides to guess by what it brings in a year: though I am going if I live another twelve-month to spend a few thousands on my ground, still the whole is like to be getting always more, well then it is worth the looking after, it may well be set at a hundred and fifty thousand dollars, is worth more than that to keep and I want my heir to think he gets it NOT from ME but his FOREFATHERS:

my brother and sister the only ones left besides me of the once nine children of Thomas and Eliza Elwyn, the others and all their children all long since dead; there is though a two nephews and I believe thirteen great nephews and great nieces yet, well then though none of us is rich but there ought to be already I should guess some six hundred thousand dollars amongst the whole at my death even if soon, they are not like to be in want nor am I a man of fortune, I will not lengthen this instrument with complimentary legacies:

I leave though SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS for every year of her life to ELIZA BECK of this village the daughter of John Beck: she is only a half dozen of years younger than me, was brought up on my old homestead, is she neither my wife nor my mistress, but my heirs must deal kindly with her to be as if she in some way belonged to me:

all but this six hundred dollars every year of her life to HER: well then I leave the WHOLE of my estate for HIS LIFE to my NEPHEW my brother Alfreds son to ALFRED ELWYN now of Philadelphia now in Holy Orders: next then at his my nephews DEATH I then mean all my ESTATE to go to HIS my nephew Alfreds son in FEE SIMPLE: then if HE should DIE the first and BEFORE my NEPHEW then my said NEPHEW'S life estate to be turned into a then FEE SIMPLE in himself.

clear enough to any court what I mean: I should like to go straight on but this I cannot make it do in the States nor in England: neither is this little anything of a FORTUNE and this the childs mother is very uncommonly clearly to understand from me.

I should like my great nephew but they can do as they choose to call himself THOMAS ELWYN only: the name of my father and his own father, of my great grandfather and I believe of my great great grandfather, of my great great great grand father I know: all in Kent and yeomen of Kent from a very early day: they need not go to the General Court all at least that English law wants to know is WHO the heir meant IS: with a looking forward however to his calling himself and being commonly called by the name the testator says: I should like my heir to call himself THOMAS ELWYN and the THOMAS ONLY.

I should rather they would not sell any of these lands in Portsmouth: NOT ONLY not our old little homestead that of herself is worth very little but NONE of these lands, to KEEP the WHOLE if ANY: if my heir will come to let him LIVE on THEM: it is a good way in the end this keeping of your fathers lands, it roots you deep in your own faith and where you rightest belong and helps keep you from the phantoms of the world: not that I mean a Idolatry of Feudalism, I hate though the restless predatory spirit of this day and this nation, here is from Jeremiah his thirty fifth chapter

And Jeremiah said unto the house of the Rechabites, thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: because ye have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab your father and done according unto all that hath commanded you: therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel; Jonadab the son of Rechab shall not want a man to stand before me forever.

here is another the harmony of the verse to me is almost heavenly, it is of one of the best and sweet of the Hebrews and puts you in mind of our old Newengland way.

And they buried him in the BORDER of his INHERITANCE in Timnath-serah which is in mount Ephraim on the north side of the hill of Gaash:

All other things to be done I can tell my brother. I make HIM and his SON and Mr. JOSEPH R. CARPENTER all of Philadelphia the three EXECUTORS of this my last WILL and TESTAMENT.

Jottings.

Some people think the editor of a daily paper in a small city has a mighty easy time of it—little else to do besides accepting "complimentaries" to all sorts of shows, acting as "honored guest" at champagne dinners, and occupying a bed of roses generally. [A mighty mean bed that would be, by the way.] Persons of this faith are quite welcome, so far as we are concerned, to try editing a provincial daily as a "soft job;" but we find it hard enough work for us, to keep at it when other men keep at their occupations, without working holidays also. When banks, post-office and schools lay on their oars, we mean to.

Washington's Birthday. No CHRONICLE to-morrow.

Board of Trade meeting, Wednesday evening.

A lady fainted in the crowd at the Temple door, Sunday night, and had to be taken home. The rush for seats was tremendous.

The Concord Monitor, after studying all we said and all Capt. Marcy did not say on that "dollar a day" matter, draws two inferences; "first, that the CHRONICLE is a little lame as to the exact time and place of the remark; and, second, that Capt. Mrrcy, having made the statement, substantially as given, but not at the exact time and place, is endeavoring to escape from the consequence thereof by self denials concerning those minor points." We are not all interested as to the second inference; but as to the first we fail to find that we are in any way "lame," either as to time, place, or anything else?

The first annual reunion of the Manchester Artillery Company was held at Smyth's Opera House in Manchester, Friday evening, and the house was crowded to its capacity by the citizens. Capt. Piper is to be congratulated upon the perfect discipline his company has attained, and the pecuniary success of the ball with which the exhibition closed. The Manchester company will probably join the Portsmouth Artillery in their excursion to Philadelphia.

There is talk of reorganizing the old Portsmouth Grays, Capt. George W. Towle, only veterans to be admitted.

This Company was organized and has been successfully conducted for over thirty years, under the laws of Massachusetts, and is recommended by the Insurance Commissioners as being one of the very best Life Companies doing business in the State. DIGESTION IN THE HORSE.

The horse's stomach has the capacity of only about 16 quarts, while that of the ox has 250; in the intestines this proportion is reversed, the horse having a capacity of 190 quarts against 100 for the ox. The ox and most other animals have a gall bladder for the retention of a part of the bile secreted in the intervals of digestion, the horse has none and the bile flows directly into the intestine as fast as secreted. This construction of the digestive apparatus indicates that the horse was formed to eat slowly and digest continually, bulky and innutritious food. When fed on hay it passes very rapidly through the stomach into the intestine. The horse can eat but about five pounds of hay in an hour, which is charged during mastication with four times its weight of saliva. Now, the stomach, to digest well, will contain but about ten quarts, and when the animal eats one-third of his daily ration, or seven pounds, in one and one-half hours, he has swallowed, at least, two stomachs full of hay and saliva, one of these having passed into the intestine. Observation has shown that the food is passed into the intestine by the stomach in the order in which it is received. If we feed a horse six quarts of oats it will just about fill his stomach, and if, as soon as he finishes this, we feed him the above ration of seven pounds of hay he will eat sufficient in three-quarters of an hour to have forced the oats entirely out of his stomach into the intestine. As it is the office of the stomach to digest the nitrogenous parts of the food, and as a stomachful of oats contain four or five times as much of these as the same amount of hay, it is certain that either the stomach must secrete the gastric juice five times as fast, which is hardly possible, or it must retain this food five times as long. By feeding the oats first it can only be retained long enough for the proper digestion of hay, consequently, it seems logical, when feeding a concentrated food like oats with a bulky one like hay, to feed the latter first, giving the grain the whole time between the repasts to be digested.—Cultivator.

—A Guy Fawkes powder plot has recently been discovered in the grammar department of a school out in Wisconsin. Some of the large boys became offended because the teacher, after giving them fair warning, burned the dime novels that they brought into the school to read during school hours. To be revenged for this wholesome and unpalatable discipline, the boys fastened gunpowder between the leaves of their novels, expecting that book, gunpowder and all would go into the stove together. A friendly warning from pupils who loved law and order and respected their teacher, put the teacher on her guard, and thus prevented a most terrible calamity, for the boys had miscalculated upon the proper amount of powder to use for the purpose intended, viz., to frighten the teacher, and had prepared enough to throw the stove in pieces about the room, and half a bushel of live anthracite coals as well.

Bleeding from Lungs, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Consumption. A Wonderful Cure.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 13th, 1874.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—I had suffered from Catarrh in an aggravated form for about twelve years and for several years from Bronchial trouble. Tried many doctors and things with no lasting benefit. In May, '72, becoming nearly worn out with excessive Editorial labors on a paper in New York City, I was attacked with Bronchitis in a severe form, suffering almost a total loss of voice. I returned home here, but had been none only two weeks when I was completely prostrated with Hemorrhage from the Lungs, having four severe bleeding spells within two weeks, and first spell lasting three days. In the September following, I improved sufficiently to be able to be about, although in a very feeble state. My Bronchial trouble remained and the Catarrh was tenfold worse than before. Every effort for relief seemed fruitless. I seemed to be losing ground daily. I continued in this feeble state, raising blood almost daily until about the first of March, '73, when I became so bad as to be entirely confined to the house. A friend suggested your remedies. But I was extremely skeptical that they would do me good, as I had lost all heart in remedies, and began to look upon medicine and doctors with disgust. However, I obtained one of your circulars, and read it carefully, from which I came to the conclusion that you understood your business, at least. I finally obtained a quantity of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, your Golden Medical Discovery and Pellets, and commenced their vigorous use according to directions. To my surprise, I soon began to improve. The Discovery and Pellets, if a short time, brought out a severe eruption, which continued for several weeks. I felt much better, my appetite improved, and I gained in strength and flesh. In three months every vestige of the Catarrh was gone, the Bronchitis had nearly disappeared, had no Cough whatever and had entirely ceased to raise blood; and, contrary to the expectation of some of my friends, the cure has remained permanent. I have had no more Hemorrhages from the Lungs, and am entirely free from Catarrh, from which I had suffered so much and so long. The debt of gratitude I owe for the blessing I have received at your hands, knows no bounds. I am thoroughly satisfied, from my experience, that your medicines will master the worst forms of that odious disease Catarrh, as well as Throat and Lung Diseases. I have recommended them to very many and shall ever speak in their praise.

Gratefully yours,

WM. H. SPENCER.

Ten years ago Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. established their advertising agency in New York City. Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon sent another for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have not been able to work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, thought I could not live long, and lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several persons, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, safely, and they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done me, and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried almost everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth ten times their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this place deal $1.50 for three packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, and Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have spent a large amount of money, great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I resolved to give it a fair trial. I took six packages of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop to pick up a pin. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Trouble Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our material industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country, while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be severely criticised, and reforms to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to be a year of activity, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE is confidently expected to fill its past record in the present performance, as constituting its claim for the earnest regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion and leader in the anti-slavery conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of cliques or corporations. It must speak for what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. It gives no new pledges to advocate the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to select honest men, whom the country knows and can trust; to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money victory won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and it cannot but strike with all its heart for an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storm of 1876 as to win equal approbation and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to nominate some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor to their families, THE TRIBUNE asks a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most lavish expenditure to procure the speediest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff included the ablest accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

DIED OF A LAWSUIT.

A tattered memorandum book was recently found on the steps of a very humble dwelling "out West." Some of the entries are as follows:

My father had a slight misunderstanding with a neighbor, about a division fence, which he had inherited from my grandfather. After several disputes, he consulted a lawyer, who had a good many children, but little practice. This was fatal. A suit was commenced.

Several years ago, my lawyer said I must get ready for the trial. I did so, and went to court every term. But it was postponed upon every pretence which human ingenuity could invent.

1870. March Term—Counsel for defendant moved a continuance, because he was engaged in the Court of Common Pleas. Court granted the motion, but intimated, with great dignity, that such an excuse would never avail with him again.

September Term—Counsel trying a case in an adjoining county. Judge hesitated, but yielded.

December Term—Defendant ill. Proved by the certificate of a good and respectable physician.

1872. March Term—Counsel had made an engagement to meet a client from New York, who could not conveniently leave his business again. Continued, the Judge suggesting that New York clients might find counsel nearer home.

1873. September Term—Carried the title deed to my lawyer. Surveyor examined the premises, said the defendant had encroached on me. But another surveyor (partner and pupil of the first one) said that my deed spoke of a hackmatack stump in the line of the fence, a foot in diameter; whereas, the only tree anywhere near the fence was a pepperridge tree, not more than seven inches in diameter; case postponed, to employ other surveyors.

December Term—Counsel agreed that Court might visit the premises in dispute. Judge refused to go, but said the jury might do so, provided that nobody went with them to explain and confuse. Next morning heavy snow fell, and boundaries were covered. Case continued.

1874. September Term—Motion to postpone, on the ground that the defendant's attorney wished to be absent, hunting, for a few days. Motion prevailed. I remonstrated, but my counsel said the lawyers were very accommodating gentlemen, and the courtesies of the bar required it.

1875. March Term—One of the jurors taken sick. Motion to go on with the trial with eleven jurors. Defendant's counsel objected with great strength of voice, and demanded a full jury trial, pure and simple. I think he called it the "palladium of our liberties." Case postponed.

September Term—Received a bill for retainers, term fees, clerks' fees, and expenses. One item was for the amount of a retainer which my lawyer had declined from the defendant. Offered him the farm, provided I gained the case. He said this would not be deemed honorable practice, but he would take it, and give me credit as far as it went.

Took the cars for the West, coming mostly on freight trains and after nightfall.

DON'T BELONG TO OUR PARTY.

The old Knickerbocker Magazine, under the editorship of Lewis Gaylord Clark, was twenty or thirty years ago for its out-of-the-way anecdotes. Among them was one concerning a party that existed in one of the Southern States about the time of the first election of General Washington to the Presidency, called the "John Jones' party."

The said Jones, after whom the party took its name, was a man of talent, a plotting, shrewd fellow, with a good deal of a kind of "Yankee cunning," in short, possessing all the requisites of a successful politician, except personal popularity. To overcome this latter deficiency, of which he was well aware, especially in a contest with a popular candidate for Congress, John Jones early avowed himself as the peculiar and devoted friend of General Washington, and on this safe ground, as he thought, he endeavored to place his rival in opposition. In order to carry out this object more effectually, he called a meeting of his county, of "all those friendly to the election of General George Washington."

On the day appointed Mr. John Jones appeared, and was, on the cut-and-dried motion of a friendly adherent, made chairman of the meeting. He opened the proceedings by a high and carefully studied eulogium upon the life and services of Washington, but taking care only to speak of himself as his early patron and most devoted friend. He concluded his remarks by a proposition to form a party, to be called "The True and Only Sons of the Father of his Country," and for the object he submitted to the meeting a resolution something like the following:

"Resolved, That we are the friends of General George Washington, and will sustain him in the coming election against all other competitors."

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Jones, after reading the resolution, "the Chair is now about to put the question. The Chairman hopes that every man will declare his sentiments, either for against the resolution. All those in favor of the resolution will please to say 'Ay.'"

A thundering "Ay!" shook the very walls of the building. The united voices were like the "sound of many waters."

"Now, gentlemen, for the opposition," said John Jones. "All those who are contrary-minded, will please to say 'No?'"

Not a solitary voice was heard. The dead silence seemed to confuse Mr. Jones very much. After some hesitation and fidgeting, he said:

"Gentlemen, do vote. The Chair cannot decide a disputed question when nobody votes on the other side. We want a direct vote, so that the county may know who are the real and true friends of General Washington."

Upon this appeal, one of the audience arose, and said:

"I perceive the unpleasant dilemma in which the Chair is placed; and in order to relieve the presiding officer from his quandary, I now propose to amend the resolution, by adding, after the name of General Washington—'and John Jones for Congress.'"

"The amendment is in order—I accept the amendment," said the Chairman, speaking very quickly; "and the Chair will now put the question as amended.

"All those who are in favor of General Washington for President, and John Jones for Congress, will please to say, 'Ay.'"

"Ay—ay!" said J. Jones and his brother, with loud voices, which they had supposed would be drowned in the unanimous thunder of the affirmative vote.

The "Chair" squirmed and hesitated. "Put the contrary!" said a hundred voices, at the same moment:

"All those op—po—po—sed," said the Chair "will please to say, 'No!'"

"No—o—o—o!" thundered every voice but two in the whole assembly, and those were Jones' and his brother's. Then followed a roar of laughter, as Carlyle says, "like the neighing of all Tattersall's."

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Jones, "the Chair perceives that there are people in this meeting who don't belong to our party; they have evidently come here to agitate, and make mischief. I therefore do now adjourn this meeting!"

Whereupon he left the chair; and amid shouts and huzzahs for Washington, and groans for John Jones, he "departed the premises."

—A Western editor apologizes to his readers somewhat after this fashion: "We expected to have a death and marriage to publish this week, but a violent storm prevented the wedding, and the doctor being taken sick himself, the patient recovered, and we are accordingly cheated out of both."

—A man in Kentucky was found dead with fourteen bullet holes in his head, and a coroner's jury returned a verdict of "death from undue excitement."

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President—Lincoln—will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

Study the Records.

The democratic papers have a great deal to say about the corruption of the republican party as exemplified in the National administration, and the superabundant purity of the democratic party as it will be exemplified by their reformation of all abuses and punishment of all wrong-doers,—after the democracy gain full power! We are assured there will be no more partisan legislation then; thieves and peculators will all be cast into the inner darkness of prisons and their stealings taken from them; the purity of the ballot will be assured, local self-government protected,—in short, if we could only believe one-tenth of the democratic promises would be kept in the event of a democratic victory, we should have no difficulty in deciding how to act so as to bring along the millenium. But fortunately for the country these corruption-hating purifiers have been in office before, and no further experiments are needed to enable us to determine the vast difference between the promises of the democracy as to what they would do if they only had a chance, and what the democracy actually do when they get a chance.

We have no need to go back to the antewar days, when the democracy bankrupted the national treasury and ran the country sixty-odd millions in debt in a time of profound peace, for an illustration; we need go but a short time back,—and need not go out of our own State to find out how much opposed the democracy are to partisanship and interference in local self-government, and how devoted they are to maintaining the purity of the ballot of which they prate so much. While the memory of the shamelessly partisan work of the democrats in the New Hampshire legislature is yet so fresh in the public mind,—their dismissing from the bench the ablest jurists in the State that the courts might be made democratic by the appointment of inferior men; the outrageous gerrymandering of cities, and appointment of rabidly partisan democrats to places already filled by republicans chosen by the people; their patent plan for adjusting the representation of towns in the legislature, which even Foster's Democrat denounced as evidently designed to promote fraud,—while these things, with the low trickery which (aided by the wretched subserviency of Weston and the democratic court) disfranchised thousands of voters that the democracy might retain control of the Senate, the "Hart's Location" scoundrelism, the frauds in wards three and six in this city, and the wholesale repeating and illegal voting in Manchester, are of such recent occurrence, a little modesty on the part of the democrats in regard to boasting that they alone are pure and non-partisan would seem to be a pretty good thing.

And what has the democratic party ever done toward punishing thieves and corruptionists within its own ranks? Oh, say the democrats, there's Tweed and the New York canal ring! That's a fact; Tweed and the canal ring; let's see what the democracy have done in these,—the most (in fact the only) prominent instances of democratic reform that we know of. The wholesale stealing of the Tammany Hall leaders was as notorious before the New York Times got hold of some of the democratic accounts as it was afterward; and there was no more doubt concerning the wholesale falsifications of the election returns when Tammany waited until the returns from the most distant country district had been made, before declaring the vote of New York, in order to see how large a fraudulent majority New York city must declare to elect Hoffman, than there was when the Tammany districts in the same city gave Boss Tweed 10,000 democratic majority after his dethronement; yet not a word was ever said by any democratic paper against either theft or election fraud on the part of Tammany, until after the republicans had fairly driven Tammany to the wall. Of course not; the thousands of fraudulent votes were cast for the democratic party, and of the millions stolen by the Tammany thieves many thousands went to swell the democratic campaign funds. But when Tammany had to go the democracy made a great show of helping on the good work,—and how much they really did do is shown by the millions of stolen property recovered from the thieves, and the present close imprisonment of Tweed, Sweeny, Connolly, Genet and the rest of that crowd!

Then there is that "canal ring" which gave Tilden so much capital at the last New York election,—how has that ring fared at the hands of the most noted exemplar of democratic purity? Not so badly as it might, certainly; for not a thousand dollars of all the thousands stolen has yet been recovered, nor is a single canal ring swindler yet in jail, or likely to be.

Compare the different treatment of thieves by the republican National administration, which is held up by the democrats as the epitome of everything corrupt in the republican party. Long after the canal ring was unearthed, years after the Tammany ring was overthrown, the whiskey-ring war was inaugurated by the republicans; and already a large number of the most prominent and influential swindlers are serving out long terms of imprisonment, while their property is in the hands of the officers of the law, and the work is still going on.

From the past acts of the two parties which appears most opposed to corruption,—the democratic party, which promises, or the republican party, which performs.

Sensible.

Secretary of the Navy Robeson, under date of Feb. 11, has issued General Order No. 205, regulating certain matters which have long been in dispute between the "line" and "staff" officers of the navy. It was probably news to many of the liners to learn that instead of being officers by divine right, their rank (just like that of the staff corps) and authority come from the people, and that the statute law of the country is the only source of authority for line and staff alike. This very proper and reasonable order of the Secretary's is as follows:

The service is reminded that the rank of all officers is established by the statute law of the country, and that the rank of officers of the staff corps, as fixed by law, is derived from the same authority as that fixed by law for the officers of the line; therefore on all occasions of official courtesy, where it is customary to interchange personal salutes, it is the duty of the junior in rank to first salute his senior, whether of the line or staff, provided, however, that the officer actually in command of the ship is entitled to the respect due to that position, whatever may be his rank or seniority.

Hereafter on board of all vessels of the Navy on all occasions of general muster, inspections, quarters, reviews and like occasions and ceremonies, the officer at the time in actual command of the ship shall himself be present, and he shall receive in person, as commanding officer, the reports customary on such occasions direct from the heads of departments and officers of divisions.

All commissioned officers of the Navy attached to a vessel-of-war when desiring leave from the ship, shall obtain the required permission from the commanding officer, and upon their return report the same to him through the officer of the deck.

Officers senior in rank to the aid or executive are not required to inform the aid or executive of their departure from or their return to the ship; this is the duty of the officer of the deck, who will communicate such information to the aid or executive.

All orders and regulations of the Navy inconsistent with this order are hereby abrogated to the extent they are so inconsistent.

An English firm has contracted to build the necessary works for supplying the city of Rio Janeiro with water at the cost of $10,000,000.

The woollen mill in Waterboro (Me.,) known as the Ossipee Mill, was totally destroyed by fire, Saturday evening. The fire caught on the roof from sparks from the chimney. A large amount of stock on hand was saved. The loss may reach $50,000; insurance $16,500.

A recent raid of the Internal Revenue officers in Oglethorp county, Ga., resulted in the seizure and destruction of ton illicit distilleries and 15,000 gallons of mash and beer. Twenty-one prisoners, including a United States Commissioner, were brought in, all charged with violating the internal revenue laws.

The House committee on pensions has declared that the first of the democratic investigations on that subject is a failure, as a majority agreed that the report was not sustained by the evidence taken. The democratic campaign document which was counted upon from this source will not, therefore, be issued.

The National Democratic Committee have selected St. Louis as the place for holding the next democratic National convention, and June 24th as the time.

The great four-mile horse-race in San Francisco was won by an Oregon horse named Foster, in 7:38, 7:53; Rutherford K. Pease second; all others distanced. Loud charges of trickery are made by the sporting men who lost money on the race, but they probably cannot be sustained; we would as soon expect trickery on election day in a town or ward where the officials in charge of the ballot-boxes are democrats, as at a horse-race.

Connecticut had a democratic greenback convention at New Haven on the 22d, which was attended by about 200 delegates. These gentry blamed the resumption act of 1875 for causing the panic of 1873, and said other equally wise things.

—Among the applicants for relief at a late meeting of the Kingston-on-Thames (England) Board of Guardians was a man of superior education, who said he was nephew of a bishop, and had formerly held a captaincy in a cavalry regiment. He had run through a fortune of £50,000 or £60,000, and four years ago had made over what then remained to him, amounting to about £1 a week, to his wife and two children.

The Early Stages of Disease.

Those conditions of the body in which its functions are not performed with healthful activity, but singularly and irregularly, are in fact the early stages of disease. They are, moreover, almost invariably the result of local or general weakness, which can only be permanently overcome by an efficient tonic. There is no medical fact more clearly established than that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are admirably adapted to infuse vigor into the debilitated system, and to restore regularity to the interrupted functions. As weakness and irregularity are sure to develop into disease, the Bitters, by overcoming them are the means of averting far more serious evils. Debility most frequently manifests itself in the organs of digestion and evacuation, two important offices, whose vigorous performance is insured by the Bitters which also rectify the irregularity of the bladder or kidneys, and fortify the system against malaria.

The Candidate's Record.

In 1862, at the time when the fortunes of the rebel confederacy were at their brightest and the hopes of the Unionists had faded almost into despair—when European aristocrats were sneering at the "bursting of the republican bubble" and British legislators were declaring that "Mr. Jefferson Davis has made of the confederacy a nation"—at that dark hour of the nation's extremity the democracy of this Congressional district held a convention, and nominated Daniel Marcy (now the democratic candidate for governor of New Hampshire) for Congress, as the best exemplar of the patriotism and principles of the democratic party. The Concord People and other democratic papers say Mr. Marcy's course in Congress—which was in strict accordance with the spirit of the convention which nominated him— is his "pride" and the "boast of his friends" to-day; and such being the case we shall doubtless please them all by giving the following extract from a democratic paper's report of the convention, which shows on what kind of a platform Marcy was elected. And all the democratic papers in the State may copy the article if they want to; we won't growl about it.

An adjourned meeting of the Congressional Convention for District No. 1 was holden at Portsmouth, on the 25th of November, 1862.

On motion, the nomination of DANIEL MARCY was made unanimous.

The committee on Resolutions reported the following:

Whereas, by disregarding constitutional obligations, the warning admonition of Washinton, and the wise counsel of all the most eminent patriots and statesmen of the land, past and present, the country has been involved in the terrors of a terrible and devasting civil war; and whereas the conflict has raged for more than a year and a half, with no other result than a frightful sacrifice of blood and treasure, with but little hope of securing anything by its continuance but ruin to the country, ourselves, posterity, and the cause of free government and civil liberty; therefore—

Resolved, That we, the delegates of the democracy of the first Congressional District of New Hampshire, in Convention assembled, speaking truthfully the sentiments of the masses we represent, declare it to be our solemn conviction that this bloody, fratricidal strife, ought, as soon as practical and prudent, to be arrested by an armistice, and steps taken by means of a commision or a convention of the States to restore and save our glorious Union in the spirit of justice, compromise and concession in which it was framed and transmitted to us by our patriotic fathers.

* * * * * *

O. A. J. Vaughan, Esq., moved to strike out the preamble and the first resolution, and advocated the same, and was followed by Mr. Shaw at Kingston, who also supported the motion.

Mr. Reding of Portsmouth, Mr. Gibbs of Dover, Mr. Hatch of Portsmouth, and A. L. Mellows of Newmarket, addressed the Convention in opposition to the motion.

The motion did not prevail, on the question being put to the Convention.

The resolutions as reported were then adopted.

Jottings.

The opening of the centennial soiree at Franklin Hall under the auspices of the Woman's Temperance League, and for the benefit of the reform movement, was evidently gratifying to all in point of attendance and receipts. The attractions are excellent, the voting on the cane constantly warming up, the gallery of relics interesting, while the "Tree of Fate" finds many devotees. Altogether the bazaar is well worth attending. It will close this evening.

A rose-bush of the "George Washington" variety, long located in the greenhouse of Mrs. S. E. Pearson on Broad street, never bloomed (though long expected to) until the morning of the 22d of February, but on that morning produced a very fine flower. The bush probably heard the bells ringing and guns firing, remembered what day it was, and concluded to celebrate.

The bells were rung at sunrise, noon and sunset, and salutes fired by the Portsmouth Artillery Company, on the 22d. In the evening the Levee of the Women's Temperance League was a source of pleasure to a large concourse, and a social assembly in Congress Hall was voted the best of the season by the participants.

Mr. Isaac Watts Frye, a native of this city, connected with the Boston Courier, whom we mentioned recently as being dangerously ill at his residence in Boston, died on Sunday afternoon at the age of 65 years. Mr. Frye served his time as a printer on the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, and in 1830 went to Boston and was employed on the Courier, occupying nearly every department therein. He was also connected with the Boston Journal of Commerce, and was a frequent contributor to the Commercial Bulletin, the Pilot and other papers. Mr. Frye was twice married and leaves two daughters. He was a talented man, and upright in all his ways. His funeral took place on the 22d.

The pupils of the High School have been engaged for about two weeks preparing a contribution to the State Department of Education, which under the direction of John W. Simonds, Esq., will have at the Centennial a collection of written exercises representing the progress of education in our State and illustrating the work done in the public schools. The exercises, writing-books, essays, etc., filled quite a large box, and have been sent to Mr. Simonds by express.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr. John C. Davis, of North Hampton,, was thrown out of a sleigh in which he was riding with his little son, at the corner of Fleet and State streets. This frightened the horse, which started on a run down State street, the boy remaining in the sleigh until thrown out of it at Walker's coal yard, the horse keeping on down Pier wharf and off the end of the wharf into the drink, sleigh and all. The horse was either killed by the fall, or drowned, and was towed to Badger's island. The boy was fortunately unhurt.

The March number of the Eclectic opens with a timely article on "Montenegro," by Mr. Edward A. Freeman, who throws much valuable light upon the "Eastern Question" in general, and the insurrection in Herzegovina in particular. Other articles in the number are a lecture on "Science and Art; Utility and Beauty," by Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone; "In My Study Chair;" "Richelieu;" "Songs of the Winter Days," by Geo. Macdonald; "Why Have Animals a Nervous System?" by Dr. H. Charlton Bastian; "Statistics; "'Alone in London;" "German Home Life; Part VII.—Men;" "The Unseen Universe;" and "Two Leaders," by Algernon Charles Swinburne; there are also three additional chapters of Mrs. Alexander's "Her Dearest Foe," and Miss Fraser-Tytler's "Jonathan" is brought to a conclusion. The number is embellished with a fine portrait of President Barnard, of Columbia College, which is accompanied in the letter-press with a sketch of his life; and the Editorial Departments are filled with the usual valuable notes on Literature, Science and Art. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms, $5 per year; single number, 45 cents.

A Hero.

Superintendent Flint of the Midland Railroad, after a severe snow-storm, mounted the engine which propelled a snow-plow and proceeded to clear the track. The snow-plow and engine, which started half an hour in advance of the mail train, had arrived at the trestle work crossing the Willowemoc, when, with a sudden crash, the whole expedition was precipitated twenty feet into the rocky bed of the stream below—engine, snow-plough, rails and bridge timbers in one confused mass. All escaped uninjured, except Superintendent Flint. He was entangled in the ruins. Held fast by the iron monster that had fallen across his lower extremities, enveloped in clouds of escaping steam, he was found by his companions, who endeavored to extricate him from his perilous position, and though suffering agony, he rallied his ebbing strength, and called out, "Stop that mail train!" Having said this, he died. The train was stopped, and its load of passengers, that an instant before were rushing on to quick and certain destruction, gathered around and tenderly took up the remains of him who, in his dying agony, had remembered their peril, and by averting it won his right to the title of hero.—Hudson (N. Y.) Star.

A Puzzled Dutchman.

One who does not believe in immersion for baptism was holding a protracted meeting, and one night preached on the subject of baptism. In the course of his remarks he said some believe it necessary to go down into the water and come up out of it to be baptized. But this he claimed, to be a fallacy, for the preposition "into" of the Scriptures should be rendered differently, as it does not mean "into" at all times. "Moses," he said, "we are told, went up into the mountains, etc. Now we do not suppose that he went up into the mountain, but upon it. So with going down into the water; it means simply going down close by or near to the water and being baptized in the ordinary way by sprinkling."

After carrying out this idea fully, he closed his discoure, when an invitation was given to any one who felt so disposed, to rise and express their thoughts.

A number of brethren arose and expressed pleasure with the sound sermon, etc. Finally a corpulent gentleman of Teutonic extraction, a stranger to all, arose and broke the silence as follows:

Mister Breacher, I ish so glad I vash here to-night, for I has been explained to my mind some tings tat I never pelief pefore. A SAFE BET.

Last night, old Mr. Balbriggan, who lives out on North Oak street had occasion to make a journey out in the woodshed to get the hatchet. It was very dark, and as there was no lantern about the house, Mr. Balbriggan took a kerosene lamp, and shading it very carefully with a big tin pan, started out to the woodshed. The wind was rather uncertain and gusty, and Mr. Balbriggan had some misgivings about his getting out to the shed without accident; and every time the lamp flared, his mind misgave him. "I'll bet a dollar that lamp'll blow out," he muttered when the first gust came, but he shied the pan around with great promptness, and the lamp steadied down. Another gust and a flare, "I'll bet a dollar and a half that lamp blows out," muttered the old gentleman again, chipping a little higher as the chances seemed to grow better; but again he saved the light by the timely interposition of the tin pan. "I'll bet two dollars," he cried with great earnestness, as the third gust came, "this lamp'll blow out," but there were no takers and the lamp rallied on again. But a still stronger gust fairly lifted the flame out of the top of the smoked chimney: and the old gentleman hissed in a hoarse, suppressed whisper, "I'll bet five dollars this lamp'll blow out." But it settled down to work once more, and did very well until Mr. Balbriggan got very close to the woodshed; when the wind rallied and came at the lamp from two or three directions at once, and the old gentleman fairly shouted, "I'll bet ten dollars this lamp'll blow—" and just then the door of the woodshed blew violently open, nitting the lamp and the tin pan, knocking them both out of Mr. Balbriggan's hands, and striking the old gentleman a terrible blow in the face that made him see more lights dancing in the air, for about a second, than ever the lamps could send forth. And while he held his nose with one hand and groped around with the other to find where he was, there came through the darkness the voice of the eldest Balbriggan which fell like a falling star: "Raise him out, dad, make it a hundred dollars,—you have got a sure thing on it!"—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

—Another of the New York World's fables: A newsboy was passing along the street, when he chanced to discover a purse of greenbacks. He was at first inclined to conceal it, but, repelling the unworthy suggestion, he asked a venerable man if it were his'n. The venerable man looked at it hurriedly, said it was, patted him on the head, gave him a quarter, and said he would yet be President. The venerable man then hastened away, but was arrested for having counterfeit bills in his possession, while the honest newsboy played penny-ante with his humble quarter and ran it up to $2 62. Moral: Honesty is sometimes the best policy.

—The representatives of Japan at the National capital, Mr. and Mrs. Yoshida, are said to be polite, dignified, intelligent and vivacious. Since coming to this country, Madame has submitted herself to the hands of a modiste. She is said to enjoy the social prominence which she receives in her own house of an evening, to which she was never accustomed at home.

Who buys one dollar's worth or more of goods, and a chance to secure one of the above valuable

GIFTS.

I have adopted a new plan for the distribution which will commend itself as being more favorable to the purchasers. Every customer will get a present as before: for the second gift each one will draw for himself (or herself) from a box containing the checks for the more valuable Prizes, so that the first purchaser is just as likely to get the Sewing Machine or $25 in Greenbacks, as the last.

Foreclosure of Mortgage.

BE IT KNOWN that on the tenth day of August A. D., 1875, I peacably entered upon and took possession of a certain tract of land and the buildings thereon, situated in Derry in the County of Rockingham and State of New Hampshire and bounded described as follows, viz: Westerly by the highway leading from the dwelling house of John Hemphill to the dwelling house of Joseph Hemphill, on the easterly side of said highway. Northerly by line of land of Joseph Hemphill. Easterly by line of land of John Gregg and southerly by line of land of said Joseph Hemphill, containing by estimation twenty acres more or less, conveyed in mortgage to Frank J. Coligan by Martha G. McLaughlin and John McLaughlin by their deed dated September 17, 1869, and recorded in the Rockingham Records Lib. 423 Fol. 186 and by the said Coligan assigned to Joseph Hemphill by deed dated April 9, 1873, and by the said Hemphill assigned to me the said Cynthia by deed dated January 27, 1875, for condition broken and for the purpose of foreclosing the right in equity of the said Martha G. Daily Chronicle.

—A Manayunk couple have a nice little daughter of some five summers. A lady visitor observed to the mother, "What a pretty child you have! She must be a great comfort to you." "She is, indeed," said the fond mother. "When I'm mad at John I don't have to speak to him. She calls him to his meals, and tells him to get the coal and other things that I want. She's real handy."

—It is very easy to jump off from the cars when in motion, says the St. Joseph Herald, the trick being to stop jumping after you ought to be jumpingh. As the train from Omaha was coming into town the other night, a man jumped from the train, alighting all right. An old gentleman, evidently thinking St. Joe was a flag station, was noticed by Conductor Memmingway to follow the practised jumper gone before. The old gentleman was evidently a man of large brain calibre, as his heels went up and his head went down, he alighting on the exact top of it. Waving one foot in the air, as a signal of distress, he valiaty endeavored to insert the other in the watch pocket of his overalls; at the same time throwing a small and very thin valise scornfully at the switch tender, he collapsed. After five minutes of apparently vain endeavor to resuscitate him by the sympathizing crowd, he opened his eyes, gazed vacantly around and muttered, "Mus' have jumped on my 'ead. Gimme my valise, all my clothes and sich like is in it!" The valise was furnished the old gentleman, who proved to be hurt but very little, and he was assisted on his way rejoicing, though a little dazed.

A Few Words to Feeble and Delicate Women.

By R. V. PIERCE, M. D., of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," etc., etc.

Knowing that you are subject to a great amount of suffering, that delicacy on your part has a strong tendency to prolong it, and the longer it is neglected the more you have to endure and the more difficult of cure your case becomes, I, as a physician, who am daily consulted by scores of your sex, feaire to say to you, that I am constantly meeting with those who have been treated for their ailments for months without being benefitted in the least, until they have become perfectly discouraged and have almost made up their mind never to take another dose of medicine or be tortured by any further treatment. They had rather die and have their sufferings ended than to live and suffer as they have. They say they are worn out by suffering, and are only made worse by treatment. Of any thing more discouraging, we certainly cannot conceive, and were there no more successful mode of treating such difficulties than that, the principles of which teach the reducing and depleting of the vital forces of the system, when the indications dictate a treatment directly the reverse of the one adopted for them, their case would be deplorable indeed. But, lady sufferers, there is a better and far more successful plan of treatment for you; one more in harmony with the laws and requirements of your system. A harsh, irritating caustic treatment and strong medicines will never cure you. If you would use rational means, such as common-sense should dictate to every intelligent lady, take such medicines as embody the very best invigorating tonics and nervines, compounded with special reference to your delicate system. Such a happy combination you will find in my Favorite Prescription, which has received the highest praise from thousands of your sex. Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet or ascend a flight of stairs; that continual drain that is sapping from your system all your former elasticity, and driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces that renders you irritable and fretful,—may all be overcome and subdued by a persevering use of that marvelous remedy. Irregularities and obstructions to the proper working of your system are relieved by this mild and safe means, while peri-uterine pains, the existence of which is a sure indication of serious disease that should not be neglected, readily yield to it, and if its use be kept up for a reasonable length of time, the special cause of these pains is permanently removed. Further light on these subjects may be obtained from "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," in which I have devoted a large space to the consideration of all forms of diseases peculiar to your sex. This work will be sent (post-paid) to any address on receipt of $1.50. My Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists.

Ten years ago Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. established their advertising agency in New York City. Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the real strong feature of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the sterling enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion plate, as stories and essays, its poetry and sculpture, are all invigorating to the mind.—Chicago Evening Journal.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaints, Leprosy, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!
☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was so marked, that almost every person who purchased one package, soon ordered more for himself or friends, and, in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a burden, Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 5, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have at times suffered so much, and part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my medicine. I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I procured a box of the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than any medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reported himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can tell anything. In one of my testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth a dollar a pill, and if I could give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.
MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I suffered from Liver Complaint, Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for days to stir or pick up a small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal of money and no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought I would try one box, and if I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, and have no more Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends all notice the difference in my health, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your Condition Pills. I tell her to try and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your Condition Pills. I tell her to try and think it will not last. My health is now good, but I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 19, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rosindale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

WAITING AND WINNING.

"But what will you do, uncle, if you do not come with us?"

"I think I will stay here. This has been my home for twenty-two years, Sophie."

"But who will keep house for you?"

"I will let the house furnished, and keep some of the rooms for the rent."

"And be snapped up by the first enterprising widow that takes it."

Sophie Elwood laughed as she spoke, but her troubled eyes contradicted the merriment of her lips.

"I cannot bear to leave you," she said, after a long silence. "It does not seem right."

"Dear child, it is right," was the gentle answer. "Your husband has the first claim upon you."

"We are so happy," she sighed. "I cannot see why Silas wants to change."

"I can. When Silas was the gentlest, purest heart I ever knew, he told me he was a poor man, while you were my only relative and heiress. He would have left you then, to win a fortune to lay at your feet, but I would not let him go. I told him—and truly—that your happiness was the dearest object of my life, and that there was plenty for all if he would come to our house. You were married; but Silas has never lost the sense of dependence."

"But he should not feel so."

"He knows that the dearest pride of an honorable man's heart is to give to his wife that support he owes her when he marries her. Tell me, Sophie, has Silas ever been so happy as he has since this offer to go to C—— was made?"

"No," said Sophie, reluctantly, "he never has."

"Because it gives him a large salary, and a certainty of increasing it by his own business enterprise, and he can take you to his home without depriving you of any of the luxuries you have always enjoyed."

"I understand now. But I wish it was not so. I have been your housekeeper so long, it is hard for me to think anyone else can fill my place."

"No one ever can, Sophie. But if I am too miserable, I will ask Silas to give me a corner in your home."

"You promise that?"

"Yes, I will promise that."

Sophie was beginning to think that the house never would be let, when a card was brought to her room:

"Mrs. Albert Hutchinson."

Sophie went to the parlor. A lady of diminutive stature, dressed in deep mourning, rose to meet her, and Sophie thought she had never seen so sweet and so sad a face. Sophie decided first, that Mrs. Hutchinson was a lady, in every sense of the word, and, secondly that she had seen her face before, but where or when she could not decide.

"You are a widow, I presume?" she said.

"Yes; it is fourteen years since my husband died. I am wearing mourning for my only son, who was my sole support, though but twenty. I have been in ill-health for years, though I am stronger now. I do not think I could undertake a very large house, but I can certainly make the old gentleman you speak of comfortable."

"You had better call and see my uncle, then, at five o'clock. You can arrange the business with him. I am satisfied to leave him in your care."

So, when Reuben Bradford came home, Sophie told him that she considered the house taken. "And, uncle," she said, merrily, "if this widow captures you, I think I can forgive her. She is as pretty as a picture—though she has lost a son twenty years old—and her voice is as musical as a flute; so make the terms easy for her, won't you?"

"Did she tell you her name?"

"Mrs. Albert Hutchinson."

"What?"

"Mrs. Albert Hutchinson; but her letter of reference from her present landlord was Mrs. Annette C. Hutchinson—what is the matter?"

"It was a very pale face into which Sophie was looking.

"Annette Colton! Little Annette!" he murmured. "Did you tell her my name, Sophie?"

"No; I think not—I am quite sure I did not."

"Do you remember once, when I was turning over some papers in my desk, you found a miniature picture?"

"Yes. I knew I had seen her face somewhere."

"Is it like her now?"

"Very like."

"After twenty-two years. We were engaged to be married once, Sophie, and her father gave me that picture."

"Engaged to be married!" cried Sophie.

"Yes. She was only seventeen, and as pretty as a fairy—a child to me, for I was then past thirty—but a most winsome child. After I had once seen her, I found a great deal of business calling me to Colton's. Engrossed by business, I had never cared much for society, and never certainly for any one fair face, until I saw Annette Colton. Her father knew my love before I had discovered it myself. By every art and device he encouraged it; for in a worldly way, I was a great match for a poor clerk's child. Colton probably thought much more of my bank account than of me. He fooled me perfectly, Sophie, and made me believe Annette loved me, but was shy with a sweet maiden modesty. If I invited her to go out he was over ready. She sang for me. She talked with me, in her low, sweet voice, winning me to deeper love at every interview. I saw that she grew pale when I was tender, that her little hand trembled, and shrank from mine when I strove to clasp it; but I believed her father when he told me it was but girlish shyness. When I asked him for her hand, he was eagerly glad to grant my prayer. When I told Annette of my love, and her father's consent to the wooing, she only whispered a faint assent. I was so proud, so happy, Sophie, as I prepared this home for my bride."

"Then she has been here."

"No. I planned to surprise her. I gave her father a handsome cheque for her trousseau. But one week before the wedding-day she eloped with Albert Hutchinson. I have the letter she wrote me yet. Long before she ever knew me she loved Albert. In the touching letter she had wrote to me she begged me to forgive her if she had wounded me, telling me that she tried to give me the first place in her heart, but could not forget the first, stronger love. She strove to believe she would be a faithful wife to me and make me happy; but by the very force and eagerness of my love I made her see how weak and poor would be her return for it. She bore her own torture bravely; but when she believed she would do me a cruel wrong by being my wife, with her whole heart given to another love, she married Albert Hutchinson."

"Did you never hear of her again?"

"Yes; I heard that Hutchinson was in C—— by a letter sent me from a firm where he sought employment; I wrote a warm letter that secured him a position. I almost insisted upon Colton's sending to Annette the trousseau prepared for her, and wrote her a letter, sincerely expressive of my wishes for her future happiness."

As he spoke the door-bell rang, and a moment later the servant ushered Mrs. Hutchinson into the room. Reuben Bradford had purposely turned his face for a moment away from the new-comer. Memory was very busy in his heart. Very gently Sophie said:

"I hope you will not think us impertinent, Mrs. Hutchinson, if I ask you to tell us something of yourself, before we decide about the house?"

"There is very little for me to tell you," said the low, sweet voice, that made every pulse of Reuben Bradford's heart bound quickly. My husband, as I told you this morning, died fourteen years ago, leaving me with three children. Two of these died in L——, where I lost my husband, and I became very feeble, so I came back here, and educated my only surviving boy, Reuben Bradford."

"Reuben Bradford?"

Yes. He was our first born, and was named after the kindest friend I ever had—the boldest man I ever knew."

"And he too is dead?"

"Yes; he was killed in an iron foundry last summer."

"Why do you not apply to Reuben Bradford?"

The widow's pale face colored painfully, but she did not speak. Reuben turned to face her then.

"Have you forgotten me, Annette," he said, holding out his hand, "or did you think I would not be glad—more than glad, to see you once more?"

The tears were falling fast over Annette's pale cheeks, but after a struggle for composure, she said:

"You were more than kind to me, Mr. Bradford, when I had wronged you deeply. Could I ask more from you than you have already given to me?"

"If you wronged me," he answered gently, "you tried to atone. You did not do me the greater wrong of thinking I wished to force you into a hated marriage."

"I loved my husband," she pleaded.

"And you were right when, loving him, you refused to marry me. But now, Annette, now that he has gone from life and from your love, could you not come to me, to be my cherished wife?"

"Me?" she cried.

"I have waited twenty-two years for your love," Reuben pleaded, "for no other face has ever crowded yours from my heart. All the old love is there waiting for you, Annette."

"Let me think," she whispered. "It is too much happiness."

Then lovingly Sophie led her away, and with a tender kiss, left her alone in the library, to recover from her bewilderment. As she kissed her, she said softly:

"This is the house Reuben Bradford furnished for your home twenty-two years ago. It is not too late to make him very happy by coming to preside over it."

Annette Hutchinson had loved her husband with all the romantic love of her youth, and had mourned sincerely when he died. But Reuben Bradford had been to her a prince of men—nobler than any other. The respect she had ever given him had been strengthened by his generous forgiveness of the wrong she had done him, and for years there was no image brighter in her memory than that of the man she had once refused to marry. She wanted to be sure that she could bring him such love and tenderness as would atone for the past and give him happiness for the future. It was an hour before she returned to the room. He waited her decision.

"Reuben," she said, "if my love can make you happy, it is yours."

So there was a moving, following a quiet wedding, for Silas Elwood and his wife left for C—— on the day Annette Bradford came to take possession of her new home. Reuben Bradford has not yet been sufficiently miserable as to ask for that corner in Sophie's house.

—He held the old shirt up by the neck before discarding it forever. But he wasn't mourning for the garment. He only said: "I wish I had all the drinks again that have gone through that neckband."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

News and Notes.

One hundred and twenty horses were washed away by recent floods in Upper Austria and Moravia.

David T. Sleeper, of Sandown, who is totally blind, is able to reap, mow, thresh, chop down trees, cut up cord wood, make axe handles and ox goads, and can go round in the neighborhood with little assistance or direction from any one, and never finds time to spend in regretting the loss of his eyesight.

The clerk of the democratic House of Representatives cannot reduce a cent of that body's expenses, which, the New York Commercial thinks, is very strange indeed, considering that the present House has increased the list incurred during the time the republican party was in the ascendency. Democratic economy is a queer thing.

A boy by the name of Poor was seriously and probably fatally injured by running into a fence while sliding down hill at Concord, Feb. 19.

The republicans of Laconia had a magnificent opening rally on the 21st. The hall was packed to overflowing, and many could not find admission. The meeting was addressed by Hon. J. C. Burrows of Michigan, who made a very eloquent and effective speech, and awakened the greatest enthusiasm. Politics in Laconia are red-hot and both sides claim the town. The republicans are splendidly organized, perfectly united and determined to win.

Returns from the city and town elections held in Pennsylvania on Tuesday show, throughout the greater part of the State, heavy republican gains.

On Monday morning of last week, a team was found near the chapel at Newton. The horse was dead and the buggy broken. It was found to belong in West Amesbury, and had been killed by over driving.

Capt. John French of Stratham, over 70 years of age, went "log rolling" recently and after getting a huge one into the mill, sawed therefrom 550 feet of boards.

During the past twenty years the republicans have had complete control of the State government seventeen years, and the democrats one year, and yet more of the State's money has been misappropriated, diverted to their own use—in blunt English stolen—by democratic than by republican officials, and the figures show it. And now the Union wants the people to turn out the republicans and put in the democrats who can steal more than seventeen times as fast as their opponents.—Mirror.

The Louisville Courier-Journal remarks with sorrow: "Yesterday the democratic party stood on rising ground. It was the republican party that was down and divided. To-day the relative conditions are reversed. Democrats are at cross purposes; republicans are confident and jubilant."

The Alabama State Journal says: "The city of New Orleans is bankrupt. It is a fine specimen and outgrowth of pure, unadulterated Bourbon-democratic rule. While the State of Louisiana under republican administration is constantly gaining strength, the city of New Orleans under Bourbon rule is just the reverse. But the truth is being made known and it hurts."

The people of New Hampshire will be called upon at the annual election next month, to vote upon the expediency of calling a convention to revise the State constitution, agreeably to the joint resolution adopted at the last session of the legislature. The following is the act of the legislature: "That the selectmen of the several towns and wards in this State be directed to insert in their several warrants calling town meetings for the election of governor on the second Tuesday of March next, an article which shall require the sense of the qualified voters to be taken on the following question, viz.: Is it expedient that a convention be called to revise the constitution?"

The ladies of Laconia had a centennial tea-party on the evening of the 21st, and raised about $100. The Nashua ladies also raised a handsome sum in the same way and for the same purpose, on the same evening.

Governor Connor, of Maine, has signed the bill abolishing the death penalty in that State.

Amelia Foster was shot dead on the evening of the 20th by a former lover named Austin Parks, as she was leaving church in company with Parks' rival.

Dion Boucicault, the dramatist, lost a son by a railroad accident in England some weeks ago, and a daughter by the sinking of the steamer Strath Clyde.

The men employed by the late Sturtevant Manufacturing Company of Lebanon met Tuesday evening, the 22d, to adopt measures for their protection. At the auditor's meeting, January 25, a committee was appointed, which has secured able counsel to represent it. It is rumored that the heavy creditors will endeavor to appoint an assignee who will favor the company.

The case of Moses B. Sawyer, for the murder of Mrs. Emerson at Piermont, was given to the jury at Plymouth at 1 o'clock on the 23d. At midnight no verdict had been reached.

The Belgian steamship Switzerland, from New York, Jan. 30, for Antwerp, while steaming up the British Channel ran down and sunk the brigantide Hero off Folkestone. Four of the Hero's crew were drowned. The Switzerland was unhurt, and proceeded.

The jury in the Sawyer murder case failed to agree, and Sawyer has been released on bail.

A sleeping-car on the Harlem River Railroad was derailed and burned near Wallingford, Vt., Wednesday night. Two passengers were burned to death, and several injured.

Swimming in Salt Lake.

There are no fish in the great Salt Lake. The only living thing beneath its waters is a worm, about a quarter of an inch long. This worm shows up beautifully beneath the lens of a microscope. When a storm arises they are driven ashore by thousands, and devoured by the black gulls. We found a pure stream pouring into the lake. It was filled with little chubs and shiners. The fish became frightened, and were driven down the brook into the briny lake. The instant they touched its waters they came to the surface belly upward and died without a gasp.

The water is remarkably buoyant. Eggs and potatoes float upon it like corks. Mr. Rood and myself stripped and went in swimming. I dived into the lake from a long pier, which had been built for the use of a small steamboat that formerly plied upon the waters. The sensation was novel. The waters were so salty that my eyes and ears began to smart, but so buoyant that I found no difficulty in floating even when the air was exhausted in my lungs. As I struck out for the beach I felt as light as a feather. In spite of all I could do my heels would fly out of the water. I found it impossible to stand upon the bottom. The lightness of the water and the surges of the waves forced my feet from under me. A person who could not swim might be easily drowned in five feet of water. His head would go down like a lump of lead while his feet would fly up like a pair of ducks. The water is as clear as the water of Seneca Lake; so clear that the bottom could be seen at the depth of twenty feet. When we reached the shore and crawled out upon the sand in the light of the sun our bodies were coated with salt. We were compelled to go to the little stream from which we had driven the chubs and shiners and wash off in fresh water before we put on our clothes. Our hair was filled with grains of salt which could not be washed out. The Mormons occasionally visit the lake in droves for the purpose of bathing. Many of them say that their health is improved by leaving the salt upon their bodies and dressing without wiping themselves with napkins.—N. Y. Sun.

—A doctor was discovered holding a young lady in his lap the other evening, but he stated that he was examining her for an affection of the heart, and she remarked that there was nothing wrong in laying her head on her piller.

—So great is the excitement over the recent discoveries at Pike's Peak, and so rich all the country thereabouts, that a citizen of Colorado Springs, as a joke, reduced a stone jug in a mortar, carried the powder to an assayer, and was much surprised to find the jug yielded at the rate of $17.82 to the ton. The assayer is evidently determined not to let the new district suffer for want of favorable reports.

—Von Bulow was interviewed in Chicago by a female bent on giving her daughter a musical education. When she departed, the pianist said, "I admire her mechanism to talk."

—Washington was once asked to dine with Judge Jones. The chair in which he would have sat if he had accepted the invitation will be exhibited at the Centennial.

—Several days since a singular meeting took place in a railroad station at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A divorced wife and her child met the husband from whom she had been separated, and while the father, mother and child stood talking in a little group, the second wife of the divorced husband stood aside, talking with a friend, waiting for the interview to close. The train was waiting for time at the door, and as the engine whistled, the divorced husband hastily bade his first wife and child adieu, and joining his second wife, the two hurried to the train and entered a car.

—The Pall Mall Gazette says of the American girl in England:—"Like the wind, she goeth where she listeth; but every man knoweth when she cometh. She arouses the hostility of English matrons the moment she sets foot on British soil. Few of them are aware that she has been purposely trained to self-reliance and self-assertion, like her brother, from infancy. Such a training shows itself in her manner, which grates as harshly on British feelings as her voice too often does on British ears."

—An extraordinary occurrence was brought to light at an inquest held on the body of a man in London. In a workroom where many young girls were at work a mouse suddenly made its appearance on a table, causing, of course, considerable commotion and a general stampede. The intruder was seized, however, by a young man who happened to be present, but the mouse slipped out of his hand, and running up his sleeve, came out between his waistcoat and shirt at the neck. The unfortunate man had his mouth open, and the mouse, on the look-out for some convenient place of concealment, entered the man's mouth and he in his fright and surprise swallowed it. That a mouse can exist for a considerable time without much air has long been a popular belief, and was unfortunately proved to be a fact in the present instance, for the mouse began to tear and bite inside the man's throat and chest, and the result was that the unfortunate fellow died after a little time in horrible agony. Several witnesses corroborated the above facts, and medical testimony as to the cause of death having been given, a verdict of "accidental death" was returned.

The Early Stages of Disease.

Those conditions of the body in which its functions are not performed with health activity, but sluggishly and irregularly, are in fact the early stages of disease. They are, moreover, almost invariably the result of local or general weakness, which can only be permanently overcome by an efficient tonic. There is no medical fact more clearly established than that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are admirably adapted to infuse vigor into the debilitated system, and to restore regularity to its interrupted functions. As weakness and irregularity are sure to develop into disease, the Bitters, by overcoming them are the means of averting far more serious evils. Debility most frequently manifests itself in the organs of digestion and evacuation, two important offices, whose vigorous performance is insured by the Bitters which also rectify weakness or irregularity of the bladder or kidneys, and fortify the system against malaria.

The Teeth an Advertising Medium.

Every time a lady who uses fragrant SOZODONT opens her mouth, she advertises the article. The state of her teeth is a certificate of its excellence. No spot darkens their surface, no impurity clings to them, the cushions in which they are set are rosy, and the breath that swells through them is sweet as the breezes of June.

The High School Contribution.

The following is a schedule of the written exercises, etc., sent by the High School to the State Department of Education, to represent in the New Hampshire department at the Centennial the work of the school:

1. Drawing of School-house, by Wm. P. Benedict.
2. Stereoscopic view of same.
3. Drawing of Steam Engine, by Chas. A. Davis.
4. Surveying papers, by Albert H. Baker, Wm. P. Benedict and Edward H. Hall.
5. Book-keeping sets, by Addie Randall, Annie M. Mason, A. H. Baker and E. H. Hall.
6. Six (6) Writing Books.
7. Examination papers in Virgil by Fourth Class.
   " " " Surveying "
   " " " French "
   " " " Geology "
   " " " Cicero by Third Class.
   " " " Book-keeping "
   " " " Chemistry "
   " " " Latin by Second Class.
   " " " Geometry "
   " " " Nat. Phil. "
   " " " Algebra by First Class.
   " " " Latin "
   " " " Ancient Hist. "
8. Essays:—"My New Friends," by Emma G. Hall; "School Life" by Eleanor G. Hanscom; "Blessed are the Horny Hands of Toil," by Katie J. Morrissey; "Je marche lentement mais je marche," by C. Gertrude Neil; "June Day" by Josie F. Prescott; "Lilies," by Nellie E. Kaul; "Sacred Art," by Mary E. Stewart; "Our Naval Heroes," by Edward H. Hall.
9. Course of Study, List of Text-Books and Order of Exercises.
10. Plan of School-room, by A. H. Baker.

These papers were mostly chosen from the regular school work, and were tastefully arranged with white and blue ribbons. The Committee, and others who have seen the work, consider it highly creditable. The teachers are naturally well pleased, and think the school will compare favorably with any other in the State.

Temperance.

There can be but little doubt that the practice of using mixed drink is much fortified by the persistent recommendation to make cold, and even iced water the sole drink. We find the former term very prominent in temperance literature and songs, and the writer once heard a man madly intimate that the water of the Arctic regions is ready for use. My impression is that a little of saltness as well as coldness would have to be "qualified" out of it. Observation upon the habits of cattle show their preference for the warmest springs, and is a very common conclusion that they would not drink the full quanity necessary if obliged to put their noses through the ice for it.

To subserve the cause of temperance the terms "cold" and "iced" should be changed to "pure"—so give us according to the divine ordinance "as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be" for the universal drink, pure water. A. J. P.

ELIOT.

The centennial year is one of much rejoicing to Col. Luther Junkins, he being the father of twins weighing 18 lbs. Beat this for a centennial offering. The Colonel is hale and hearty and 55 years old.

Mr. James Merrill fell on the ice recently and dislocated his shoulder. He had just recovered from a hurt received several months since.

A young son of Mr. Joshua Frye, while coasting on the 16th, was thrown against a tree, breaking his leg. Wm. Frye and daughter were recently thrown from a wagon; Miss Frye was picked up in a senseless condition, but Mr. Frye escaped unhurt.

Three sons of Eliot are students at the Brunswick Medical School, expecting to be M. D.'s.

We are enjoying protracted meetings at South Eliot where much good work is being accomplished.

Leap year parties are in vogue here, and many of the retiring young men's hearts beat high in anticipation. J. M.

YORK.

Drs. Potter of Portsmouth and Hawkes of York, on Friday last removed a fatty tumor, weighing five and one-half pounds from the face of Mrs. Hannah Beadle of this town, an old lady of 83 years. She bore the operation nobly, without taking ether or chloroform. P.

KITTERY.

Mr. John Rogers of Kittery has in his possession $150 in Continental money, of the denominations from two to eight dollars, issued in the years from 1775 to 1778. These bills have been in the possession of the family since the above dates; also a commission granted to Capt. Richard Rogers,—dated April 29th, 1776; a flag staff with shield on top, that was carried at Bunker Hill, and a gun that has been in the family possession for four generations, Mr. Rogers' great grandfather having moved it from hill to hill as he hoed his corn, for protection from the Indians. V.

Jottings.

The Woman's Temperance League has concluded to hold one more soiree at Franklin Hall this evening. The programme will contain several new features. The fancy goods tables will be well supplied and refreshments will be in abundance. It is the intention to make this the best entertainment of the series, and as it is the last, and the cause to which the proceeds are to be devoted so worthy, these self-sacrificing ladies are deserving of large patronage. The tickets for this evening will be only 15 cents, which will doubtless secure a full house.

It is currently reported that several individuals who have no visible means of support—not even a dollar a day—are regularly fed and housed at the police station, for the good and sufficient reason that if they should be sent to the town farm or Brentwood their votes would be lost to the democracy at the coming election, and it doesn't cost "the party" anything to support them here on municipal crackers and coffee.

Thursday was as uncomfortable a day as has been furnished us this winter,—a strong wind blowing, and temperature low. We have had colder days, but none so cold when there was so much breeze. The snow flew around some, outside the city, making it very unpleasant for travellers and almost blocking the roads in some places with drifts.

The ship Triumphant, of Boston, Capt. Henry Libby, arrived at Liverpool February 22, after a short passage of 106 days from San Francisco. She carried out a cargo of wheat valued at $105,094. Capt. Libby is a Portsmouth man, and worthily maintains the well-earned reputation of Portsmouth shipmasters for making about as quick passages as can be made.

We have received from the publishers, White, Smith & Co., Boston, the March number of the Folio, a journal of music, drama, art and literature. This number contains, beside the usual amount of music and musical miscellany, a full-page portrait of Rossini.

The March number of The Republic magazine has been received. As we are about to enter upon one of the most active Presidential campaigns of our history we commend to every citizen who desires to inform himself of the issues of the hour this indispensable political monthly. It treats all subjects with candor and ability, and affords a fund of political material to be found in no other periodical. It should receive the liberal support of every loyal man North and South. Among its leading articles for March we note the following; "What must be done in the Crisis?" "Summary of Field Work of Hayden's Geological Survey." "The Result of False Ideas of Government." "Treasury Book-Keeping." "What is the Government of the United States?" "Notes on European Travel." "Work of the Forty-fourth Congress." Send two dollars for a year's subscription to Republic Publishing Company, Washington, D. C.

The Veterans' Ball.

The grand ball of the Amoskeag Veterans, at Manchester, was as complete a success as their reunions always are, nothing being left undone by the corps to secure the pleasure of their guests. The Germania Band of Boston furnished the music, given an hour's concert before the dancing commenced, which was kept up until daylight, the Veterans throughout maintaining their old-time reputation for unwearied attention to their visitors. In the long list of noted guests we notice the names of Gov. Cheney and wife, Ex-Gov. Smyth and wife, Ex-Gov. Straw, Adjutant-General Cross, Gen. Natt Head and wife, Gen. A. F. Stevens, Capt. N. N. Noyes of the Boston Light Infantry, Capt. Frank McAuliffe of the New York 8th Regt., and many others. The visitors named in the Mirror as being present from this city are as follows: Mrs. L. V. Newell, Miss Perkins, Miss Sise, Miss Loyd, Lieut. Rhodes, of the navy yard, G. W. Marston, R. E. Rider, C. A. Hazlett.

The Veterans' Ball is always the event of the season, and each succeeding reunion is always voted to be a little ahead of any previous one by the participants; and this year furnishes no exception to the rule, the vistors from this city being quite enthusiastic in their praises.

The Mirror reporter says "there were but few toilets in bad taste, and they were elegant and elaborate as a whole," and gives a column or more to descriptions of some of them. From this column we take the following:

"Portsmouth sent a considerable delegation to the levee, and among them was one whose beauty and graceful dancing excited much admiring comment, Miss Perkins. She wore a lemon-colored silk, with overdress of tulle and trimmed with crepe lisse and point applique, and a profusion of scarlet verbenas. In the party was Mrs. Newell, who wore a handsome pale blue silk, profusely trimmed with pink roses. Miss Emma F. Lowd, also of Portsmouth, wore a black silk very handsomely trimmed, white cashmere net sleeves, and the same material draped over the folds in the back of the skirt, basque and flounces trimmed with white cashmere lace, and scarlet and white flowers for garniture."

The annual meeting of the Veterans was held at their armory at noon on the 22d, when the following officers were elected:

Commander, M. V. B. Edgerly.

Company A—Captain D. A. Simons; 1st Lieut., Henry C. Merrill; 2d Lieut., E. C. Shirley.

Company B—Captain, James F. Briggs; 1st Lieut., Z. Foster Campbell; 2d Lieut., E. H. Hobbs.

Clerk—William H. Patten.

Treasurer—George B. Chandler.

Executive Committee—Thomas Morgan, A. C. Wallace, Lewis Simons, William G. Hoyt, H. K. Slayton,

The Veterans voted to accept the invitation to go to Philadelphia as a part of the Centennial Legion, and Col. Edgerly and the executive committee were empowered to make all arrangements.

Tobacco Talk.

A German iconoclast maintains that tobacco was familiar to the Old World before the year 1492. He claims to have found two mentions of the weed antedating the discovery of America. First—According to Sale the Koran contains a prophecy of Mahomet couched in these words: "In later times there will be men calling themselves Moslems; but they will be Moslems only in name, for they will smoke tambaco." Second—In the writings of a Rabbinical author who lived before Columbus occurs a passage which Buxtorf translates thus: "The Persians eat tabbahi without salt." The verb in this passage (achat) signifies not only "to eat," but also "to drink." And very many Oriental nations say "to drink tobacco" instead of to smoke, this phrase reaching so far east as Japan. Among the wares imported into Alexandria during the reign of the Emperor Commodus was one indicated by the name Duakkha; very similar to the name Tuakko, applied to tobacco by the inhabitants of the Mosquito coast and many Caffirs, while the name among the Cochin Chinese is Tuakhau. The narghileh, or water-pipe, furthermore, is found represented in the ruins of Nakschi Rustun, an ancient city of Persia.

—Said a dry goods dealer: "Of course we lose money on every piece of these goods; but, my dear madam, we sell such enormous quantities of them."

Daily Chronicle.

—A group of gentlemen were conversing on the street, after a lecture by the noted Henry Clay Dean, and among them was Rev. J. A. Nash, a pioneer settler, and well-known by the Baptist denomination. Mr. Dean came up and placing his hand on the shoulder of Mr. Nash, said: "Brother Nash, I like you; you are a good man; but I don't think much of your goose-pond salvation plan." A hearty laugh was the response to the brusque expression. Mr. Nash very quietly replied: "No, Mr. Dean, if newspaper accounts are correct, you don't believe in either spiritual or physical regeneration by water." The tables thus nicely turned discomfited the apostle of dirt, and as he moved off, he declared that "no man in Des Moines bathed oftener than he did."

—"Have you any elm wood," said a seedy looking customer to a dealer in wood. "Oh, yes," was the reply; "some down on the wharf." The fellow bought a log. The next day he duplicated the purchase, and the day after. "What are you doing with this wood?" asked the dealer. "Every log is worth ten dollars since the Great Elm tumbled down," was the significant reply. Boston Journal.

—A New Hampshire paper says that the English sparrow which drives out native birds is a good deal like the distinguished foreign Counts who are reported at our summer watering-places, and who usually turn out to be Bavarian barbers or something of that sort.

—The Golden Rule (Rev. Adirondack Murray's paper) copies a story from the Traveller to the effect that Mr. Murray bore upon his stalwart shoulders to his edifice a huge branch of the old elm, and complains that since the appearance of the story he has been terribly beset by relic fiends for pieces of wood; whereupon the business manager of the paper states, "first, that Mr. Murray wishes to use all the wood himself; second, that Mr. Murray has given it all away; and, third, that Mr. Murray never got a piece of the old elm, that he was out of town that night, that the old elm is still standing, and that the Golden Rule office is burned to the ground, so there is no use in coming around; besides this he has had it sawed into wooden mallets, with which he will brain every man, woman or child who attempts to ascend the office stairs for any purpose other than subscribing for the paper, so help him George Washington!"

A Few Words to Feeble and Delicate Women.

By R. V. Pierce, M. D., of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," etc., etc.

Knowing that you are subject to a great amount of suffering, that delicacy on your part has a strong tendency to prolong it, and the longer it is neglected the more you have to endure and the more difficult of cure your case becomes, I, as a physician, who am daily consulted by scores of your sex, desire to say to you, that I am constantly meeting with those who have been treated for their ailments for months without being benefitted in the least, until they have become perfectly discouraged and have almost made up their mind never to take another dose of medicine or be tortured by any further treatment. They had rather die and have their sufferings ended than to live and suffer as they have. They say they are worn out by suffering, and are only made worse by treatment. Of any thing more discouraging, we certainly cannot conceive, and were there no more successful mode of treating such difficulties than that, the principles of which teach the reducing and depleting of the vital forces of the system, where the indications dictate a treatment directly the reverse of the one adopted for them, their case would be deplorable indeed. But, lady sufferers, there is a better and far more successful plan of treatment for you; one more in harmony with the laws and requirements of your system. A harsh, irritating caustic treatment and strong medicines will never cure you. If you would use rational means, such as common-sense should dictate to every intelligent lady, take such medicines as embody the very best invigorating tonics and nervines, compounded with special reference to your delicate system. Such a happy combination we will find in my Favorite Prescription, which has received the highest praise from thousands of your sex. Those langvid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet or ascend a flight of stairs; that continual drain that is sapping from your system all your vitality, and driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces that renders you irritable and fretful,—may all be overcome and subdued by a persevering use of that marvelous remedy. Irregularities and obstructions to the proper working of your system are relieved by this mild and safe means, while periodical pains, the existence of which is a sure indication of serious disease that should not be neglected, readily yield to it, and if its use be kept up for a reasonable length of time, the special cause of these pains is permanently removed. Further light on these subjects may be obtained from "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," in which I have devoted a large space to the consideration of all forms of diseases peculiar to your sex. This work will be sent (post-paid) to any address on receipt of $1.50. My Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists.

Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism; Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from parts of the United States, unsolicited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that the neighbors thought I was dying. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured your pamphlet of my mother, who is a druggist, and bought myself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried many everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth ten dollars a pill in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have expended a fortune, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must endure it the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and sent for a box of Pills. I took one dose of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. I have suffered much from inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them for ten times their cost, if I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefitted. I send $1.00 for two packages.

MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. Is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the luxurious and trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most memorable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on this continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now intrusted to a Republican majority. In the course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many reforms to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a period of revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and to the Bible in Public Schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to the past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the slavery conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of political organization, nor can it approve of what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it will strive to ascertain the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to rally honest men, whom the country knows and can trust, to secure hard money, administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the burdened taxpayers from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, who has been fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

Our method of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their homes, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so generously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long among the foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater during any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh est intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift.

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1600 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and a dozen wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments—stories, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any thing else in the world.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

LETTER FROM THE CANDIDATE

to Ah Sin Clair, Harry Gingham and others.

[For the Chronicle, by R. E. R.]

Dear Sirs: You'd have me seize my quill
To make my latest views more clear,
And every drop of ink I spill
Be shed to close the public ear!
And try to drown that harping tune
That plays upon our course last June.

We all have heard the story told
Of Jason and the Argonauts
Who sailed away in days of old
From Thessaly, and of the plots
Of those who left the shores of Greece
To steal the Colchians' Golden Fleece.

We like the ancients stole the ram,
(The Senate,) but it did appear
(Although I didn't care a—cent)
We took the fleece the previous year.
We cannot hide in cloth and boot
Our cussed tail and cloven foot.

Old Jason was a democrat!
He like our Weston stole to live;
And soon you'll see us growing fat
Upon our dear prerogative,
The greatest, noblest quality
Of all our party polity.

Now Jason Weston's gone to grass,
Dark oblogny loads down his name,
While I (a monument of brass)
Am left to light the party flame—
To sound the locsin's loud alarm
And scratch the fugler's itching palm.

Who are these men with mocking jeers
Who ask to see our muster roll
Of great reforms these fifty years?
Haven't we dealt an honest dole?
While rads for war and freedom howled
Have at we like men stood by and—growled.

The great reforms! lo!'s see; we hung
John Brown in palmy days of yore,
And niggers on a lamp post strung
In New York streets in sixty-four!
We are so proud to think of them
I'll not tell more just now—ahem.

We promise well! of that I'm glad;
While rads still harp upon the past
Persistently, (that makes me mad,)
Old issues in our teeth they cast,
For't stirs out dander when we hear
Them twit us of our course last year.

All here looks well! We must succeed
By book or crook, by right or wrong;
To hampering conscience give no heed,—
Just roll the campaign ball along
And never mind the cynic's croak.
Yours till election,

OLD WHITE OAK.

DYNAMITE.

The St Louis Globe says it is not generally known that there is an establishment in that city for the storage and sale of dynamite, but it is so, has been so for several years; and this day there is in a Lowell magazine more than 30,000 pounds of the article; enough, if exploded, to level a large part of the city buildings to the ground. But that there is not the slightest danger of any premature explosion, Mr. Fred Julian, the agent of the Atlantic Giant Powder Company, took special pains to demonstrate.

He invited, among others, a representative of the Globe-Democrat to witness some experiments he proposed making, and in the early part of the afternoon his pair of bays passed over the long road to Lowell, and brought the press man through the tremendous smells of the Lowell rendering works to a little house that stood in the common, unprotected by fence or enclosure of any kind. It was probably fifteen feet square, of course had no windows, and but one metal door, several feet from the ground. Hitching the team to a fence at some distance from the house, Mr. Julian unlocked the iron magazine door, and proceeded to scramble in with a lighted cigar in his mouth.

Finally, selecting a twenty-five pound box, he pitched it out of the door, down to the ground, a distance of six or eight feet, without the least ceremony. Visions of the Mosel and careless handling of the fatal freight on the dreadful day of her disaster came before the eyes of the Globe-Democrat man as that box fell on the frozen ground with a sharp rattle, and rolled over two or three times, as if specially to provoke Providence, but nothing very startling occurred. The box fell, and that was all. The scene of the Mosel was not repeated, and no remains had to be gathered up with shovels.

Clambering down and taking the box and axe, a procession was formed to the bank of the river, close by, where a high bank presented a favorable spot for experiments. The theory that dynamite can be exploded by a sudden jar or concussion, is utterly scouted by Mr. Julian, and in proof of his earnest belief in the truth of his assertion that it would not explode under such circumstances, he took the box and threw it over the bank on some stones at the bottom. The box was shattered, the dynamite flew in all directions, was scattered here and there over the rocks, but no explosion took place.

"I propose to show you that the theory of dynamite becoming dangerous by disintegration, in freezing, is utterly absurd. I have given the dynamite as severe a jar as was necessary to have exploded it, had it been possible to have exploded it in that way. When frozen it is impossible to explode it at all, and even when thawed and in a pliable state it can be exploded only by the use of a suitable percussion cap and fuse."

The man of giant powder then descended and gathered up all the dynamite that had not fallen into the river and placing it on one of the shattered sides of the box, he brought it up, and for the first time the press men gazed on the dreaded compound. It looked harmless enough then, being a sort of grayish-yellow material in cylindrical sticks eight inches long and one inch and a quarter in diameter. Encouraged by the boldness of Julian, his guests began to pick up pieces of the powder and examine it.

"What is it made of?"

"Nitro-glycerine and infusorial earth."

"In what proportions?"

"We usually use about seventy-five per cent of nitro-glycerine, though occasionally if any one wants more, seventy-eight per cent is put in, and the powder shipped to him at once. Powder made with more than seventy-five per cent nitro-glycerine is never stored."

"Where do you get the earth?"

"It comes from Germany. Occasionally we use California earth, and sometimes sawdust, in manufacturing the second quality."

"And is there no danger of this pile exploding as long as it is frozen."

"It is perfectly impossible for it to explode while it is frozen, and after it is all thawed it can be fired only with a cap and fuse."

"Will percussion explode it?"

"I'll show you."

Taking the axe, Mr. Julian proceeded to strike the pile of dirty-looking cylinders, breaking them and scattering the scraps and fragments in every direction while the bystanders looked on, but no explosion followed. "Now I will burn a little, to show that it will not explode from fire."

The fragments were gathered into a little pile, several whole and broken cylinders were laid on, for good measure, apparently, and the powder man coolly stooped over the heap, containing dynamite enough to lay in ruins any house in St. Louis, and striking a match, applied it to the substance. The flame caught, slowly at first, rapidly afterward, now on a little projection, then on a round surface until the whole pile was burning with a fierce pink flame and intense brilliancy, and such great heat that no one could stand within a dozen feet of it. For several minutes it hissed and glowed, and then subsided, leaving a rock-like residue which speedily hardened to the similitude of white quartz. Though the hissing was tremendous, and the light and heat overpowering, there was not the faintest explosion.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

News and Notes.

It is declared by authority that the President has no intention of calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for his resignation. The statement that Secretary Bristow was to be invited to resign was persisted in so strenuously, and accepted as true by such a number of prominent republicans that Attorney General Pierrepont felt it his duty to see the President, and ascertain the exact truth, and having done so, he now gives an emphatic contradiction to these reports, and says the President has not at any time contemplated calling on Mr. Bristow for his resignation. If the latter desires to leave the Cabinet, it must be of his own volition, and if the Cabinet is to be reorganized, the President knows nothing about it.

Disastrous floods are reported in Germany, particularly in Saxony and Silezia. The Danube is also overflowing its banks in Austria.

William Adams, a respected citizen of Hinsdale, 75 years old, was found dead in his bed on the morning of the 22d, at Marlboro', Vt., whither he went for a load of hay.

At an inquest on the bodies of the victims of the Strath Clyde disaster, the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter against the officer in charge of the steamer Franconia, and expressed their indignation against the officers of the Franconia for steaming away without rendering any assistance to the sufferers; also censured the captain of a tug, which, in answer to the Franconia's signal, went to her instead of going to the wrecked vessel.

It was Dion Boucicault's niece, not his daughter, who was lost in the Strath-Clyde.

The jury in the Babcock case rendered a verdict of "not guilty" at half-past 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the 24th, having been out about two and a half hours.

A fire in the dry-room of Eaton & Ayers' bobbin factory at Nashua, on the night of the 23d, caused some $4000 damage; no insurance. The firemen suffered greatly from the intense cold, quite a number having ears and fingers frozen. The hose was taken up from the street in solid lengths.

The British ship Strathmore sailed from New Zealand early in 1875, since which time nothing has been heard of her until recently. It now appears that she was wrecked on the Crozets islands in July, 1875, forty of her passengers and crew being saved and all the rest drowned. Twenty of the survivors have been landed at Point de Galle, Ceylon, by a passing vessel.

"Lieut. Hugh Courtney, nephew to the Earl of Devon," recently arrested in Buffalo, N. Y., for not paying his bills, is now said to be the A. C. Denison who imposed on people at Portland, Me., some time ago.

A negro under arrest at Savannah, Ga., for the murder of two women, was shot dead by another negro on the night of the 23d. Murderer number two escaped. It is supposed he is one of the gang by whom the women were killed, and that he shot the prisoner to prevent his confessing.

The Portland Argus says Mr. Doten and Mrs. Skillings, whose elopement created such excitement in that city some time ago, are already tired of their bargain. Mrs. Skillings has returned to her sister's in Providence, R. I., and has written to her husband and desires to return to her home. Doten is said to be in Boston. It is understood that they put in a plea of insanity.

The Centennial officials of New Hampshire have awarded to Head & Dow of Manchester, for $3000, the contract to build the New Hampshire headquarters at Philadelphia.

The Reform Clubs of this State held a convention in White's Opera House at Concord, on the 24th. The convention decided it inexpedient to organize a State Reform Club at present; but appointed committees to arrange for a temperance camp-meeting this year and a State convention next year.

The American barque Adelia has arrived at Queenstown, Ireland, under jury masts, having had her masts, boats and two seamen carried away by a gale on Jan. 28. On Feb. 9 a Swedish barque ran down to the distressed vessel, rendered every assistance possible, and furnished provisions and water, without which aid all hands on the Adelia must have perished.

The grand Centennial Ball in Boston Music Hall, Thursday night, was patronised by "the best society," and is said to have been the biggest thing since the Alexis jamboree.

The Advisory Council

Closed its sessions on the evening of the 24th. The course of Plymouth church is sustained on all except some minor points, these being reserved for future consideration. The proposal of Andover church was not in accordance with the church rules, nor was Mrs. Moulton's request for a mutual council, so neither could be granted. The Council declared that after careful examination of everything adduced against Mr. Beecher, they found nothing to prove him guilty; during the discussion on the report not a member questioned his innocence. But on the request of Mr. Beecher and Plymouth Church another investigation will be made. The report recommends the formation of a commission to investigate the scandal, and appends a list of twenty names to choose from. The list embraces the most distinguished Congregational laymen in the United States, including generals, judges and ex-governors. No member of the Council is on the list. Five persons are to be selected, three to form a quorum. The list of twenty represents twenty digerent States. The selection of the commission is to be made by a special committee of the Council. The sessions of the commission will be held in Brooklyn and continue about sixty days. The investigation will take the widest possible range; all the world will be invited to present evidence bearing upon Beecher's character. The sessions will be public.

The Other Side.

The publication of naval "general order No. 205," with our remarks thereon, have called out the following from a "line" officer, which we print, together with such extracts from "general order No. 194" as seem most important and which we have room for:

Eds. Chronicle: As your remarks, preceding the publication of the Navy Department General Order No. 205, seem to reflect very unjustly on the line officers of the Navy, permit me to call your attention to Department General Order No. 194, dated August 2, 1875, in which the Hon. Secretary defines the statute law of the country,—which statute law and general order were set at defiance by Chief Engineer Latch, who refused to report his division at quarters, on the plea that he ranked the aid or executive officer, and in consequence of this act of insubordination was placed under arrest; a few days after he was released from arrest by order of the Navy Department; then followed General Order No. 205, evidently showing that Mr. Robeson had changed ground entirely since the issue of his previous order and the statute law of the country was capable of another, and entirely opposite construction. We are well aware that we derive our authority from the people, and are as much a part and parcel of the people as are the officers of the staff; but because the laws, regulations and customs of the service are turned topsy turvey, to suit the extraordinary demands of the staff, we should not be accused of imagining that we derive our authority from divine right, simply because we do our duty in having the laws governing the Navy carried into effect until they are changed or revoked.

The paragraphs are marked in the enclosed General Order No. 194, particularly that portion of article number four (under the heading "Aid or Executive of the Commanding Officer") in which the Hon. Secretary speaks of the statute law which confers on the aid or executive while exercising it, "precedence over all officers attached to the ship" of whatever rank or corps. Again in article three under the same heading the aid or executive is mentioned as the proper person to station the officers and crew, and to prepare, form, parade and present them in proper attitude for review and inspection by the Commandant, and has authority to take preliminary charge of all formations and parades, etc., and to receive the reports of every part and transmit them as a whole.

By refusing to comply with this interpretation of the statute law of the country, Chief Engineer Latch was plainly guilty of a gross act of insubordination, which left the commander of the ship no other alternative than that of placing him under arrest; his subsequent release from arrest by the Department, and the totally different construction of the law as contained in General Order No. 205 is a matter of which it is not our business to discuss; and whatever we may think of General Order No. 205 as contrasted with the statute law referred to, we, whether receiving our authority from divine right or the people, propose to do just what we have always striven to do,—obey strictly all laws of the land, and orders emanating from the Department, or our superiors. DISCIPLINE.

The following are extracts from General Order No. 194:

Aid or Executive of the Commanding Officer.

III. As the officer to whom the details of the organization of the ship's company are entrusted, he is the proper person to station the officers and crew, and to prepare, form, parade and present them in proper attitude for review and inspection by the commandant or other proper officer; and for this purpose he has authority to take preliminary charge of all formations and parades, to see that the whole is properly organized and paraded, and to receive the reports of every part, and transmit them as a whole.

IV. These duties of organization, inspection and police devolve upon the "aid or executive of the commanding officer of a vessel of war," by virtue of his detail as such "aid or executive," and they and the exercise of the authority necessary to execute them, are recognized by all military law and usage, and by the statute which authorizes his designation. * * * This delegated authority, however, is recognized by the statute which confers on the "aid or executive," while exercising it, "precedence over all officers attached to the ship," of whatever rank or corps. *

VII. It is not necessary, nor consistent with military usage and efficiency, that the "aid or executive" should be required to announce with every order given, or authority exercised by him as such, that he is "executing the orders of the commanding officer." The delegated character of this authority is fully understood, and is defined by the statute, which contemplates obedience to it as such by "all officers attached to the vessel;" and the statute, while it provides that the officer detailed to act as "aid or executive," shall, when not impracticable, be next in rank to the commanding officer, still contemplates the same obedience when this is impracticable. But orders to seniors not given in the ordinary progress of military organization or duty are to be so announced.

IX. The right of all officers, whether of the line or staff, senior to the officer detailed as "aid or executive," to communicate with the commanding officer at all proper times and places, is not to be denied nor restricted; but this does not interfere with the duty of all such officers to recognize and acquiesce in the authority delegated to the "aid or executive" for the purpose of police, organization and inspection as aforesaid, nor confer upon any such officer the right to interrupt the ordinary course of military organization or duty, while in actual execution, for the purpose of making such communication. * *

A Obstnit Pack.

On the Sawyer trial the jury stood six for conviction and six for acquittal on the first ballot; afterward there was a change of one in favor of acquittal, from which there was no change, the final ballot standing seven for acquittal and five for conviction. That the gentlemen of the jury realized the weight of responsibility resting upon them, and were firm in their conviction, must be inferred from the contents of a note picked up in the room, and supposed to have been written by one of their number, of which the following is a copy:

"The trial of Moses B. Sawyer has proved a failure; the jury does not agree, therefore no verdig. The juror is a obstnit pack; will die before they will yeald. May it please your honor Mr. Judge you had better send us home."

The Gas Question.

A New York paper says "the discovery that many of the gas meters in Brooklyn stores and dwellings register from ten to fifteen per centum in excess of the amount burned has caused much excitement. In some instances the companies have returned the money. Since the gas companies have been compelled to reduce the price of gas 25 cents per 1,000 feet they have changed many of the meters. The State gas inspector is fully occupied at the present time in examining the Brooklyn meters. A number of residents on Pacific, Union and Tompkins streets have caused their meters to be examined and all were found too fast. Mr. Washburne, a livery stable keeper on Pacific street, caused his meter to be tested by the State inspector, and it was found to register thirteen per centum too quickly. Journay & Burnham, dry goods dealers on Atlantic street, had their meters examined, and they were certified by the State inspector to be four per centum too fast."

A gentleman living at Norwich, Conn., who has been comparing the relative expense of gas and kerosene in lighting his house, finds that for the year 1875, with three gas burners, the cost was $23.65, and with oil for the same length of time, with the same number of burners, the expense was but $1.85.

The Early Stages of Disease.

Those conditions of the body in which its functions are not performed with healthful activity, but sluggishly and irregularly, are in fact the early stages of diseases. They are, moreover, almost invariably the result of local or general weakness, which can only be permanently overcome by an efficient tonic. There is no medical fact more clearly established than that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are admirably adapted to infuse vigor into the debilitated system, and to restore regularity to interrupted functions. As weakness and irregularity are sure to develop into disease, the Bitters, by overcoming them are the means of averting far more serious evils. Debility most frequently manifests itself in the organs of digestion and evacuation, two important offices, whose vigorous performance is insured by the Bitters which also rectify weakness or irregularity of the bladder or kidneys, and fortify the system against malaria.

—A brother savan recently rallied Prof. Tyndall upon the subject of his rumored engagement to a daughter of Lord Hamilton. The great scientist didn't deny the soft impeachment. Encouraged thereby his friend pursued the subject with the view of discovering what special attraction could have conquered a man who had so long resisted the fascinations of the sex. "Is she prettier than other ladies you have seen?" he asked. "No." "Is she wittier?" "No." "Is she more cultivated?" "No." "What then is her particular charm?" "She has less dynamic force," said the Professor.

Jottings.

Bow Mission service at Mechanics' Hall on Sabbath evening at 6 o'clock P. M. Subject, "Seeking the Lord." Full orchestra.

The fishing steamer "Belle & Hattie," libelled by Wm. B. Green for wages as engineer and Ransford P. Williams for wages as cook; and the fishing steamer "Nellie E. Rawson," libelled by Alden B. Barton, for wages as cook, were condemned by order of the United States District Court, on the 13th, to be sold to pay the claims. The sale took place at Gloucester, Mass., on the 23d. These steamers have made this port their winter rendezvous for several years past, until the present; but steamers are not much affected by the fishermen, who prefer the sailing craft, in which the expenses do not eat up so large a proportion of the proceeds.

At J. H. Foster's can be seen some interesting centennial relics, consisting of the commission of Thomas Thompson, as captain in the navy, dated October 10th, 1776, and signed twice by John Hancock. He was commander of the famous frigate Raleigh in the service of the United States. Also his later commission as colonel of a regiment of New Hampshire artillery, dated August 10, 1785, and signed Governor John Langdon. Then there is the original roster of "all officers, volunteers, seamen, etc., on board the Raleigh, Frigate, Thomas Thompson, Esq. Commander, in the service of the United States of America, in January 22, 1778." Also the "Lists of payment, etc., to be stopped from wages and prize money," commencing July 15, 1777. All of these documents are in fine preservation, and choice relics. This famous frigate was begun here on March 21, 1776, by act of Cangress of December 13, 1776, and history tells us that in just sixty days after her keel was laid she was launched, May 21, 1776.

Mr. Jacob Nichols, known among railroad men as "Uncle Jake," and one of the first engineers on the Eastern Railroad, died in Portland, Wednesday, aged sixty-eight.

The rapid and unprecedented growth of the new Order of Patrons of Husbandry, is shown by the number of Granges in New Hampshire. Portsmouth Grange, which was organized March 2d. 1874, and will celebrate its second anniversary sociably at their hall on Wednesday evening next, is No. 22, and there are now seventy-five Granges in this State, one having been organized each fortnight during the years since the introduction of the Order into the State.

The meeting of the Temperance Reform Club at the Temple to-morrow evening promises to be of more than usual interest. The speaking will be by home talent—reformed men who will speak from bitter experience. The North Carolina Colored Glee Club have volunteered to sing several temperance songs. So great has been the crowd at these meetings, that it has become almost impossible to take up a collection to pay the expenses; and for this reason a small admittance fee of five cents will be collected at the door. The doors will be opened at 6:30, as the services will commence at 7:30.

The Free Masons of Greenland, (about fourteen in number) are holding semi-monthly meetings, and contemplate fixing up a hall. They will give an exhibition sometime in March, to aid them in this enterprise.

Elder E. Owen will preach to-morrow in the Advent Chapel on Hanover street. The public are cordially invited.

Mr. Henry C. Barnabee gave two of his inimitable entertainments in Washington, on the evenings of Feb. 21 and 22. It was his first appearance in that city, and he was fully appreciated by the audiences, as was shown by their repeated encores.

Alderman.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, the application of C. Wesley Rand for a renewal of the lease of the store on Pleasant street was referred to the committee on city lands and buildings.

The city clerk was ordered to issue the usual notice for a hearing on March 23, 1876, at 7 1-2 o'clock, P. M., on the petition of Frank W. Miller for a new highway from Hawthorn street to South road.

The petition of Clarence Mason for leave to remove a tree near his house on Boyd's road was referred to the committee on streets with power to act.

The annual report of the school committee was referred to a special committee consisting of the Mayor and Ald. Hatch and Bryant.

Voted That the report of the school committee be published with the city accounts.

Adjourned.

Temperance Meeting in Raymond.

In the course of the season thus far we have had eleven lectures on temperance, quite a portion of them by reformed inebriates. A Reform Club has been formed that numbers more than 200 members. All of the lectures have been well attended, the town hall usually well filled, sometimes crowded. Still men of influence kept back; some not attending and few of them co-operating with the movement.

On Tuesday evening last, Rev. L. F. McKinney of Manchester lectured. It was a plain talk, instead of a regular lecture,—just what, addressed to the people, is calculated to do good. The evils of intemperance, he said he would not discuss, as the people knew them because they felt them. But the remedy (total abstinence and the pledge) was set forth in a thorough, convincing manner. His arguments for all taking the pledge seemed irresistible. How to induce inebriates to reform was made plain. It was by the potent power of moral suasion; in kindness, appeal to their better feelings, to their manhood and sense of right. Liquor sellers were to be reached in the same way, although he thought the law should be executed by proper persons. He said there was not a liquor dealer but that felt his business was mean.

Then came the signing of the pledge. An industrious mechanic came forward; then a lady. It went slowly, but the mountain iceberg was dissolving. A merchant, who had long refused, signed; the three selectmen signed. The cheering was immense. Then it was said the town treasurer was needed. He was in the back part of the hall and responded by saying he could not come forward alone, so there was a call for the blacksmith to come with him. Both came and others with them. The interest was great, almost amounting to enthusiasm, and it was the best temperance meeting we have had. J. F.

Man-Worship.

Recently, in Philadelphia, the furniture and other "properties" used at the Moody and Sankey revival meetings were sold at auction. There was a large crown of ministers and others present, many of whom were relic hunters. After disposing of the 10,000 wooden chairs, which went cheap, the wooden platform on which Mr. Moody stood while addressing the meetings was started at $10 and run up by some of his admirers until $125 was reached, at which price it was knocked down to a prominent member of the Young Men's Christian Association. The cane-seat chair, worth, perhaps, $2.50, in which Mr. Moody sat during the singing of Mr. Sankey, was started at $25, and run up to $55, when it was knocked down after the auctioneer had vainly endeavored to get $100. The chair which Sankey used at the organ was also sold for $55 to a Mr. Field. The towels upon which the revivalists had wiped their heated brows brought $5 each, four being sold at that figure to different persons. As a contrast to these "gilt-edged" prices, articles which were not identified with the evangelists personally sold far below the real value. The centre curtain which had been used to divide the hall into two portions when desired, brought only $29, and the side curtain and wings only $16 each. The cost of the set originally was over $100. It is sad to state that the reporters' tables were knocked down for thirty cents. It was evident that reporters found no more favor in the eyes of the converts than they did in those of their leaders. A prominent journal, speaking editorially, says of the sale, that it "produced revelations of human weakness and man-worship exceeding anything hitherto recorded in the annals of folly in Philadelphia."

Chinese Acrobats.

The Chinese tumblers lately introduced into the Jackson Street Chinese Academy of Music, San Francisco, says the Morning Call, are indeed marvels in this line. A number of athletic Mongolians appear, stripped to the waist, and begin a sort of combination on the stage. At first the fighting appears to be promiscuous, but six or eight finally ally themselves against one man, and try to overcome him by springing against him and striking him full in the breast with the soles of their feet. He meets this curious mode of attack by standing like a statue, while the others fall heavily upon the floor. A number of tables are next brought out and piled one above the other, until a height of about twenty feet is attained. A performer, whose weight is not less than 150 pounds, mounts them, and springing into the air toward the floor and the stage, strikes both feet with a heavy thud upon the bare breast of a man standing about ten feet from the foot of the tables, throwing him violently to the floor. How a man can sustain such a blow is a mystery. Again the agile acrobat ascends to the top table, and springing upward, turns a somersault while all the tables, except the lower one are suddenly taken away. Upon the only table left he falls with a force apparently great enough to break every bone in his body; but he leaps up again immediately and turns back handsprings across the stage. Again he climbs to the top of the tower of tables, while a second lies down upon a table a few feet from the base of the tower. Turning a somersault in mid air, he falls upon the other body, the two breast to breast, and bounces off again with a second somersault. Other acrobats climbed to various altitudes, and fell upon the stage, alighting square upon their backs with a force that is astonishing. The feats are all executed by men in a semi-nude condition, so that there is no chance for padding their clothes. The manager informed the Call reporter that the tumblers were trained from childhood, and became habituated to the terrible concussions only by years of practice. He added that many were killed in training, or maimed for life.

Confederate Stamps.

The editor of a Tennessee paper, who was a Confederate postmaster during the war, has recently had calls for Confederate postage stamps, and being unable to supply them, makes the following explanation:

A few days before the federal authorities took possession of Knoxville we carefully boxed our postoffice effects, including a large number of these stamps, and sent them to the care of the postmaster at Dalton, Georgia, and that was the last of them. The box contained some $1500 worth of United States stamps into the bargain. The Confederate stamp we used was a private one, and we used two kinds, a five and a ten cent one, and of two colors, red and blue. We had the die manufactured in Nashville, at a cost of about $40. The reason why we used this private stamp was that the Confederate Postoffice Department was so crowded with applicants for stamps that it could not meet the demands, and therefore we got up the stamp in question for the sake of convenience. Hundreds, perhaps thousands of them were sold, not only to the army in our vicinity and to our immediate citizens, but to postmasters from Bristol to Chattanooga. We would be glad to have a fine lot of them on hand now, as we could do what we failed to do during the war—make some money out of the defunct Confederacy. They would command a large premium.

—A chap was on a little promenade a short time since with his young lady, and as he was about to pass a dining saloon he asked her if she would not go in and have a lunch. She said she would, and in they went. Just as they passed in he recollected that he had only fifty cents in change in his pocket. He inquired what she would have. After looking over the bill of fare for some time, she remarked that she would take a quail on toast. He was thunderstruck, as he knew his fifty cents would not stand this, so he said: "What did you say? A quail on toast! Did you ever see a quail?" She remarked that she never had. "Why," said he, "a quail is as big as a goose. It would take a whole family to eat a quail." She reconsidered her order, and took a half-dozen raw.

—The owner of a pair of bright eyes says the prettiest compliment she ever received came from a child of four years. The little fellow, after looking intently at her for a moment, inquired naively, "Are your eyes new ones?"

By its successful and economical management it has made the actual cost (by the payment of large dividends) of a Life Policy very low, as will be seen by the following example, which is taken from many showing as favorable results:

No. 1023.

AMOUNT, $1000; ISSUED, 1847; AGE, 29.

Total premiums paid in 29 years,
less dividends,	$336.91
Average cost per year,	11.62

The undersigned, having been appointed as Agent for this Company, would respectfully invite the attention of those who realize the importance of Life Assurance as a means of providing for the future, to the advantages offered by the State Mutual Life Assurance Company.

The Latest "Nobleman."

Piety in Buffalo was badly sold by the bogus young nobleman who has just come to grief there. For over a month he had been cutting a terrible swell in fashionable circles there, representing himself as Hugh Courtenay, son of the Earl of Devonshire. To all appearances he was well supplied with money; his attire was loud, of the very latest fashionable cut and decidedly English. He changed his clothes several times a day, was petted and courted in society circles, and his intense aristocratic feelings, upon his first appearance, led him to decline being introduced to some of our first families "because they sold leather;" but subsequent deliberations caused him to change his mind. He boarded at the leading hotel in the city, called for the best the house afforded, drank costly wines, smoked expensive cigars—in fact indulged his extravagant tastes to the fullest extent. When his landlord asked his aristocratic boarder to pay his bills, his lordship said his funds had run short, but he would soon receive a remittance from his father, the Earl, and would make good all liabilities incurred. This was well enough for the time being, but the same excuse was presented each time he received his bill, until it became too stereotyped for human endurance, and a warrant was sworn out for his arrest, and he is now in jail awaiting a remittance from the Earl of Devonshire. Being interviewed in his cell, his lordship expressed the opinion that this was a "blarsted country where a man must live on money, while at home you know, I could live on me own name." He remarked: "I'm very extravagant, very extravagant, you know. Like to spend lots of money and have a jolly good time, you know." He didn't appear to be having a very good time just then, though. He was very anxious that his name should not appear in print, and refused point blank to give any information beyond the statement that his people were wealthy and lived in the south of England, and that he had money enough when he came here to get home had he started immediately on his journey. Post.

—Mrs. Butler of Green Bay, Minn., is speculating over the curious fact of the delivery last week of a letter mailed to her nine years ago from a place twelve miles distant. A Few Words to Feeble and Delicate Women.

By R. V. Pierce, M. D., of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," etc., etc.

Knowing that you are subject to a great amount of suffering, that delicacy on your part has a strong tendency to prolong it, and the longer it is neglected the more you have to endure and the more difficult of cure your case becomes, I, as a physician, who am daily consulted by scores of your sex, desire to say to you, that I am constantly meeting with those who have been treated for their ailments for months without being benefitted in the least, until they have become perfectly discouraged and have almost made up their mind never to take another dose of medicine or be tortured by any further treatment. They had rather die and have their sufferings ended than to live and suffer as they have. They say they are worn out by suffering, and are only made worse by treatment. Of any thing more discouraging, we certainly cannot conceive, and were there no more successful mode of treating such difficulties than that, the principles of which teach the reducing and depleting of the vital forces of the system, when the indications dictate a treatment directly the reverse of the one adopted for them, their case would be deplorable indeed. But, lady sufferers, there is a better and far more successful plan of treatment for you; one more in harmony with the laws and requirements of your system. A harsh, irritating caustic treatment and strong medicines will never cure you. If you would use rational means, such as common-sense should dictate to every intelligent lady, take such medicines as embody the very best invigorating tonics and nervines, compounded with special reference to your delicate system. Such a happy combination some will find in my Favorite Prescription, which has received the highest praise from thousands of your sex. Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet or ascend a flight of stairs; that continual drain that is sapping from your system all your former elasticity, and driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces that renders you irritable and fretful,—may all be overcome and subdued by a perseverying use of that marvelous remedy. Irregularities and obstructions to the proper working of your system are relieved by this mild and safe means, while periodical pains, the existence of which is a sure indication of serious disease that should not be neglected, readily yield to it, and if its use be kept up for a reasonable length of time, the special cause of these pains is permanently removed. Further light on these subjects may be obtained from "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," in which I have devoted a large space to the consideration of all forms of diseases peculiar to your sex. This work will be sent (post-paid) to any address on receipt of $1.50. My Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists.

Ten years ago Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. established their advertising agency in New York City. Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

Notices of the Press.

The Bazar is edited with a combination of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The Bazar commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion plates in endless variety, to the prudent matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its useful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the Bazar is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

In its way there is nothing like it. Fresh and trustworthy as a fashion guide, its stories and essays, its poetry and gossip, are all invigorating to the mind. —Chicago Evening Journal.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all Diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 2, 1875.

Mr. Thos. W. Lane.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and decided to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new person, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package, and by the time I had taken it felt quite well cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

Thomas W. Lane—Dear Sir: I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to my friends for a package for me." They told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. I can now eat everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In fact I feel as timonious one and they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

Mr. Lane—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaint, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer on as I did. At the last I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and sent for a box of your Condition Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money were double the price. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages. Yours respectfully, MRS. R. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

Thomas W. Lane—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages. MRS. R. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Cordial he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong medicial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fail to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many reforms to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances there may mark the entry of our silver age. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the public schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will realize the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all who honor, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan excessiveness or personal or party embitterers.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under any banner. But it will not be the servant of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country knows and can trust; to secure hard money, honest dealing, and the best talent in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found last Fall, rallying the Forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and is certainly striving hard to lighten the burden of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the Revenue, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to propose some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already proved the most fruitful in popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with political fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE asks a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most lavish expenditure to procure the freshest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the best news in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

A BIG FIRE CRACKER.

Ten years ago the War Department directed General John Newton, of the United States Engineer Corps, to make estimates for the removal of the obstructions in the East River at Hallett's Point, familiarly known as "Hell Gate."

Many attempts to remove the obstructions had been previously made, but had altogether failed in the one great end—that of rendering the channel safe and deep enough to admit the passage of large vessels. Upon the receipt of the General's report the sum of $34,000 was raised, partly by subscription among our local merchants and partly by a grant from Congress. The survey for the work was made in 1869.

The work itself involved the removal of the Middle Reef, Gridiron, Hen and Chickens and Negro's Head, virtually the complete demolition of Hallett's Point. In September, 1869, the first machinery was erected and the work of burrowing into the heart of the submerged rocks progressed slowly but surely. The unwise delay of Congress in appropriating the necessary funds and the niggardly and paltry allowances made, hampered the advancement of the scheme. At last, however, it is announced as near completion, by the bulletin that the chamber prepared for the great charge which is to rend the stony mass to splinters, and make Hell Gate a terror of the past, is as large as it is required to be. By this explosion the eastern entrance to the port of New York will be opened to vessels of twenty-six feet draught. The cost of the affair in money has been, so far, $750,000.

The work has been under direction of General Newton, and deserves special record in the annals of American engineering. At the extremity of Hallett's Point, which is laid bare at low water, a central shaft was sunk, and the ledge of rocks into which it descended was surrounded by a coffer dam to guard the workings from the high tides. From the main shaft ten large headings radiated, like the spokes of a wheel, running out into the river bed and under the reefs, which it was necessary to remove. From these twenty-eight smaller shafts were driven. The larger shafts, the chief of which was 200 feet long, were named after various United States officers, as the Grant, McClellan, Meade, etc., galleries, and were connected at regular distances by lateral galleries, circular in form and concentric with the centre of the shaft. Twenty-two and a half acres were undermined in this way, and a mile and a half of tunneling made. The great danger attendant on the work was, of course, that likely to result from the caving of the roof rock. To fully guard against this soundings were made all over the work at regular intervals of one foot. In ordinary cases the lead was sunk, but where shale was met with the patent sounding instrument was driven through the bed of rock by boring. But few short of 30,000 of these measurements were required to establish the necessary knowledge of the ground. The best comment on the correctness of the measurements arrived at is in the fact that no serious case of caving in the galleries has occurred since the work was commenced.

An enormous quantity of blasting material was used; at first nitro-glycerine, but later an agent composed of thirty parts of nitro-glycerine to seventy of gunpowder. This compound, called vulcan powder, answered the requirement better than any other, producing the short, quick blast required, to a marvel. Explosives, equivalent on the whole to 150,000 pounds of nitro-glycerine, have been consumed in bringing the work to its present state. To-day the mine is ready to receive the final charge; in the pit or chamber, which is thirty-five feet deep and 200 in diameter, 10,000 small holes, two and a half inches in diameter, and from seven to twelve feet deep, are being drilled in the roof and sides of the passages for further blasts, and are to be charged with the explosive enclosed in iron tubes. In the matter of that explosive the engineers are at present in doubt. From among the entire list of blasting material at their command they desire to select that which can most certainly be relied on for effective work. The choice has so far narrowed down to two, respectively known as Kendrock and Kieselguhr. The latter is a German compound, an especial faverite in the extensive workings of the Prussian mines. The charges are to be simultaneously ignited by percussion, with caps similar in principle to those of a gun.

Forty thousand pounds of nitro-glycerine are to form the grand charge; the discharge of the various blasts is to be effected by electricity, and, in order to avoid the possibility of an irregular series of explosions, General Newton proposes to connect the mines by means of an electric wire enclosed in iron tubing and carried about the entire workings, communicating directly with each blast. A hundred and twenty men are at present employed drilling the holes for the minor blasts, and twenty-one of them are driven each day.

The effect of the discharge of this enormous magazine can easily be imagined, and if, as the superintendent of the work hopes, its final preparation can be reached by then, New York will hail her Centennial Fourth of July with a right royal fire cracker indeed. The men are working hard to get things into trim for the occasion, and talk of their great work as a worthy rival of Philadelphia's great gift to the centenarian Republic. "It's lucky their darned old buildings ain't around here," said one of the workmen to the reporter as he stood looking into the yawning cave of the great mine, "I guess it wouldn't leave much glass in their window frames." It, be it understood, is the workman's pet name for the mine, and he rally calls it by any other. But the utility of the proposed explosion extends beyond the addition it will make to our noisy national holiday, and when the stately ships sail down the Sound, and New Yorkers, passing through the East River, look in vain for the seething eddies of old Hell Gate, the toil of ten long years will have its own reward in the new gateway to our matchless harbor, which it has thrown open to the world.—*N. Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

The Democratic Policy.

The policy of the democratic leaders in this State this year has thus far been to avoid discussion and to prosecute personal missionary work. In every town and ward the active members of the party are at work stealthily and with an earnestness worthy a better cause. The republicans proclaim their principles openly, and challenge debate by introducing a speaking canvass, embracing the best talent in the State and some of the ablest speakers that can be procured from abroad. The democrats thus far have failed to respond in kind. It is not to their political benefit or interest that the voters be fully informed on the issues of the day. Silence is their "best hold," and darkness a very available covering for their designs and scheming. Having no other policy than that which offers success through availability, they quietly circulate among each other, accomplishing individually a great deal of work. They trust that good luck may attend them, that in the next two weeks some accident of public note may aid them and disconcert the republicans, and are waiting for daily events to change the current of things in their favor. A "still hunt" always inures to their benefit, while republican ascendancy is always assured by a hot canvass, including oratory and the circulation of scores of thousands of documents.

There is one thing that the democracy rely on mainly as an element of success in this campaign—the use of money. For this purpose they nominate such men as Daniel Marcy, Frank Jones, et als. These men not only possess it, but know its use. A prominent democrat returned last week from Washington, where it is reported that he succeeded in raising a large sum of money, which was immediately divided among the doubtful Senatorial districts and towns, and will be forthcoming on election day. It is well that our democratic friends hereabouts who have heretofore been in the market on election day should remember that more than the usual amount of funds is in the hands of their leaders, and if they are actuated by the same regard for pelf as in the past, may obtain their full share of the plunder if they act wisely. The Manchester Mirror of the 24th, contains the following:

"A Washington dispatch says that Frank Jones and other prominent democrats, including the rebel spy, Gen. Frazer, who has just returned from New Hampshire, have concluded that it will take $85,000 to carry this State for the democracy, and an exultant democrat in this city yesterday informed a republican that the amount had been assessed as follows:

Daniel Marcy	$30,000
Daniel Marcy's brother at New Orleans	20,000
Frank Jones and S. N. Bell	5,000
Democratic Officials in New Hampshire	3,000
Rebel Claimants at Washington	10,000
Tilden Democrats in New York	5,000
Thomas Dissmore	2,000
Total	$85,000

In addition to this it is expected that democratic candidates will contribute $10,000, of which John Proctor is put down for $5,000, and two or three Senatorial candidates are expected to chip in $5,000 more, making an even hundred thousand.

We give this information for the benefit of our democratic friends, and assure them one and all that he who votes the democratic ticket this spring for less than a $50 note is a fool. If you are going to do a wrong thing get well paid for it."

That's good advice; and we would also remind democratic voters that though their candidate for governor thinks a dollar a day is sufficient pay for a working man, election services do not come under the same head as other work.

A republican friend has related to us a conversation he recently held with Dr. Stackpole, of Dover, in which the former told the latter that a democratic victory this year was impossible, as the most liberal pecuniary helper of the democracy already had a seat in Congress and his money would not come out so freely as heretofore, and without lots of money the democrats would be nowhere; to which the democrat responded that his party would "have two dollars to spend for the republicans' one," adding that Frank Jones would spend $50,000 sooner than the State should go republican. The time the democracy howl most loudly about the use of money in elections by republicans, is just when the democrats intend to be most liberal in that line themselves; that they intended to run this election on a "gold basis" from the start is evident enough from the fact that their principal candidates are all wealthy men, and that they are so running it is evident from their extravagant charges against the republicans.

The Republicans

Are making things lively, back in the State, running gatherings being addressed nightly in different towns and cities, by able speakers. We notice that the democratic papers do not approve of the republican speakers, nor their style of argument and the uncomfortable manner in which they overhaul the democratic record; but then they were not selected solely to please the democracy. The republican enthusiasm is rising to fever heat, and it will require all the "golden remedy" the democrats can rake up to make any headway against it.

The Advisory Council.

Though its decision of the questions of Congregational usage in favor of Plymouth church will probably be accepted by the denomination as final, did not bury the great scandal by any means; nor do we imagine any decision of the supplementary council will have more weight, however searching the inquiry be. The investigating council cannot compel the attendance of witnesses, nor administer oaths; and though any one who would deliberately lie would care little for the additional sin of perjury, yet sworn testimony carries much more weight than simple assertions, with many people. Nothing short of a public confession by one side or the other will set the matter fully at rest, and this we are not likely to have.

The effect of the decisions of the advisory council does not seem to be alike on all persons. Those who condemned Mr. Beecher as guilty "from the word go," and those who have become convinced of his guilt since Mr. Tilton published his first manifesto, say: "We told you so—whitewash!" Those who have all along maintained Mr. Beecher's innocence, and those who once did but now do not believe him guilty, say: "We told you so—proved to be innocent!" Those who are not ready either to condemn Mr. Beecher as a gigantic swindle nor Mr. Tilton and his supporters as a pack of gigantic liars, on the evidence so far made public, don't say much about it except that Plymouth church has been vindicated on the questions of church usage, and that the moral influence of this large gathering of clergymen and prominent laymen is certainly favorable to Mr. Beecher.

The most important decision made was that the Church will re-investigate the whole scandal with open doors, and with no evidence kept out by "legal" quibbles of one side or the other; and even if neither side is able to crush the other with irresistible proofs, and the court trial soon to come off should result as did the former, we may at least hope that after all the at-present-spoken-of investigations are finished the public will be allowed a breathing spell.

News and Notes.

The Pittsburgh Commercial says that the Catholic clergy of that city have decided to withhold the rites of confirmation from Catholic children who attend the public schools.

Lieutenant-Commander Charles W. Tracy is detached from the Juniata March 1st, and placed on waiting orders.

Judge John A. McDonald, a prominent republican, tried in the Criminal Court, at Houston, Texas, on three indictments of forgery and embezzlement, has been honorably acquitted.

A remarkable instance of the fulfillment of a dream recently occurred in Houlton, Me., where a clergyman dreamed that a woman at whose funeral he had that afternoon officiated had been buried alive. So impressed was he with his dream that he induced the bereaved husband to have his wife disinterred at once, without waiting for daylight, when the woman was found to be dead, and showed no sign of having been prematurely buried.

Another "reform" accomplished by the democratic legislature of 1874 was the gerrymander of Portsmouth, Dover, Manchester and Nashua. For three months the city of Manchester was governed by a mayor who was appointed by himself. The act which rewarded Manchester extended the term of office of the city government three months, and Governor Weston signed the bill and thus gave effect to the law which extended his office from January to April. An official who had not the stamina to resist such a flagrant outrage on local self-government, to say nothing of the restraint which his own personal interest should have imposed, could not reasonably be expected to resist any demand which his party might make upon him. Hence his easy and ready enlistment in the performance of an act which will forever invest his name with the unenviable distinction of being the only Executive of New Hampshire that ever deliberately violated the constitution of the State and stamped out the honest ballots of 3800 legal voters.—Nashua Telegraph.

Lansing, the cashier of the Kern Valley Bank at Bakersfield, Cal., who was found senseless on a table in the bank recently, and reported that he had been chloroformed by a gang of burglars, who afterward stole all the money they could lay their hands on, has been arrested, confessed himself to have been the gang of burglars, and handed over the stolen property.

On the evening of the 23d, the soot in the chimney of Mr. Parker W. Horne's house, in Farmington, took fire and the chimney was burned out; at two o'clock next morning the house was burned down, but most of the furniture was saved. Loss $2000; no insurance.

A four-years-old girl named Berry was burned to death in Cannonville, near New Bedford, on the 25th, by her clothes taking fire from a stove. Her mother locked her in the room while she went to a grocer's, and on her return found the child dying under a table.

A Broken-Hearted Rooster.

Thomas Roach, keeper of a chicken ranch on the old San Jose road, purchased, several months ago, a lot of fine cropple-crowns, which he kept aloof from his less aristocratic fowls in a small yard. The chief of this family was a large black bird, of an exceedingly haughty disposition. He was monarch of all he surveyed till about a week since, when Roach procured a white bird of the same breed and turned it into the yard of cropple-crowns. The two male birds immediately joined in battle, which, after a gallant display of courage by both contestants, resulted in the defeat of the black cropple. The unsuccessful bird took its defeat sorely to heart. In fact, life was no longer worth possessing since honor had departed. The bird was seen trying to kill itself with its own spurs. Not succeeding, it tried to jam its head under a gate, but again failed. It flew upon a barrel half filled with rain water, and, carefully surveying the situation, plunged into the cask. Roach ran out and found the bird with its wings closely folded to its sides, its beak open, and apparently endeavoring to repress the natural struggle of self-preservation. It was speedily rescued from its dangerous situation, but it refused to take any further interest in life, and after a few days of mental torture and physical suffering it died.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Is the Devil a Hog?

"Mamma," said a Vicksburg boy, "is the bad man a hog?"

"What do you mean, my son?"

"I mean Satan. Is he a hog?"

"Well, no; he is generally spoken of as a serpent by Christians, but he is popularly supposed to be without definite form, that is, capable of assuming any shape that may suit his purpose. But why do you ask?"

"Because when I was down town yesterday, papa got red in the face and told another man "if he didn't whip Tom Trotter the devil's a hog."

"And didn't he do it?" inquired the anxious parent.

"No 'm, he didn't, but he tried like blazes, and when they wiped the blood off his face he gimme a new ball to tell you he'd fell out of a buggy."—Vicksburg Herald.

A Slander Refuted.

It is currently reported that several individuals who have no visible means of support—not even a dollar a day—are regularly fed and housed at the police station, for the good and sufficient reason that if they should be sent to the town farm or Brentwood their votes would be lost to the democracy at the coming election, and it doesn't cost "the party" anything to support them here on municipal crackers and coffee. Chronicle, Feb. 25.

"It is currently reported" that a sufficient quantity of "crackers and coffee" was saved from the government allowance by the White Island pilgrim, to feed "several individuals" and keep them from "the town farm or Brentwood" until after election, so that their votes may not be lost. It won't "cost the party anything to support them;" the White Island "crackers and coffee" are donated free gratis, as a slight return for favors.—Times.

What's the matter with our democratic neighbor, to make him talk that way about the worthy secretary of the democratic city committee? That gentleman deserves better treatment from the democratic organ, he being a confirmed democrat of the confirmedest kind; besides, the insinuation is undeserved and utterly unjust. We know, for we were at White Island when he made his pilgrimage to that charming maritime rural retreat, and we are sure that when he left he took away neither "crackers and coffee" nor anything else which didn't belong to him; he took away only his corpus and carpet-bag, and came mighty near leaving both them behind in the surf.—And we cannot see that a personal fling at any one is either a denial or refutation of the report that impecunious democratic voters are being boarded right along at the expense of the city.

Masonic Reunion.

The officers and members of Orphan Council of Royal and Select Masters, of Dover, with their ladies, to the number of about one hundred, arrived in this city on a special train Friday evening, at about six o'clock. They were received at the depot by a committee of Davenport Council and conducted to Congress Hall, where the ladies passed a pleasant hour in social intercourse while the Companions were witnessing the conferring of the degrees in the Masonic Hall above; after which the Companions joined their ladies and together repaired to the Banquetting Hall and partook of a bountiful supper, plates having been laid for two hundred. Here an hour was spent in disposing of the eatables and in listening to remarks from some of the Companions. Those who desired then repaired to Congress Hall, where dancing was in order and was kept up without intermission until one o'clock, at which time the visitors took the cars for home, evidently well pleased with their reception. Among the guests we noticed, beside many prominent Masons from Dover, quite a number from Concord, Epping and other places. Thus agreeably passed off another of those pleasant Masonic gatherings for which the fraternity is noted.

Jottings.

City Missionary William A. Loyne has received assurance of a second donation in aid of a Home for the Unfortunate and Aged, to be built within the city limits this Spring.

We are told that a committee of the democratic House is coming this way to investigate the navy yard. Glad of it; wish they'd bear a hand so as to get through before election; we always did fancy there was something wrong about Daniel Marcy's use of navy yard accommodations.

Schooner Free Wind, wintering at this port, has been chartered to load ice at Bath for New York.

Eds. Chronicle:—In Court street there are a couple of outlaws of the horned species; they are good looking and useful, but the damaging point is they are "out of place." Any official who, with due courteousness, kindness and generosity to all concerned, can make a capture, will be entitled to have a "chain" of some sort "about his neck" and be "third (if not first) ruler" in a kingdom somewhere. He shall have my vote and influence. A. J. P.

Rev. Edward A. Rand is meeting good success in his endeavors to clear off the debt on the church at South Seabrook, having collected $925 in Newburyport and Newbury, and $125 in other places.

Chaplain Gerrge W. Smith is detached from the navy yard and placed on waiting orders.

Major James Lewis, for a long time in command of the Marine Corps at this navy yard, died at Philadelphia Feb. 15th.

Boatswain Thomas S. Collier, Carpenter William A. Barry, and Sailmaker Isaiah E Crowell, have been ordered to the receiving ship Sabine.

The Concord Monitor challenges Daniel Marcy's friends to produce a single instance during Marcy's two years in Congress where he did not vote against every proposition to pay the soldier who was fighting for the Union, and every appropriation to put down the rebellion.

Mr. Nathaniel K. Raynes has been appointed school-master on board the U. S. receiving ship Sabine. A good selection—for Mr. Raynes has had experience as public school teacher and private tutor, and was years ago prominent in educational matters in this city.

The charges preferred by the captain of the artillery company against the first lieutenant have been referred to a military commission.

Wreck at the Shoals.

Fishing schooner Celia, of this port, on Wednesday morning started to beat out of Star island roads, at the Shoals, under jib and double-reefed mainsail. On nearing "Lunging" island the schooner was put in stays, but when coming to the wind a sea struck her on the weather bow, causing her to fall off into the trough of the sea. At the same moment the main sheet rendered around the belaying cleat, letting the boom so far off as to spill the sail, the wind in the jib knocking the vessel still further off the wind; the crew were unable either to gather in the main sheet or haul down the jib, and the schooner (being too near the island to ware around) ran upon the northeast point of Lunging island and soon bilged, the crew jumping from her rail to the shore. As the vessel filled with water her stern sank, and she soon slid off into deeper water and now lies across the point, with her hull entirely covered at high tide.

A MICHIGAN GIANT.

Charley Freeman, along back in the thirties, appeared for the first time among a gang of laborers on the Flat Rock and Gibraltar Canal, and he moved among ordinary men like a son of Anak. He looked eight feet high, at least, and three feet across the shoulders. His arms sprang from his chest as large as any middle-sized man's body, and tapered down to a hand three inches thick, and when doubled into a fist, as big and hard as a rail-splitter's maul. He gave his age as seventeen, and he was growing. He hired for the wages and work of an ordinary hand; but when he seized a shovel it went through the clay like a breaking-up plow, and the handle soon came off if the blade held. An ordinary ax was but a feather in his hand, It sank to the eye in the wood, and the helve splintered. He dealt out strength by the wholesale, and he could not weigh out his force in the measure of ordinary men.

When he stood among a gang of laborers the contrast made them look like children. The strolling Indians would stare in amazement a few moments, and then with a deep "ugh!" got out of sight of him as fast as their dignity would let them. He was put to the work of three pairs of oxen. That was removing the trunks of trees cut in ten or twelve-foot lengths out of the way of the diggers; not hitched to them like oxen to snake them away, but with his right hand under the end, raising it from the ground, then balancing it across his left forearm, he shot the saw logs far to one side with all the ease that a skillful workman piles his split cord wood. And thus, day after day, the giant moved, until the canal was not built any more.

He appeared again on the boats that plied along the Huron River, Michigan. He was engine and tackle to handle heavy freight. What others could not shove or roll, he would pick up and carry or toss. When the heavily freighted boat struck on the ripples he just stepped out of the stern and boosted her over. Nobody would have felt surprised if he had taken the whole boat and cargo right under his arms, as a woman carries a dough-tray, and marched across by land, when they came to long bends in the river. Nobody ever said he did this, because they never wanted to exaggerate his feats, any more than we do now.

But navigation did not pay, and that stopped too. Some of the "fancy" heard of the uncelebrated giant, and took the notion that there was money in him. He was as simple as a child. Any one could lead him. It never got through his skull that he was remarkable. The sharpers meant to keep him so, and speculate on his prodigious power. They coaxed him off eastward. At Buffalo they sent him into a dock saloon with a sixteen hundred pound anchor under his left arm, just as a chopper carries his ax, to pawn it for drinks. He got the drinks, and the keeper was glad, to treat him for carrying it out again. Thus he and his friends travelled on his muscle to the sea coast, and across to England. They intended to get a soft thing on some English champion. They had too much of a good thing. A friendly sparring, as an experiment with a professional boxer, showed that a match with any living pugilist was impossible. The giant's face could not be effectually reached. Blows on the body might as well have been planted on a sand bag. When his unskilled maul came down, it came with the force of a pile driver, and no matter what it met, the obstacle went to the earth. By the ruse of representing him as large and strong, but green, they made a match of science and skill against power, with a noted pugilist. The parties came on the ground, but at the first sight of him his opponent turned away saying: "I came to fight with a large man, not with a mountain." Seconds, referees and all hands declared the match fully "off." Finding nothing could be made out of him, his sharp attendants deserted him. From Michigan to Liverpool the route had been one of continued dissipation, and he contracted the seeds of disease. Deserted in a strange land, he was uncared for; an object of awe and curiosity, useless to anybody else and helpless to care for himself, he soon died of consumption and was buried in a pauper's grave.

Thus perished perhaps the most magnificent specimen of physical manhood that the United States has ever produced. He never learned a letter, he never felt a refining influence, he never had a real friend. His rapid growth, great size and immense strength prevented all possible parental moulding or influence. It was unfortunate for himself that his birth was in a place, and at a time, when and where necessity, we may say, forced him to run to waste.—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

—A French writer says not one American in ten has a handsome chin. But in nine cases out of ten, what he lacks in chin is made up in cheek.

—Dr. Dio Lewis says that if a man will eat blackberries for a year, he will be able to lift a horse. But a writer very impertinently inquires: "Who wants to lift a horse?"

Old Sayings.

It would be a curious thing, if they could be traced out, to ascertain the origin of half the quaint old sayings and maxims that have come down to the present time from unknown generations. Who, for example, was "Dick, who had the odd-looking hat-band," and who has so long been the synonym or representative of oddly-acting people? Who knows anything authentic of the leanness of "Job's turkey," who has so many followers in the ranks of humanity? Scores of other sayings there are, concerning which the same, or similar questions might be asked. Who ever knew, until comparatively late years, what was the origin of the cautionary saying, "Mind your P's and Q's?" A modern antiquarian, however, has put the world right in relation to that saying: In ale-houses, in the olden time, when chalk "scores" were marked upon the wall, or behind the door of the tap-room, it was customary to put the initials "P" and "Q" at the head of every man's account to show the number of "pints" and "quarts" for which he was in arrears; and we may presume many a friendly rustic to have tapped his neighbor on the shoulder, when he was indulging too freely in his potations, and to have exclaimed as he pointed to the chalk-score, "Mind your P's and Q's, man! mind your P's and Q's!" The same writer, from whom we glean this information, mentions an amusing anecdote in connection with it, which had its origin in London, at the time a "Learned Pig" was attracting the attention of half the town. A theatrical wag, who attended the percine performances, maliciously set before the four-legged actor some peas—a temptation which the animal could not resist, and which immediately occasioned him to lose the "cue" given him by the showman. The pig exhibitor remonstrated with the author of the mischief, on the unfairness of what he had done; to which he replied: I only wanted to ascertain whether the pig knew his "peas" from his "cues!"—Brooklyn Union.

—"What can I do to make you love me more!" asked a youth of his girl the other evening. "Buy me a ring, stop eating onions and throw your shoulders back when you walk," was the immediate reply.

—The moment of the greatest agony in a manager's life is when he must ask a mature leading lady to take an old woman's part. The only way to do it is to write the note and leave town for six months.

A Few Words to Feeble and Delicate Women.

By R. V. PIERCE, M. D., of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," etc., etc.

Knowing that you are subject to a great amount of suffering, that delicacy on your part has a strong tendency to prolong it, and the longer it is neglected the more you have to endure and the more difficult of cure your case becomes, I, as a physician, who am daily consulted by scores of your sex, desire to say to you, that I am constantly meeting with those who have been treated for their ailments for months without being benefitted in the least, until they have become perfectly discouraged and have almost made up their mind never to take another dose of medicine or be tortured by any further treatment. They had rather die and have their suffering ended than to live and suffer as they have. They say they are worn out by suffering, and are only made worse by treatment. Of any thing more discouraging, we certainly cannot conceive, and were there no more successful mode of treating such difficulties than that, the principles of which teach the reducing and depleting of the vital forces of the system, when the indications dictate a treatment directly the reverse of the one adopted for them, their case would be deplorable indeed. But, lady sufferers, there is a better and far more successful plan of treatment for you; one more in harmony with the laws and requirements of your system. A harsh, irritating caustic treatment and strong medicines will never cure you. If you would use rational means, such as common-sense should dictate to every intelligent lady, take such medicines as embody the very best invigorating tonics and nervines, compounded with special reference to your delicate system. Such a happy combination you will find in my Favorite Prescription, which has received the highest praise from thousands of your sex. Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet or ascend a flight of stairs; that continual drain that is sapping from your system all your former elasticity, and driving the bloom from your cheeks; that unusual strain upon your vital forces that renders you irritable and fretful,—may all be overcome and subdued by a perseverying use of that marvelous remedy. Irregularities and obstructions to the proper working of your system are relieved by this mild and safe means, while periodical pains, the existence of which is a sure indication of serious disease that should not be neglected, readily yield to it, and if its use be kept up for a reasonable length of time, the special cause of these pains is permanently removed. Further light on these subjects may be obtained from "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," in which I have devoted a large space to the consideration of all forms of diseases peculiar to your sex. This work will be sent (post-paid) to any address on receipt of $1.50. My Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists.

Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased a package soon received more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after half a package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One physician has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.25 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE.—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills safely, and truly they do more work than ten dollars worth of any other pills I have ever taken. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done me and doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials sent me I see there is worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would be loth to live without them. Enclosed you will find $1.25 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and kidneys, unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, was pronounced incurable, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills, which I took according to your direction, and I feel like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in my appearance, it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think the medicine is blessing to humanity, and will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is anodyne and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs, trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial,

— USE —

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The Houses of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fail to place or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs, or there may be signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce, and manufacture, industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. Its intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to be dispensed with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, unaffected by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambition?

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice if everywhere its principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can promise the service of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country knows and can trust, to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and a consequent reduction of taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Pennsylvania and Ohio, and as earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping fake in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people greatly aided by its efforts, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere machines, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of their most practical objections to give citizens to put forward their best men, and to proceed to adopt of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that concessions from and improvements in the ranks of the Democracy, which have grown up within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the most candid and judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wranglings; will waste not time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and is heroically will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

Persons who believe there should be a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1872 and 1873 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest and most assiduous and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh and intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished writers in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

"The very best ladies magazine published."—Seneca Falls (N. Y.) Courier.

☞ CHEAPEST AND BEST! ☜

Peterson's Magazine

POSTAGE PREPAID ON ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS.

☞ Every subscriber for 1876 will be presented with a superb, large sized steel engraving of Trumbull's celebrated picture of "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence." This will be "Peterson's" Centennial Gift. ☜

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 14 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, 400 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on embellishments—stories, etc., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its

are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of short stories, FIVE ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.

MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES

ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty. They will be superbly colored. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.

N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

A Place of Safety.

The San Francisco Safe Deposit and Trust Company, has one of the most secure establishments in the world. The bank building is at the corner of Montgomery and California Streets, fronting 137 1-2 on the former, and 68 3-4 feet on the latter street. It is a solid and ornamental affair, the walls laid in English cement and connected by large iron girders, from basement to roof. Each stone in the construction is anchored by two iron anchors to the heavy interior brick walls. The foundation walls are fourteen feet at the base. The safe deposit vaults are in the basement, inclosed in solid fire-proof casing and constructed of burglar proof metal in thirty courses of steel and iron, welded and bolted together with conical bolts, and containing 4600 small safes built in solid tiers within the walls. The ceiling and floor are the same as the sides of the vault and the floor is laid on a series of brick arches, springing from iron bearers with heavy cut granite foundations. The compartments of this steel room are made of courses of metal impervious to the most powerful drill, and the doors of each small safe are provided with a key and combination locks of fine construction. Surrounding the vault is a corridor inclosed by a network of iron and steel, and here, day and night, an armed and uniformed patrol of five men make their rounds, communicating every few minutes with an armed outside patrol, and every half hour with the office of the chief of police by telegraph. The great vault is 35 by 30 feet and 11 feet high, and in order to open one of the small safes an officer of the institution must first be notified. He will accompany the renter to his safe and unlock an escutcheon which covers the key hole. The renter then unlocks the safe, the key remaining fast in the key hole until the safe is locked again. The vault has one entrance and exit, each guarded by three pairs of doors, each 5 1-2 inches thick, secured with compound conical bolting, each door having 32 bolts of solid steel to shoot through wrought iron frames. Each of the pairs of burglar proof doors is provided with two of Diebold, Norris & Co's five-tumbler peerless combination bank locks, arranged to work either separately or in connection, as may be desired. On the two outer doors are Sargent & Greenleaf's double chronometer locks, each consisting of two independent clock movements. On the same floor with the great steel vault is the silver vault, 35 by 11 etaf, with the entrance secured by burglar ned fire-proof doors. Every renter of the small safes must be identified by an officer of the institution before he is admitted to the vault, and keys and locks are changed with every change of renter. The top of the great vault does not reach the ceiling of the vault room, leaving an unobstructed space of two feet for inspection by the patrol. The company's charter confines their business solely to the safe-keeping of valuables and renting of its premises. The prices charged for rent are $2, $5, $12 or $20 per month, according to the size of the safe.

Beans on Punctured Wounds.

A physician in Lynn, Mass., having been asked his experience in the treatment of punctured wounds, thus gives it in the Medical Investigator:

More than thirty years ago, when the writer was a little lad, he was standing upon a load of hay, fork in hand, when the horses gave a sudden start. I made a violent effort to prevent falling off the load, and in so doing drove the tine of the fork into the top of my foot. The boot at the instep was cut open, so the foot received the whole force of the blow. It was a bad wound. My father feared I would be a cripple. One of the laborers was a backwoods man, a sort of botanic doctor, who agreed to cure me that day, and related the following case as a comforter: "Last year I saw a man fall from a load of hay, fork in hand. The handle of the fork stuck into the ground, and one tine through the man's thigh, suspending him from the ground. He was taken off the fork, carried to the house, a common white bean split open and the flat side of each half bound dry upon either wound. The man could walk the next day, and in one week was again at work in the field." I was placed in bed, a bean split open, and one-half bound dry upon the wound. For an hour I was wild with pain (I was actually crazy,) but finally went to sleep, and after about two hours of sleep awoke, with foot well.

The cases from practice under my care are as follows: Miss——was running across the garden, in the spring, when she stepped upon a garden (iron-toothed) rake which had been housed under the snow, running one tooth through her shoe and great toe, splitting the nails both ways. It was removed, the wound washed, and the half of a bean bound upon the top and bottom of the toe, and she kept about her work every day, though all her friends were sure she would have lock-jaw.

M. stuck a rusty nail into the bottom of his foot. Two hours later I saw him with his foot very painful, top of foot badly swollen, and he was having frequent chills. I gave him some remedy, cannot tell now what, and applied the split bean. For several hours he was almost wild with pain, but he went about his business three miles from home next day, and had no more trouble.

I might relate other cases, but wait for others.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln---will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

Editorial Correspondence.

CONCORD, Feb. 28.

Cold weather has prevailed at the State Capital the past week. The sleighing is good and the streets lively with teams. The Temperance Reform Convention was largely attended and its results strengthen the good cause it was called to sustain. The only division of feeling manifested was in regard to the permanent organization of a State Club, the democrats fearing that Gen. Natt Head would be chosen and the republicans being desirous to defeat the aspirations of E. C. Bailey, Esq. Gen. Head would undoubtedly have been the choice of the convention by a vote of three to one had not his republican friends yielded to the clamor made by the democratic minority, who boldly asserted that they would put their political feelings above their desires for reform, and place obstacles in the way of the grand onward movement which has thus far created so much rejoicing in the families of reformed men. Gen. Head's friends were not confined to his political associates, as democrats of undoubted faith were prepared with ballots for his election. The republicans counselled harmony, and having the true interests of the reform movement at heart agreed to postpone a permanent organization until after election. A sort of "love feast" consumed the afternoon session, at which brief speeches were made by delegates. In the evening a large audience gathered at White's opera house, and some very excellent speeches were made. Gen. Natt Head was called to the platform, but at first declined. The audience, however, insisted on his appearance and gave him a reception bordering on an ovation as he came in sight. He spoke briefly, giving some excellent advice to young men and referring to the causes which led him to sign the pledge. The speeches that followed were in the main good, and the convention did a most creditable thing in passing a resolution asking the churches to abolish fermented wine at the communion. One fanatical speech was made by Rev. Mr. Pitblado, who declared that if his wife were on her death bed and wine would prolong her life he would decline to give it. The audience, worked up to a considerable state of enthusiasm by the fervent appeal of the speaker, applauded, but few people believed that he realized what he was saying, or believed him capable of proving his words by action should such an opportunity occur.

The political campaign is approaching its close and there is great promise of a republican victory on the 14th of March. The State committee headquarters here are crowded daily by earnest workers of the party, many of them men who have been very quiet of late years in political movements, but who were aroused to action by the usurpations of Gov. Weston and Council, and by the revealment of their true nature and intentions by the confederates in the National House of Representatives. The news from all portions of the State is cheering, with a few exceptions hardly worth mentioning. It seems to be the intention of republicans generally to give every hour of election day to the cause, and to labor zealously during the closing days of the campaign. The excitement at Laconia is at a fever heat, and both parties are straining every nerve for the lead. The republicans hold meetings at their club rooms nearly every night, and have had a rousing meeting in Folsom's Hall addressed by Ex-Congressman Burrows of Michigan and O. C. Moore, Esq. Mr. Moore spoke mainly on State issues and delivered a most convincing argument. At a late hour, Mr. Burrows followed him and created such a sensation that the Laconia republicans have been urging his return. On Saturday evening, Col. E. W. Andrews, of Michigan, a gallant Union soldier, formerly a resident of Virginia, and who went through the rebellion period and the political campaigns following it as a democrat dyed-in-the-wool and unadulterated made a speech to the Laconia republicans announcing his intention of hereafter supporting the republican cause. They gave him a royal welcome and had a "house-warming" that would have brought grief to the heart of the meanest copperhead who ever sympathized with treason could one such have looked on from afar. In private conversation, Col. Andrews declares that he has been a republican but six weeks, but that his conversion is away down to the soles of his boots. From his intimate association with Southern Congressmen and with the record made by them in discharging crippled soldiers from office at the Capital to make room for confederates, he has become firmly convinced that all men, democrats and republicans, who are not willing to squander fruitlessly the results achieved by four years' hard fighting for the preservation of the Union, should now unite to hurl from power those who now control the popular branch of Congress and who now boast of their treason as an honorable record. Col. Andrews is very earnest in the expression of his convictions and his appearance on the stump will be exceedingly unpleasing for the democracy.

Manchester republicans are making a winning fight under the lead of Gov. Cheney. There are certain results of last year's fraudulent and rascally performances by the democrats of Ward Five that tend to encourage all lovers of good government. Manchester's municipal affairs are so wretchedly managed on account of the acquisition to power of the disorderly and turbulent classes who rule the democratic party there, that the more decent men of the party are disgusted and resolved on a change. Those who committed the most stupendous frauds last year have been rewarded by elevation to municipal offices of honor and emolument. Encouraged by this they have prepared a check-list this year for Ward Five on which are the names of about thirteen hundred persons, and there are not half that number of legal voters in the Ward. Some two hundred tenements in that Ward, occupied last year, are now vacant, and yet the check-list shows an increase of names. The Manchester republicans are wide awake to the importance of keeping down the frauds to be committed there to as low a point as possible. There seems little doubt that the democrats have overreached themselves and that the city will pass into the control of honest republicans speedily. There is also a prevailing belief that Major Briggs, who was counted out by the frauds in Ward Five last year, will be chosen to the Senate, and that Governor Cheney will lead Marcy in the city several hundred votes in spite of Ward Five. Last year Manchester gave a democratic plurality.

The removal of superintendent Sauthoff from charge of the works at Newcastle was eminently just to the republicans of that town, and the published letter of the chairman of the State committee seconding it but expressed the unanimous opinion of every republican conversant with the facts. Col. Hall expressed himself thus: "If the work there cannot be conducted incidentally to our advantage, at least let it not be used to help the democrats." Col. Hall was right, and the Secretary of War was right. Mr. Robert Sauthoff consistently managed the works at Newcastle in the interests of the democracy and wasn't the sort of man wanted there. Had there been no Sauthoff in charge of the works at the fort the republicans of Newcastle would have had more than one majority for Representative last March. Col. Hall's appeal to Secretary Belknap was like unto the prayer offered by the man who got into the fight with a bear, who exclaimed in the fullness of his heart: "Oh, God! help me if you can, but if you can't help me, don't help the bear!" The democratic and "independent" papers are woodrously wrought up over the matter, and the Patriot actually displays headings about it, locating Newcastle across the river in Maine at the navy yard.

The Monitor is fighting heroically and bravely for the good faith. Capt. Stevens has become wholly converted from the namby-pambyism of Massachusetts republicanism and daily deals sturdy blows in the Monitor that shake the life out of the New Hampshire democracy. The only way to deal with the enemy is to knock them down, and the Monitor is more effectual than ever before in this line. The Boston Globe and Herald are doing all the damage possible to the republican cause in New Hampshire, the former to such an extent as will deprive it of republican support in this State hereafter.

The following assignments of speakers have been made, subject to change: For this week, O. C. Moore, Esq., at Acworth, Alstead, Swanzey, Antrim, Greenville and Milford; Hon. Julius C. Burrows, Milan, Gorham, Rochester, Exeter (Thursday evening), Wolfeboro', Newmarket; Gen. Walter Harriman, Derry, Windham, Kingston, Manchester, Lake Village, Newport. Gen. A. E. King is expected to make his first speech of the campaign at Concord on Friday evening next, and will speak at Laconia the following evening. Hon. Henry O. Pratt of Iowa opens at Nashua on the evening of March 1st and is bulletined afterward for Peterboro' and Portsmouth. He is said to be a first-class speaker. Gen. Garfield, Senator Oglesby, Ex-Gov. Noyes of Ohio and Hon. A. W. Tenney of Brooklyn will commence speaking on Monday, the 6th. Gen. A. E. Kibg will probably be assigned to Portsmouth for the night before election. Portsmouth is likely to hear "Dick" Oglesby during the week before, if the managers of the campaign there "speak quick" about it. He has no superior on the stump, and is in great demand.

The Phenix Hotel, heretofore a favorite resort for Portsmouth people, is likely to become still more popular under its new management. Mr. William S. Baker, the new lessee, has retained as assistant Mr. Sumner L. Thompson, who for five years past has occupied the position. Mr. Baker is well known by old Portsmouth residents, having been with the late Willis Barnabee at the old Franklin House from 1849 until 1855. Leaving there he went into the hotel business at Portland where he remained for ten years; then engaged in the same business at Bangor for a number of years, and now has a lease of the Phenix. Mr. and Mrs. Baker study the wants of their guests and leave nothing undone to make comfortable all who patronize the Phenix.

Democratic Tactics.

How the democrats roll up majorities in the wards they control in this city, regardless of the actual number of votes cast, needs no explanation; nor how that party stole the State Senate, and would have stolen the House too had not their courage to execute been inferior to their ability to plan shameless rascality, last year. But all our readers may not be aware of the extent to which ruffianism and fraud were carried in Manchester at the last election, so we copy the following from the Mirror:

With one or two partial exceptions all the check-lists were in the hands of men who were selected by a democratic clique for the express purpose of being more lawless and reckless than any other man could or would be, and they answered every demand which their masters made upon them.

Hundreds of partly fictitious names were written upon the lists, some in the ward-rooms where they were handed up in blocks of fifty and one hundred each and written on without a word of question by the selectmen, and others in the private offices of the ward clerks. To vote upon these names repeaters were hired in Boston and elsewhere, who came hither and went from ward to ward putting in democratic ballots as fast as they could get instructions and pay. During the day this went on in all the democratic wards, and at dark when the polls in the six wards were closed, it was supposed that these practices and the disfranchisement of about a hundred republicans, who were not allowed to vote, had carried the city for the democrats.

It was found, however, that the republicans were nearly a hundred votes ahead, and to overcome this a few democratic candidates organized the roughs and repeaters who had been scattered during the day, and, going to the Ward Five ward-room, threw out by main force the republicans who were there, and threatened to kill any one who returned. Having got possession of the polls in this way, they took eight or ten repeaters into a neighboring barn, and, having changed their coats and hats, marched them into the ward-room and voted them upon names which were furnished by the moderator in the desk. This was repeated until some of the repeaters had cast thirteen votes and the republican majority had been overcome. Then, at about one o'clock Wednesday morning, the polls were closed and the vote declared.

This gave us a democratic city government, elected a democratic senator and a member of Congress, and the democratic candidates for representatives in four wards. In order to give all who were elected seats, several men carried to the selectmen in two or three wards lists of two or three hundred imaginary ratable polls and they were put on the lists. The returns on the back of the lists were not sworn to, and there was no pretence by the selectmen that they knew personally that any of the names furnished them represented persons who were ever in the wards to which they were credited in the world.

Many of these facts were admitted by the officers in the hearings before the election committees last June, and others have been abundantly proved in the trials which have grown out of the arrest of some of the repeaters. As far as Manchester people are concerned, no proof was needed, for a great many of our voters were at some time during the day or night at the Ward Five ward room and saw with their own eyes what we have stated, and here there is no respectable man of any party who pretends to deny it. So much for last year.

The Early Stages of Disease.

Those conditions of the body in which its functions are not performed with healthful activity, but sluggishly and irregularly, are in fact the early stages of disease. They are, moreover, almost invariably the result of local or general weakness, which can only be permanently overcome by an efficient tonic. There is no medical fact more clearly established than that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are admirably adapted to infuse vigor into the debilitated system, and to restore regularity to its interrupted functions. As weakness and irregularity are sure to develop into disease, the Bitters, by overcoming them are the means of averting far more serious evils. Debility most frequently manifests itself in the organs of digestion and evacuation, two important offices, whose vigorous performance is insured by the Bitters which also rectify weakness or irregularity of the bladder or kidneys, and fortify the system against malaria.

E. G. PIERCE, Jr., P. M.

Found a Mare's Nest.

The democrats in Congress have had but poor success in their anxious search to get hold of something which shall help the democratic party in this State in the present campaign, but at last they have found one mare's nest and trotted the animal out to show its paces, amid admiring cries of "what a beauty" from the democracy. The Times of Saturday reprints from the Boston Herald the correspondence relating to the removal of one Robert Sauthoff from the position of superintendent of batteries in Portsmouth harbor, to "show how public jobs are managed." What the correspondence shows is that Sauthoff's removal was demanded and made because he used his position as a government official for partisan purposes—conduct which the democratic press has never tired of denouncing as infamous if practised by a republican; but Sauthoff happens to be a good democrat, and all his endeavors were to aid the democratic party, and therefore his removal for such conduct is of course infamous.

Mr. Wm. Flynn, who was appointed in Sauthoff's place, is a well known and capable man of large experience as a railroad contractor. On Jan. 11 Col. Duane, the engineer in charge, wrote the department he had put on Mr. Flynn as overseer, on half time, although "he had not seen or heard anything of him"—the fact being that he had not notified Mr. Flynn to report in person, but simply to furnish his address—and on Feb. 15 Duane was authorized (on his representation that there was no work) to discharge him. It seems a little odd that Duane did not find out that a superintendent's services could be dispensed with on previous occasions of long stoppages of the work, and not on this occasion until after he had been ordered to discharge Sauthoff.

If statements we heard made long ago were true, and the published correspondence shows they had at least a pretty good foundation, an avowed republican might just as well have sought work of Frank Jones or Daniel Marcy as at the government works at the harbor's mouth, and a workman would be about as long retained in one place as the other after voting the republican ticket. About how long the democratic candidate for governor will keep a man in his employment after voting against the democracy is indicated by the following, which we republish from the CHRONICLE of March 13, 1875:

I, Edward B. Stover, on oath depose and say that I am a resident and voted in Ward No. Three in the City of Portsmouth. For some months previous to the second Tuesday of March, 1875, I was in the employ of Capt. Daniel Marcy in the capacity of teamster in his ship-yard in said ward. On Tuesday last, being the day of the annual State election, I was engaged with my team and stopped at the ward room for the purpose of depositing my vote. Before I entered the voting room, Capt. Henry Marcy offered me a democratic vote, and asked me to deposit it. I told him that I had no objection to voting that ticket except the name of Hon. Frank Jones, and asked him to erase that name from it. At that time Mr. James W. Nutter approached me and told me that I had got to carry that ticket. I told him I could not, and left the building, and drove my team to the ship yard. At the yard Capt. Daniel Marcy twice asked me to go to the polls and vote the democratic ticket. I afterwards returned to the ward room and voted the republican ticket. No one asked me to vote that ticket, and no one offered it to me. I requested Mr. William B. Randall to give it to me, and deposited it of my own accord. I was not at that time nor at any previous time offered money to vote that ticket, and never was approached or talked with by any republican in reference to the election. I never received any money or any other thing, as an inducement to vote the republican ticket, and never expect to, and no republican had the least reason to suppose that I should vote that ticket. Indeed I had intended to vote the democratic ticket except for congressman, and had so told Capt. Marcy. On the evening of Thursday next following the day of election, I was discharged from Capt. Marcy's employ, I believe for the only reason that I had voted the republican ticket.

EDWARD B. STOVER.

State of New Hampshire, Rockingham ss., March 12, 1875.

Justice of the Peace.

Jottings.

Mr. William A. Loyne has received a gift (not previously mentioned) of $50 in aid of the proposed Home for the Unfortunate. This work is entirely voluntary, so those who are able and willing to help along so worthy a cause must not wait to be asked, but take hold without personal solicitation.

Col. Luther Junkins, of York, died somewhat suddenly of lung fever on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Hannah Beadle, of York, the old lady of 83 from whose face Drs. Potter of this city and Hawes of York recently removed a fatty tumor, died on the 23d.

Shrove Tuesday falls this year on the 29th of February (to-day), which has not happened since 1724, and will not occur again until 1944.

The U. S. S. Speedwell, with two scows, went out to the Shoals Sunday morning to try and raise the sunken fishing schooner Celia, but owing to the high sea they were unable to accomplish anything further than to strip her.

The will of Miss Alice Spinney, of Kittery, who died some months ago at Saugus, Mass., has been contested. The Christian Society of Kittery claimed $12,000 under it. By the decision of Judge Choate a former will is given precedence, by which Mrs. Benjamin Park of Saugus recieves $8000 and the Kittery Society nothing.

The Boston Globe very kindly tenders some instructions to the republican press of this State in general, and the Concord Monitor in particular, as to the proper method of conducting the present political campaign. Considering the effective manner in which the "independent and impartial" press of Massachusetts has aided the republicans of that close State to win victories, as shown by the present solidly republican delegation in Congress from Massachusetts, we presume the Monitor will feel just as thankful for the Globe's advice as we do, and profit by it in the same way.

The amount of fish landed at Long wharf since January foots up as follows: Cod, 487,000 pounds; haddock, 166,000 pounds. On Commercial wharf, cod, 200,000 pounds; haddock, 170,000 pounds. Most of the cod has been salted, C. Morris Tredick salting over 1000 quintals. The price of fish has averaged two cents per pound.—Times.

Greenland.

This town is divided into three school districts, designated as the Northern, Southern, and Bay-side. The schoolhouse in the Northern district is of brick, and was erected in 1847. It was built through the influence of the late Col. Joshua W. Pierce, who contributed largely, and it is owing to his liberality that this district has the best schoolhouse in town. The Southern district has a building of wood, very commodious and in good repair. The Bayside, so called because it lies along the bay, has a very comfortable building, also of wood, with modern furniture. The school in the Northern district has for the last two terms been taught by Mr. Swasey, of Exeter, whose labors have been entirely satisfactory. In the Southern district the school has for two years been taught by Miss Foster, who evinces great aptitude in her chosen vocation. The Bayside school is now in charge of Charles A. Shannon, of Portsmouth. Mr. Shannon is one of the best teachers in this section, and is much liked by his pupils and all interested in the school. Greenland is fortunate in numbering him among her teachers; we wish him a broader field of usefulness. The committee in charge of these schools is John Hatch, Esq., the right man in the right place. We predict much success for the schools while under his supervision. The town raises about $1000 for school purposes, to which is added the literary fund. The money is divided, not pro rata, but equally among the districts. This division was first made on motion of Colonel Pierce, notwithstanding his district had then, and now has, the largest number of pupils. Greenland is one of the best towns in this section, and her schools contribute to her general prosperity.—N. E. Journal of Education.

Broggs' Experiment.

Broggs, who lives in Elliott's Southern Addition, ran across the item recently, that "at night a horse would refuse to step on or over the body of a man lying in the road, but, as if impelled by instinct, would stop and remain motionless till the matter should be investigated." Grave doubts as to the truth of this statement arose in Broggs' mind, and to settle matters for himself, he resolved to give the thing a practical test. Now Broggs had no horse, but did own a very intelligent and frisky mule, so he thought it just as well to try the experiment with him. There is a narrow lane leading from the clover patch to the water trough, and he sent his little son Bobby to open the gate and turn out the mule; meanwhile Broggs lay down full length across the lane, assuming an apparently lifeless attitude. The mule had been kept in the pasture all day, and consequently was very dry, so he came waltzing down the lane at a great rate, and everything denoted a fair trial of the test. And so it was; but not exactly as Broggs would have desired, although it confirmed him in his skepticism. When within a yard or two the mule perceived the prostrate form of his master, and with an explosion of sound which was a compromise between the shriek of a locomotive and the yell of a frightened maniac, he bowed up his back, flung his tail to the breeze, elevated himself about fifteen feet in the air, and with all four feet in a bunch, lit on the pit of Broggs' "bread-basket." Then, with a fiendish laugh, he suddenly spread out his feet with a scraping, lacerating sound, and was off like flash, not omitting, however, to give the experimenter a parting kick in the small of his back as he departed. The price of the mule did not near pay the doctor's bill.—Yolo Mail.

—It always seems absurd to us to hear the hero or heavy villain in a melodrama exclaim, as he secretes himself in a room in the castle or elsewhere, "And—now—if—I'm—discov-ered—I'm lost!" when the stupidest boy in the top gallery knows that if he's discovered he's found—he's found.

—A wicked boy caught a fire-fly one day and stuck it with mucilage on the centre of the largest lens of the telescope in the Washington Observatory. The astronomer perceived a blaze of light, which died out at intervals, and thinking he had discovered a most extraordinary star, he pronounced it "of the third magnitude, in Orion." He telegraphed at an expense of $2500 all over the world, and the astromomers gazed at Orion until they were wild, and then telegraphed back to the Professor for further information. In the meantime the discoverer found his star had moved 18,000,000,000 miles in twenty-four hours, and perceived it actually had legs! But on polishing his lens he found the lightning bug!—then he swore terribly—worse than "our army in Flanders"—in fact they heard him swear away down in Alexandria, seven miles away. Since then he has been looking for that boy; he wishes to consult with him about something.—St. Louis Dispatch.

—Edward Trafford is a wealthy young Englishman, who, for the past three years, has kept Denver, Colorado, in gossip. He bought a ranche up in the mountains, and furnished the house with rich upholstery, expensive paintings, and an $800 piano, and when the novelty of the thing had worn off, abandoned it to his stock tenders. Then he started a variety show and lost some money there. Then he fell in love with Emmie Dunning, sister of Mrs. Alice Dunning Lingard, gave the troupe a grand farewell banquet, followed the Lingards to San Francisco, and just as they were about to sail for Australia, married Miss Dunning and took her back to Denver.

☞—A Boston paper recalls an entertainment given at Delmonico's a few years ago by two daughters of a well-known financier, formerly a Federal office holder, and now a bank President. The occasion was the twenty-first birthday of their only brother. Having obtained permission from their father to make the entertainment as grand and magnificent as they pleased, these giddy girls gave Delmonico carte blanche to prepare a feast and ball for one hundred persons. The bill was nearly $25,000, and the astonished father paid it like a man.

Amusing a Prince.

During the visit of the Prince of Wales to India he was introduced to the amusements of that heathen land, consisting of elephant, bull and wild beast fights. One of the scenes is thus described; An elephant, a huge dunhided rogue, is brought in at one portal, while through the other there caracoles gally a smart horseman, on a handsome gray horse, powerfully bitted, and well back on his haunches. The horseman rides very short, and the style of equitation reminds one forcibly of the French manege, although his seat is free and suppler than obtains there. He circling and capering, approaches the elephant, which, after facing him for a time, makes a sudden rush, and his trunk is on the horse's crup, and all but clutches the rider, before the speed of the Arab tells and carries horse and man out of reach. Quick as lightening the horseman is around again, capering teasingly around the elephant, whose rushes in quick succession, and what certainly seems a succession of hair-breadth escapes on the part of the rider, keep on the strain the interest of the spectators. The courage of both rider and horse are undeniable, the former as a finished horseman both as to hand and seat, and the latter obeys with beautiful alacrity of dexterity the slightest hint from wrist or leg. Over and over again the rider's life seems not worth a second's purchase, as the elephant's trunk brushes his shoulder, but supple dexterity pulls him through, and the foiled elephant at length lapses into sullen apathy.

—The St. Petersburg Gazette tells the story of a young Russian, who not long ago was graduated with high honors as a chemist from the University of Leipzig, receiving the degree of Master of Arts. Soon thereafter, a young lady called upon one of the leading professors of the institution and expressed profound thanks to the puzzled savant for the course of instruction. She stated that having been left a penniless widow, she had adopted this means of acquiring a profession which she was now determined to follow.

—In a recent case before a Massachusetts Court one of the lawyers illustrated his knowledge of Scripture in this way. He said: "Skin for skin, yea all that a man hath will he give for his life," our Saviour said. His opponent took him up quick and remarked, "It may be that brother B's Saviour said that, but I am very sure that mine didn't'"

A Few Words to Feeble and Delicate Women.

By R. V. PIERCE, M. D.,-of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," etc., etc.

Knowing that you are subject to a great amount of suffering, that delicacy on your part has a strong tendency to prolong it, and the longer it is neglected the more you have to endure and the more difficult of cure your case becomes, I, as a physician, who am daily consulted by scores of your sex, desire to say to you, that I am constantly meeting with those who have been treated for their ailments for months without being benefitted in the least, until they have become perfectly discouraged and have almost made up their mind never to take another dose of medicine or be tortured by any further treatment. They had rather die and have their sufferings ended than to live and suffer as they have. They say they are worn out by suffering, and are only made worse by treatment. Of any thing more discouraging, we certainly cannot conceive, and were there no more successful mode of treating such difficulties than that, the principles of which teach the reducing and depleting of the vital forces of the system, when the indications dictate a treatment directly the reverse of the one adopted for them, their case would be deplorable indeed. But, lady sufferers, there is a better and far more successful plan of treatment for you; one more in harmony with the laws and requirements of your system. A harsh, irritating caustic treatment and strong medicines will never cure you. If you would use rational means, such as common-sense should dictate to every intelligent lady, take such medicines as embody the very best invigorating tonics and nervines, compounded with special reference to your delicate system. Such a happy combination you will find in my Favorite Prescription, which has received the highest praise from thousands of your sex. Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet or ascend a flight of stairs; that continual drain that is sapping from your system all your former elasticity, and driving the blood from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces that renders you irritable and fretful,—may all be overcome and subdued by a persevering use of that marvelous remedy. Irregularities and obstructions to the proper working of your system are relieved by this mild and safe means, while periodical pains, the existence of which is a sure indication of serious disease that should not be neglected, readily yield to it, and if its use be kept up for a reasonable length of time, the special cause of these pains is permanently removed. Further light on these subjects may be obtained from "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," in which I have devoted a large space to the consideration of all forms of diseases peculiar to your sex. This work will be sent (post-paid) to any address on receipt of $1.50. My Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists.

Ten years ago Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. established their advertising agency in New York City. Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the blood!
☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and as a short time elapsed testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that it was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years must have spent several scores, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged and had given up hope of being cured by several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and received to trying them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can repeat my old words. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I promised one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find the money for packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have suffered for years with Piles, and gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have had many, what good they have done I cannot say, but the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this phase find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.
MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and side, so that unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal of money, and lost, at least, one dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this phase find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, and my health is much better, the blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute mostly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockdale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.50 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is now discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
—USE—
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.
"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."
The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which promise to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to ride into power. The bitter strife between the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to make a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke another discussion hardly less lively than to politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE can confidently appeal to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. Its editorial corps can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, unaffected by partisan sensibilities or personal hates or ambition s.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will replace the principles of universal suffrage and equal rights under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country may trust to make laws and administer them honestly. Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and a return to honest money, must take place. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid honest money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. It can cause it found the people ready to follow its guidance, and it was but simply right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon the worst of the two practices of both parties, and seem to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the virtues they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will so use its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the numerous attacks of its contemporaries from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

To commend itself to the better class of a discriminating visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1872 and 1873 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, of "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest application and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to spend more money on original sketches, &c., &c., than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its
are the best published anywhere. All the most popular writers are employed to write originally for "Peterson." In 1876, in addition to the usual quantity of stories, FOUR ORIGINAL COPYRIGHT NOVELETTES will be given, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, and others.
MAMMOTH COLORED FASHION PLATES
ahead of all others. These plates are engraved on steel, twice the usual size, and are unequalled for beauty, accuracy, and richness of colors. Also, Household and other receipts; in short, everything interesting to ladies.
N. B.—As the publisher now prepays the postage to all mail subscribers, "Peterson" is cheaper than ever; in fact is the cheapest in the world.

OVER THE FALLS.

Captain Gilbert Pratt, a veteran mariner now living in Belleville, Ontario, whose period of service on the lakes dates back half a century, recalls an incident which, though it has been almost forgotten, attracted considerable attention in its day. Vessel owners were then more conscientious than now. They were not inclined to risk the lives of passengers and crew in unseaworthy crafts. The owners of the old schooner Michigan, then the largest vessel on the lakes, hit upon a novel expedient for disposing of her. The vessel had become old and rotten, and was no longer serviceable. Instead of loading her and sending her out late in the season heavily insured to be wrecked, he chose a more harmless plan, but one less profitable to himself. He induced the proprietors of the hotels at Niagara Falls to buy the vessel and send her over the Falls. This was about the year 1830. The proposition was eagerly accepted by the proprietors, who saw in it a capital advertising scheme, and one which would be certain to pay them well. The affair was widely published in the newspapers, and was the talk of the surrounding country for weeks and weeks. They did not count amiss when they judged what an excited public curiosity would do. For several days previous to the great event the stages and canal boats were crowded. People flocked thither from all parts of the country to witness the novel spectacle of the largest vessel on the lakes going over the falls. The hotel keepers reaped a rich harvest. So great a crowd had never before been seen at that famous resort. On the appointed day the Michigan was towed out into the rapids in the presence of a vast number of people who lined the banks or visited the scene upon the numerous excursion boats which were called into requisition. The task of towing the vessel into the current was intrusted to a Captain Rough, with a crew of half a dozen oarsmen selected by himself. This was a rather hazardous enterprise, and Captain Pratt, who was himself one of the crew, says his heart almost failed him when they set out, though he had gladly volunteered for the service. There had been placed on the schooner several animals in accordance with the programme, which had been widely advertised. These consisted of a buffalo, three bears, two foxes, a racoon, a dog, a cat and some geese. At her bowsprit was the American ensign, and at her stern the English Jack, the Canadian hotel keepers having joined in the enterprise. There were also some effigies on board to give appearance of a crew and to make more real the scene of a vessel with all on board making the terrific plunge. Just before the tow-line was cut the animals on board were turned loose. Just as the vessel entered the rapids two of the bears plunged overboard and actually succeeded in swimming ashore. The third one climbed a mast as if to get a better view of the scene. All of the animals seemed greatly frightened, and ran from one end of the deck to the other, much the same as a human crew might have done under similar circumstances, in an agony of despair. The vessel swept grandly down the rapids, plunging over the first fall, shipping a little water, righting herself, and moving on in fine style. In going over the second rapid the mast went by the board and the bear with it, and neither were again seen. She swung around and presented her broadside to the foaming waters. She had evidently struck a rock and was stationary. Here it was thought her career was ended, and the affair was over. But she stopped only a moment. The force of the waters swung her around and she moved on stern foremost. On the third rapid she bilged, but carried her hull apparently whole straight to the horse-shoe fall, over which she plunged stern foremost to the foaming abyss beneath. She was smashed into a thousand fragments. None of the beasts on board were ever heard of more, but the geese turned up all right, and were soon seen on the bank below quietly oiling their feathers, as if there had not been much of a shower after all. One of the effigies was also found uninjured, throwing his arms about and knocking his knees together in the eddies, but all the others had disappeared. The scene was a most thrilling one. The great crowd of spectators watched the progress of the vessel with breathless interest, and gave a great cheer as she made the final plunge.—Detroit Post.

Musical.

Talking of an organ reminds me of an old church near by, whose members, in times past, had conscientious scruples about this instrument, although they had none concerning the use of a band of music in sacred service. In the conventicle to which I refer, the trombone was played by that famous performer, Mr. Perkins, distinguished for many miles around for his "lung power." On one occasion the conductor was drilling his choir on a piece of music which he fondly hoped would win great eclat for himself and his choir on the following Sunday evening. A fine passage marked p p occurred in the piece, which would have produced an exquisite effect if it had been rendered with that delicacy the leader endeavored to suggest and enforce in the usual manner. But, instead thereof, the trombone of Perkins blew a blast that would have taken the walls of Jericho clean off their foundations. Consternation and dismay were depicted on the countenance of the horror-stricken conductor.

"Mr. Perkins," said he, in a very stern voice, "you have ruined me! What do you mean by playing in that outrageous manner?"

"Why, sir," replied Mr. Perkins, meekly, "I played according to the marks in my book."

"Let me see your book, sir," said the conductor. "There, sir, is not this strain marked double p?"

"Certainly," said Perkins.

"And pray, sir, what do you understand by pp?

"As I understood, and understand it, in this case, double p means 'Put in, Perkins,'—and I did it!"

"You did!" repeated the conductor, his disgust giving away to the humor of the thing, and he ordered a recess for half an hour.—Boston Sat. Eve. Gazette.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President—Lincoln—will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

Administrations Compared.

The Republic presents in a very compact and simple form the difference between the expenses of the government under the democratic party in 1858-59-60—sixteen and eighteen years ago—and the expenses of the government at present, less the interest on the democratic war debt. The constant effort of the democratic press is to make it appear that the republican administration has plunged into all manner of extravagant excesses, and it is not impossible that the charge has been rung into republican ears so often that some even who cling to republican principles have come to accept the impression, excusing it upon the ground that the war fostered habits of recklessness of expenditure. Here are the expenses under Buchanan's administration, and under the present one for 1875:

Annual expenses for 1858		$62,000,000
Annual expenses for 1859		84,000,000
Annual expenses for 1860		77,000,000
		$243,000,000
Per year		81,000,000
Expenses for 1875		$274,000,000
From which deduct interest on debt of democratic war	$102,000,000
Sinking fund appropriation	25,000,000
Pensions on account of war	29,000,000
Internal revenue expenses on account of war	7,000,000
Refunding war taxes	1,500,000
War damages paid	4,000,000
Printing bonds and notes and negotiating	2,000,000
Extra clerk hire caused by war	300,000
Interest on Pacific railway bonds	4,000,000
		$170,000,000
Currency		$104,000,000
Difference between currency and gold on $99,000,000, average		12,000,000
Per year		$88,000,000

Democratic expenses.—Population in 1860, 31,000,000; expenses, $243,000,000; equal to $7.81 per head.
Republican expenses.—Population in 1875, 42,000,000; expenses, $186,000,000; equal to $2.85 per head.

By this exhibit it appears that the expenses of the Government at present are actually fifty-six cents per capita less now—omitting the expenses entailed by the war—than they were in 1860. The bungling efforts of the democratic House to make good its extravagant ante-election promises of retrenchment show, by their barren result, more strikingly than mere verbal argument can do, the economical tendences of republican administration.

Wanted—Two Likely Negroes.

The Graphic's Washington correspondent gives the following particulars of the torpedo boat Alarm:

"There is much of interest to be seen on the Alarm. She has a single death-dealing turret, a 15-inch gun in the bow, the largest afloat, a formidable prow used as a weapon of attack, and a row of Gatling guns ranged along both her sides. A surprising deal of general utility business is done by an ingenious combination of machinery worked on deck, by means of which the wheel is turned, the ship steered, and torpedoes run out if desired. All this can be directed by one person standing in a small shot-proof enclosure on the deck. The mode of attack of such a vessel as the Alarm is, I am told, first to blind the enemy with an electric light flashed in its face; then to fire the fifteen-incher at the foe; at the same time to run out and explode a torpedo beneath the hostile vessel; next, if there is anything left to attack, to give a coup de grace with the incisive prow, and if the enemy still decline to be wiped out of existence, the devastating instruments of the turret are called into requisition, and if they do not suffice the Alarm swiftly turns a broadside to the foe, and brings into range in turn the innocent-looking but fatal rows of Gatlings."

A despatch from Washington says: "The democrats are here trying to find two colored orators to go to New Hampshire to counteract the effect of Ben Hill's speeches."

Here is another illustration of how the South and democracy are being persecuted and robbed of time-honored rights. According to "the constitution as it was," and the law as it used to be, when a democrat wanted a likely negro, either to send to New Hampshire or for any other purpose, he just went out and bought him, or, if he was short of funds, got a couple of bloodhounds and hunted him out of a swamp. But now they can't get a colored man to come to New Hampshire as an orator without a deal of trouble, and then he don't come.

But let our Southern friends take courage. We have progressed backward very rapidly within the past few months, and if we keep on the time is soon coming when they may buy and sell and beat and butcher a nigger as of old. Indeed, in some of the Southern States the time has already come, as witness the following, taken from the Oxford (Alabama) Tribune:

"Twenty Dollars Reward! I will pay the above reward for a colored boy named Aaron McKinsay, who ran away from my place last Saturday night, the 26th inst. Said boy was sold at auction for stealing $10 from the Woodstock Iron Company's store, and was bound to me for five months, nine days and a half hard labor to cover damages. TAYLOR DEAMAN."

The following extract from the Crawford (Ga.) Echo also seems to find a suitable place here:

"It is a notorious fact that those farmers who are the tightest to the negroes in their employ never fail to get as many hands as they wish. We know of several of our largest planters who treat the negroes working for them exactly as they did their slaves—working them from daylight to sundown; allowing no idling, and, if a darkey trespasses any of the rules, he is tied up and a sound thrashing administered to him; then if he leaves, the employer hunts him up, brings him back and doubles the dose. This generally makes an effectual cure, and he resumes work, makes a good hand and is anxious to hire to the same man another year. The employer is, consequently, able to pay full wages. Govern your hands and all sides will be better satisfied. Let them govern you, and the country will soon go to the dogs."

Before the war? did you ask? Oh, no! These are genuine specimens of 1876 democracy; illustrations from real life; glimpses behind the curtain so boldly rent in twain by Blaine, Garfield and others not many days ago.

News and Notes.

Friday afternoon Miss Emma Lehman, known as the "Belle of Hoboken," and the daughter of a wealthy contractor, visited the first National Bank of Hoboken, and walking up to Robert Idell, the book-keeper, seized him by the neck and flung a large quantity of red pepper in his eyes. An exciting scene ensued, and the two were finally separated. Idell's eyes were fairly blinded, and he was helpless. It is the old story of love, and deception and desertion on the part of the man, the girl cast adrift by her parents, and finally goaded to this act of revenge on her false lover. Idell has resigned his office in the bank, but it will be some time before he regains the use of his eyes.

John Scannell, the New York rough who killed another rough named Donohue, and was found "not guilty by reason of insanity" by the jury, is now adjudged not insane by reason of no further danger from the law, and has been discharged.

Steamer Harlingen, while on her way from London to Rouen, struck the masts of the steamer Strath-Clyde, recently sunk in the channel, and sank in fifteen minutes. All on board were saved.

At Pittsfield, on Sunday, a man named Caleb Davis attempted to murder his wife. He seized an axe, and, after fastening the doors, made an assault on her, but she escaped through a window and sought refuge at a neighbor's.

A man in Providence who was recently bitten by a mad dog has adjusted all his business affairs, paid all his bills, made his will, had a room constructed for his son and made other arrangements for his own and his family's benefit when he shall be attacked with hydrophobia.

A wedding at Bridgeport, Conn., suffered a slight delay from the inopportune arrival of the bridegroom's former landlady with a bill of over $100; and several impatient creditors of the bride. One of the latter's relatives paid bills to the amount of $200 before the happy couple could depart in peace.

Gen. Francis Fessenden, son of the late Senator Fessenden, has been nominated for Mayor by the republicans of Portland.

Mrs. A. F. Downing, of Barre, Vt., drowned herself and her infant child on the night of the 27th. Domestic unhappiness was the cause.

A terrific wind storm passed over St. Charles, Mo., on Saturday, causing damage estimated at $200,000, killing at least three persons and injuring many more. A tornado swept over Southern Indiana about the same time and destroyed a vast amount of property, and several lives were lost.

Don Carlos has taken refuge in France. King Alfonso has left his ministry to decide if the Ex-Queen Isabella may return to Spain. The Carlist troops are getting out of that just as fast as they can.

Secession was a mistake, a terrible mistake; but secession was no crime. It violated no oaths; it trampled upon no individual rights. It sought to shed no blood! Radicalism is no mistake. It is deliberate, intentional, wicked, ever-increasing crime. I arraign radicalism to-night before the bar of an outraged country, as the only really intentional rebel in American history.—Ben. Hill, democratic member of Congress.

As a matter of fact, the best intelligence of the South accepts and reiterates every word of Mr. Hill's manly utterances upon the floor of the Lower House of Congress!" Courier-Journal.

Speaking of the insolence and ignorance of the new democratic door-keepers of the House of Representatives, the Baltimore Gazette (Dem.) says: "Yet it is a fact, plain to those having eyes, that hungry claim agents, brokers, lobbyists and other disreputable people infest the floor of the House, make committee rooms loafing places, control chairmen of committees, and do other things so notorious that there is no end to the scandal ignorance and insolence is imposing upon the majority in the House."

All the efforts of the democrats in Congress to harmonize on the financial question have so far been abortive; whatever yielding had been done at all has been done by the hard money men, but the party seems further removed from the adoption of a settled financial policy than it was when the rebel brigadiers first took their seats in the legislative councils of the nation they tried so hard to destroy. There is general consternation among the prominent men of the party at the failure to agree and the virtual break which it involves.

Foster's Democrat says "men like Grant, Blaine and Morton, are the enemies of republican liberty, and are as much the disunionists of 1876 as were those who fired the first gun upon Fort Sumpter in 1861." What in the world does that editor mean by such a saying? He has always maintained that the southern rebels were the only true-blue constitutional Unionists, and he supports Daniel Marcy heart and soul because of Marcy's steady and consistent support of "those who fired the first gun upon Fort Sumpter," and their companions and allies, the extreme State rights democracy of the South and North. We shall have him speaking of the rebels as rebels, soon.

"Yes, gentlemen, there is that contemptible word nation—the word that no good democrat uses when he can find any other, and forced to use it utters it always with disgust. This is no nation. We are free and independent States. There is no nationality, no centralization, no despotism, no nation outside of this miserable, thieving, rotten, radical party."—James Beck, democratic Senator-elect from Kentucky.

"Under the mellowing influence of time, and occasional demonstrations of peace and good will, the Southern people have forgotten much and forgiven much of the wrongs they bore. If it be less so among their invaders, it is but another example of the rule that the wrong-doer is less liable to forgive than he who has suffered a wrong."—Jeff. Davis.

It is estimated that the loss by the burning of the steamer Mary Bell, at Vicksburg, Miss., will reach over half a million dollars. She had a large number of passengers with valuable baggage. She was believed to be the largest steamer ever constructed for navigating the Mississippi or any other river—the extreme length of her hull being 325 feet, and her breadth 56 feet. In the construction of this boat over a million feet of water-seasoned oak was used. She had a battery of eight steel boilers. She cost over $125,000.

Barque Robert Kelly, Kingmans, of Boston, left Yokohama, Japan, in company with the mail steamer China, and arrived at San Francisco in twenty-four days, beating the steamer one day.

The democratic police judge of Laconia gives proof that his party knew what they were about when they selected him, for he is as ready to do the dirty work of his party as were the higher court judges last June. If a democrat is convicted in his court, no matter what previous convictions stand against him, he is "sent up" for just such a term as will let him out in time to vote for Marcy and democratic honor; but a republican of better reputation for a less offence gets a much longer sentence, enough to keep him confined until after election.

A party of river pirates have been boldly robbing vessels in New York harbor and along the Long Island coast, for some time past. Three of the scoundrels have been caught and the others are expected to be.

The recent flood of the Danube destroyed seventy houses in Pesth, Austria; over 5000 people whose houses were flooded were at one time in the churches. The consequent suffering is very great.

In the Boston sub-treasury there are 118 tons of silver coin.

The democratic Cincinnati Enquirer gnashes its teeth at the hard money platform of the Connecticut democrats and goes on to say: "When the name of democracy is used to carry out the schemes of the bankers and bondholders and oppressors of the people, the organization which sails under these colors should be 'first beaten, and then kicked into oblivion.' Let no democrat in Connecticut who believes in greenbacks, and who desires to see a return of better times, vote the ticket put forth by these swindlers. The place to reach them is the polls. If we are to have commercial ruin and disaster to please the money lords, let the republican party bring it about." What sweet unity.

It is a pleasant and dignified exhibition, greatly calculated to advance Congress in the public estimation, when in one of the departments of the House of Representatives four ex-members have accepted subordinate places, and are engaged in copying bills, or folding documents and mailing boxes. These are the civil service men of the democratic persuasion, turning out the tried and practised servants of the House from its humbler positions, and putting in their places the men who formerly held seats upon the floor. This is economy, civil service, and democratic consistency, all in one.

The Early Stages of Disease.

Those conditions of the body in which its functions are not performed with healthful activity, but sluggishly and irregularly, are in fact the early stages of disease. They are, moreover, almost invariably the result of local or general weakness, which can only be permanently overcome by an efficient tonic. There is no medical fact more clearly established than that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are admirably adapted to infuse vigor into the debilitated system, and to restore regularity to its interrupted functions. As weakness and irregularity are sure to develop into disease, the Bitters, by overcoming them are the means of averting far more serious evils. Debility most frequently manifests itself in the organs of digestion and evacuation, two important offices, whose vigorous performance is insured by the Bitters which also rectify weakness or irregularity of the bladder or kidneys, and fortify the system against malaria.

Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite.

At the meeting of the Ineffable Grand Lodge of Perfection in the Masonic Hall of this city on the 28th of February, the following were chosen officers for the ensuing year:

John Christie, T. P. Grand Master; John R. Holbrook, H. of T. Deputy Grand Master; William P. Walker, V. S. Grand Warden; Joseph Parry, V. J. Grand Warden; Albert R. Hatch, Grand Orator; Isaac Dow, Grand Treasurer; Oliver G. Fernald, Grand Secretary K. of S. and A.; John Dame, Grand Master of Ceremonies; John Nutter, Grand Captain of the Guard; Alfred J. Hill, Grand Hospitable Brother; William B. Randall, Grand Tyler.

Jottings.

Scheoner White Star, which ran upon "The Sisters" while attempting to make this port some months ago, and was afterward got off and brought to a wharf in this city, where her cargo of coal was discharged, and later was libelled and sold for non-payment of bills, arrived at St. John, N. B., (where she is now owned) on Friday, completely sheathed in ice. It appears that she left Boston with an assorted cargo, manned by her own captain, Mr. Raymond, and by three other captains, viz Weldon, Harrington and Kimball, who, having nothing to do, went on to Boston for a little trip, to go home again in the White Star. There was also a passenger on board named Baker. When twenty-four hours out the weather became bitter cold, the water iced up on her bows and rigging, covering her foward deck and bows with at least forty tons of ice, completely hiding her windlass, and making solid sheets of ice on the shrouds as high up as the light-boards. The men suffered great hardships, and on the voyage had only two meals. Getting at last under the land, near Point Lepreaux, they cut away some fifteen tons of ice, fearing that the vessel would sink. Eventually they ran ashore on Negrotown Point, in sight of Partridge Island, but it being on a rising tide, got off, and anchored, cutting the halyard to lower the mainsail. All night they kept watch, and in the morning slipped the anchor and were towed up to the city. Fortunately for them when they passed the previous day between the Wolves it was high water, or they must have been lost. The preservation of the vessel was a remarkable one.

Our good friend and estimable citizen, Dr. A. P. Stevens—who besides his proficiency in dentistry, is also active as an aldermen, and in the S. C. P. A., Board of Trade, and Reform Club, and formerly had several years experience as an amateur farmer at Greenland—announces his intention to go for to be a real veitable farmer in California,—where under "summer" skies, or at least a milder clime, the many friends he leaves behind will wish him the best success, including restored health.

Mr. S. G. Folsom, formerly of this city, for several years resident in Boston and New York as mercantile bookkeeper, has returned to this vicinity, purchased a small farm near Breakfast Hill four corners, in Rye, and built and opened a new store at Greenland Depot on the Eastern Railroad. Over the door of this he has raised the sign of "Farmer's Grange;" and while acknowledging that he is not a member of the new Order, justifies the title by claiming that whereas a Grange in England was originally a place where the farm bailiff or steward received the tithes or tribute from the tenants of the estate, he at his new establishment also takes in all farm produce, but returns a full equivalent. A PATRON.

A new and beautiful sign for "Portsmouth Grange, No. 22. P. of H.," (Patrons of Husbandry,) painted by Mr. E. D. Coffin, was yesterday raised at Granger's Hall on Congress street, the occasion being the second anniversary of this Grange. The lettering is in wood-colored rustic style, on a green ground,—and the effect is artistic and unique. The headquarters of the P. M. L. A. are also in the same hall with the P. of H., and the Y. M. C. A. also, what there is left of it; while the P. W. T. A. S. and the S. P. C. A. have their office in the same building. The F. & A. M. are also but a few doors off; the Reform Club, Young People's Union and Bow Mission hold meetings very near, while the K. of P. and I. O. of O. F. have elegant prominent signs on the outer walls in full view. Verily Portsmouth has her full share of Orders, not to mention disorder. Good luck to all the good ones.

Five-eighths of our government expenditures are to pay the expenses of crushing the rebellion with which Daniel Marcy was in full sympathy.

Board of Trade meeting at Common Council room this evening at half-past 7 o'clock.

Lent commences to-day.

Rev. J. F. Bingham, D. D., formerly rector of St. John's church in this city, has been called to take charge of a parish at Waterbury, Conn.

The complaints made by the first lieutenant and the members of the Artillery Company against the captain have been referred by Gov. Cheney to a military commission, from whose decision there will be no appeal. Lieut. Urch has been released from arrest.

Poems of George D. Prentice, now first collected, illustrated with a fine steel portrait, and edited, with a biography of Mr. Prentice, by John James Piatt; cloth, $2; gilt edges, $2.50; morocco, gilt edges, $5. Sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of price. This volume incudes the cream of all the poems of Mr. Prentice, the once famous editor of the Louisville Journal. His reputation as a wit and editor will remain a tradition among men generations hence, but the lasting record will be found in the many beautiful things in verse which he wrote during his long journalistic life. John James Piatt, himself a poet of reputation, was charged with the duty of compiling and editing the poems, so that we may be sure the selection has been such as Mr. Prentice would approve were he living. Robert Clarke & Co., Publishers, 65 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati.

With an admission fee of five cents, the temperance reform club took nearly sixty-five dollars at the door on Sunday evening. Some three hundred tickets were given away to persons who could ill afford to pay the price of admission.

Whipple Lodge, Sons of Temperance, of Kittery, will observe their tenth anniversary on Thursday afternoon and evening, holding a grand rally at Trefethen's hall, and closing in the evening with a dramatic and literary entertainment.

Col. E. W. Andrews, of Michigan, and Hon. Henry O. Pratt, member of Congress from Iowa, will address our citizens at the Temple next Friday evening. Col. Andrews is an independent democrat, who served in the Union army but remained a democrat throughout, and has only left his associates now that he is convinced that that is the only course for Union men to take. Both gentlemen are able speakers.

Seeming Failures in Good Efforts.

Organizations for the promotion of good objects sometimes fail. Even churches do so. Some established by the apostles and primitive christians became extinct, as at Phillipi, Corinth, Ephesus and other places. There are at least seven towns in Rockingham County in which at one time were Congregational churches, where there are none now. In some of them, other denominations occupy, and in some but little is done by any.

These facts are given preliminary to another statement to be made. There has been a State temperance organization for a few years past. It had an annual meeting. It had under its patronage one or more temperance lecturers, as Mr. Murphy, the eloquent Irish orator, and Doctor Cully. There was also a Women's League, and Miss Kelly lectured in its name. Where are these organizations now? No annual meeting has been called this winter, and I suppose they are given up. The meeting of the State Reform Clubs held recently may take the place of the above; if so, very well. And on this same subject, temperance—how many temperance papers have been established in this State and failed. The history of them all would be interesting, yet mingled with some sadness that they existed only for a time. Some of them were bright shining stars in the gloom of the terrible night of intemperance, poverty and crime. Some were morning stars, heralding coming day. One was in Portsmouth, one in Dover and one in Exeter. A number were in Concord. Now there is not one in the State. But it is a satisfaction to known that the light the Press can give on temperance has not become dim. Religious, political and miscellaneous papers are multiplied. In them there is more directly or indirectly on temperance than there could have been in one temperance paper.

So, on the whole, there is nothing discouraging in the present outlook. The forms of work change, but principles live. Truth is enduring, and at length must prevail. J. F.

"Fifteen Years Ago."

In contrasting "then" and "new" the Union says: "Fifteen years ago we were a prosperous and happy people, and but for the disastrous result of the election in 1860, we should have remained so."

A "happy and prosperous people" were we? Let us see:

Fifteen years ago there were about four millions of human beings in bondage, under as severe and cruel a despotism as was ever exercised by the Sultan of Turkey.

Fifteen years ago whole communities slept upon their arms for fears of a negro insurrection and a massacre of the whites throughout the South.

Fifteen years ago it was possible for a member of the Senate or House of Representatives to be knocked down with a bludgeon and beaten almost to death, for uttering words distasteful to the slave power. If not possible then, it was simply because the growing power of republicanism held in check the savage barbarism and insolent brutality of the representatives of slavery.

Fifteen years ago a native of New Hampshire could not go beyond Mason & Dixon's line, into the region of slavery, without his every step being dogged by emissaries of the slave drivers, and a single word against slavery would cost him his life.

Fifteen years ago the slave drivers could follow their chattels into free States, force them to return into slavery, and whip them to death for running away. If they couldn't, was it democracy that prevented them?

Fifteen years ago democratic traitors throughout the South and in Congress were plotting for the overthrow of the national government, and the establishment of a confederacy, with slavery as its corner stone—and their plotting resulted in five years of civil war, the loss of half a million lives, and an immense national debt under which the nation is staggering to-day.

Truly, we were a "prosperous and happy people" fifteen years ago, but God forbid a return of such prosperity. Better the national debt, with all its burdens; better the dull times, with all their despondency; better, a thousand fold better republican rule, with all its shortcomings, than the "prosperity" of fifteen years ago, under democratic misrule.—Manchester Dispatch.

—A traveller lately returned from Wichita, Kan., describes the customs prevailing in the District Court there as anything but impressive. A large sign hung in a conspicuous place announced "No Smoking Allowed." The Judge sat with his chair tipped back, and his feet among the law books and the ink bottles on his desk, smoking a capacious meerschaum pipe. The jury lounged comfortably in their box, nine of them smoking vigorously, while among the Bar and the spectators every other man had a lighted pipe or cigar in his mouth, and the atmosphere of the court room was almost blue.

Reasons why Farmers should purchase the Halladay Wind Mill.

It is the first reliable self-regulating Wind Mill ever made, and continues to lead the van.

It has stood the test of nearly a quarter of a century, and has gained a reputation as broad as its use is extensive.

It is the only wind mill generally adopted on all the railroads.

It is the cheapest wind mill.

The United States Wind Engine and Pump Co. have the largest wind mill manufactory in the world. We are willing to put our mill upon its merits. We ask an investigation of facts and motives. We duly appreciate the patronage and support we have received in the past, and while we solicit a continuance of favors, we shall try to merit them. We are the pioneers in the production of a wind mill adapted to the use of farmers.

Daily Chronicle.

—A good example to governors who temper justice with too much mercy has just been set by Governor Ludington of Wisconsin, who, when importuned recently to pardon a criminal, said: "I believe the dicisions of our courts, arrived at after full and fair hearing, should not be interfered with except upon the most grave considerations."

—"For heaven's sake, lend me five dollars!" said a destitute man to his friend; "I have had nothing in my house to eat for four days but rice." "Rice!" said the other, "If I had known you had rice I would have come around to dinner."

—A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican says that the continental currency, which in '76 had become very much depreciated, became much more so when the British introduced a very good counterfeit of it. After the war the currency was called in by act of Congress, the Government desiring to pay the honest debts contracted in the name of the people. Accordingly, holders of continental money returned it to the treasury, when it was sorted and credit given for the genuine. On the counterfeit notes was stamped the word "Dam," a contraction of the Latin damnatus (condemned.) Hence the force of the expression, "not worth a continental dam," for if a genuine note was worth little a continental "dam," or counterfeit note, must have been worthless.

Ten years ago Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. established their advertising agency in New York City. Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!
☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package they sustained a reputation for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:
Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden, Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have tried everything for relief, but all of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that I became discouraged. I was so much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. Finally I saw one of your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained your Pills for them. I send herewith one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.
Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.
BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I was so bad when I sent for them I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.3s for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., July 16, 1875.
MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and limbs, so I was unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, and received but little, finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken the third I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as easily as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.
Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMONIC CORDIAL

is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. Is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMONICE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMONICE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMONICE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

Buchman's Pulmonic Cordial.

The Pulmonic Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

PULMONICE.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.
"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."
The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on this continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Republican rule of the past. What it will do or course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be purged away, and many reforms are to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and, particularly, of the Roman Catholic, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopeful signs that will witness the long deferred revival.
In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan prejudices or personal ends or ambition.
THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the utmost fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion and leader in its early days, confident that it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under Democratic banners. But it can never be the servant of caucuses or conventions, and it must decide what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and speak out plainly for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics it has aimed to be direct and honest men, whom the country knows and can trust; to secure hard money, Administration reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from political citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. This it found itself has fully realized. The forces for the splendid hard money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as earnestly striving to defeat the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy filching the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly guided in future discussions that there have been storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.
One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much encumbered by more narrow ties, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that considerable and important reforms have been wrought in two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.
THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost conformity with political fairness; and its columns free from personal wranglings; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from unscrupulous, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.
Perhaps no one will question that such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It owes this position by no chance or accidental success and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished writers in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

A BRAVE DRUMMER BOY.

Col. Cyrus Leland, a native of Grafton, in this State, now of Troy, Kansas, who raised and commanded the Fifth Kansas Volunteers in the war, relates the following incident:

"In the Spring of 1864 we were marching along in a broken woody country in southern Arkansas, southward, when one day the infantry, about two hundred strong, acting as escort to my mule train of about one hundred and sixty wagons, was moving just in advance of it. As they passed a sharp turn in the road by a corner of a field a strong body of rebels suddenly rushed out from the timber and brush and attacked them, killing and wounding the officers and some of the men and two of the three musicians. Our escort was thrown into confusion and ran back; so did the little drummer boy, with his drum over his shoulder. The head of my train was just approaching the turn of the road, but I had now halted. Five of us—myself, clerks, and orderly—were sitting on our horses, revolvers in hand, as the infantry came running back toward us; but the little drummer boy, on arriving at the fence corner just before me, looked up, bareheaded as he was, and, seeing us and the train, at once wheeled round and began beating the 'long roll,' which means 'fall into line.'

The little black-haired fellow played his level best, and the flying men hearing the roll call, and seeing the brave boy beating so furiously and resolutely, with his face toward the approaching enemy, began falling into line, and soon nearly all of them were in battle order and blazing away at the coming rebels. The drum, however, could still be heard above the din and rattle of the musketry. We discharged our revolvers at the enemy across the corner of the field fence, and the fire of our now rallied escort was so hot and effective that the rebels soon retreated and ran into the timber out of sight, leaving many dead and wounded. I rode up to the little drummer boy, and, patting him on his head, told him he ought to have a captain's commission, for he by his coolness and courage had stopped the panic and saved the train from capture. 'Well,' said he, 'the long roll will stop a panic if anything will.'"

A Remarkable Woman.

The Grand Duchess Maria, whose death in St. Petersburg was recently announced, was a remarkable woman in many respects. From her youth she showed wonderful intelligence and an uncontrollable temper, which only the despotic nature of her father proved capable of mastering. She was the eldest daughter of the Czar Nicholas, who is said to have been passionately fond of her; yet the violence of her nature seems to have caused him more than once to whip her with his own hand. She was the terror and despair of all her governesses and teachers, yet when she became of age she showed more erudition than any of her preceptors, and was most liberal in granting pensions to all of them. She was too indolent to become a good musician or painter herself, but she was one of the best connoisseurs of music and painting in her country. Her physical development was unusually precocious. At fifteen years of age she looked already a woman; and when at twenty she was going to be wed to the Duke of Leuchtenberg, who enjoyed the reputation of being the handsomest man in Europe, those who assembled at the wedding ceremony were so struck by the stately appearance of the young Duchess that in a few months her name became far and wide throughout Europe the synonym for womanly majesty. She outshone her own mother in the palace, not to speak of her sisters; and when she showed herself during her travels through the capitals of Europe, she totally eclipsed Queen Victoria, so much admired at that time, and who, though they were both of the same age, looked by the side of the Grand Duchess Maria like a mere schoolgirl. Upon the death of her first husband she contracted a morganatic marriage with one of her father's guardsmen, who was also celebrated for his herculean build and a remarkable manly beauty. The Czar was very angry on learning of this marriage, expelled the Count from the service, and ordered his daughter to take a trip abroad. By and by, however, as the lady did not show any disposition to give in, the father reconciled himself with her and acknowledged the marriage, though he never consented to make the acknowledgement a public one.

SONGS AND BALLADS OF '76.

"Yankee Doodle" was a great favorite with the patriots of the Revolution; for it always meant downright patriotism. When it first came into use in the colonies is not known. Some of the emigrants may have brought it from England. These who say it was learned of the Dutch at New York or Albany are not so wild in their guessing as they might be. It has been said, and believed, that this tune was composed in 1755 by a Dr. Schackburg, of the British army, for the New England troops that fought with the British against the French at Niagara and Fontenac. It may or may not be true that he brought it to the attention of the New Englanders at that time; but it is certain that he did not compose it. It was known in England in the time of Charles First; and in the time of the Second Charles it was used for a song on a lady of questionable character, which has since become a nursery song:

Lucy Lockett lost her pocket,
Kitty Fisher found it;
Nothing in it, nothing in it,
But the binding round it.

In times not much later, the English had a Yankee Doodle in Kent, and sang the tune to a popular song which began thus:

Yankee Doodle came to town
Upon a Kentish poney;
He stuck a feather in his hat
And called him Macaroni.

Esart A. Duyckinck, after considerable investigation, sugggested that the tune came originally from Holland, and referred to an old Dutch harvest-song which has this refrain:

Yanker didel, doodel do an,
Didel, dudel lanter,
Yanke viver, voover vown,
Botermilk und Tanther.

The pay of the harvesters was buttermilk for drink and one tenth of the grain they harvested. Hence the last line of the chorus, which means "buttermilk and a tenth." This old song, with its tune, our Yankee Doodle, has been current in Holland and the Low Countries from time immemorial. There is good reason for believing the tune originated there. It is manifest that our Yankee Doodle was originally and anciently a Dutchman, a jolly gentleman of the Low Countries, who came to us through England, was gladly naturalized, and at length advanced to high honors. In the time of the Revolution the song for which "Yankee Doodle" was most used may have been first written as a burlesque, and then revised with a more genial aim. It has come down to us with the accompaniments of several "various readings."

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

The Financial Unpleasantness.

Upon the currency question, the democrats in Congress are so far completely at sea. The Boston Post, which we quote as being in this respect indisputable authority, says that the democratic Caucus Finance Committee is equally divided, one-half being in favor of a repeal of the resumption act of 1875, without more; while one-half of the committee insists that said law shall not be repealed without the accompaniment of the repeal by some substitute looking toward resumption. Two aspects of this state of things will present themselves, each to a different class of minds. It will be said on the one side, that this divergence of opinion, indicating, as it does, a similar difference of views throughout the democratic party of the country, assures the impossibility of such cooperation of the two wings as will render possible its success in the coming Presidential election; and that, therefore, the initiation of a sound currency is, if postponed, certainly assured by and through the republican party within a short time. On the other side, the pessimists will argue that the inflationists in the democratic party, being the aggressive portion of the party, will undoubtedly either directly or indirectly carry the party policy, and that it is within the probabilities that it may prevail in the Presidential election to the ruin of the country. All that can with any emphasis of truth be said, now, is, that the condition of the nation in this regard is most critical, and that it will require all the wisdom and energy of the republicans in Congress, and all the reserve patriotism of the people at large, to prevent the most terrible catastrophe, not only to our financial interests, but eventually to our political liberties. Grant inflation, and the wildest imagination cannot conceive what would be the result to the Union and to free institutions.—Providence Journal.

News and Notes.

The Liberal democrats of New Hampshire, says the Nashua Telegraph, are going to vote en masse for Governor Cheney. It says they have had enough of the policy which foists upon them year after year candidates of the most obnoxious Bourbon type. They see that their leaders always manage to put in nomination for Governor one of the most inveterate and relentless anti-war democrats that they can find. This year their candidate is exceedingly distasteful in this respect. He never gave a vote for the war of humanity during his whole term in Congress, and the only speech he made was written for him by an open and avowed sympathizer with the South all through the contest. He voted to condemn President Lincoln's emancipation proclamation. He voted against the repeal of the odious fugitive slave law. He voted to make peace at any price, and in fact never gave a vote for any measure that would hurt the rebels or help the loyal cause.

One of the converts at the recent revival in Hampton is violently, and it is feared, hopelessly insane.

The new Town Hall and schoolhouse at North Hampton will be completed in a short time.

Some fellows who, a week ago Sunday, threw stones through the Methodist church windows at Hampton, have been arrested in Exeter, and fined $80.

A great deal is said in the Southern papers about shaking the "bloody shirt" and about Northern vindictiveness toward the South. Has anybody in the North heard such a speech from a Northern man's lips as Senator Gordon lately delivered? Has anybody in the North uttered such blood and thunder sentiments as Robert Toombs lately expressed? The fact is the spirit of reconciliation in the North, as expressed in the papers, is ten times as strong as that which exists in the South.

The military establishmnt of the country was during the ten years preceeding the rebellion, the especial favorite of the democratic party, then in power. Some of the officers were seduced by the kindness of Jefferson Davis and others who had befriended them, into the rebellion. Now the democratic party has accidentally regained its ascendency in the house of representatives, and its first blow is struck at the loyal army which has defended and preserved the Union. The expenses of the army per capita were larger from 1840 to 1860 than they have been from 1866 to 1876, yet the democrats now want to strike at it by reducing the appropriations for West Point. The salaries of professors there are to be razeed, the band abolished, and other similar small savings made, calculated to cripple that institution.

Although the estate of the late Treasurer Blaisdell, of Dartmouth College, has paid to the college $15,000 to make good the deficiency in his accounts, it is not admitted that he was guilty of any intentional wrong in his transactions. An experienced accountant who has examined his books says: "I have no doubt that the college had the benefit in some way of all its funds that came into the treasurer's hands, and whatever his estate is called upon to pay is the penalty for his want of promptness and system."

The checklists in wards three and five, in Manchester, as posted by the democratic officials, indicate the intentions of that party to perpetrate even greater frauds than those of last year, if they can. The lists of names have been increased by many hundreds, while the ward boundaries have not been changed and the population has decreased. The prosecutions for the frauds last Spring will no doubt deter some of the repeaters from being so useful as usual, and the republicans may be able to prevent the wholesale frauds of the last election from being repeated this year; but that the democrats mean to try it on is certain from the way they have made up the checklists.

The early fishing fleet has commenced to arrive at Gloucester from Georges Banks. About one hundred Gloucester vessels are engaged in the Georges fishery at the present time, forty-eight of which arrived on the night of the 28th, and next day. They averaged about 20,000 pounds of codfish and 1500 pounds of halibut. The schooner S. R. Lane had 80,000 pounds of codfish and 5000 pounds of halibut; the schooner Clara B. Chapman had 70,000 pounds of codfish and 3000 pounds of halibut—the two largest codfish trips this season. The schooner Pioneer took in 50,000 pounds of halibut, the result of three day's hand-line fishing, —the largest hand-line trip ever carried into Gloucester from Georges.

The steamship Faraday arrived at the location of the fracture of the Direct Cable on the 29th, picked up and buoyed both ends of the cable close together, and waited for favorable weather to make the final splice.

It is feared that some vessel has been sunk, with all on board, off Peconic Inlet, L. I., during the recent gales. Spars and rigging, a lady's muff and other articles, have been washed ashore.

There were some very able and talented gentlemen who decided, four years ago, that the everlasting ruin of this country was party—so they got together and formed a new party. They then decided that there was no other name given under Heaven and among men through which the country could be saved except the name of Charles Francis Adams—so they nominated Horace Greeley. They announced that nothing in the world but free-trade or a revenue tariff could save the country—so they agreed to say nothing about the tariff, and nominated the highest old High Protectionist that ever kept outside of Bedlam. Civil-service reform was the only thing really, after all, they concluded, that could save the country, and we should all go to the devil pell mell if we did not insist upon it that editors of newspapers—those great moral cuglies and mouth-pieces for the people—should be perpetually divorced from office-holding—so they nominated the editor of the greatest newspaper in the country. Notwithstanding this harmonious evolution of a plan to save the country, the stolid untalented voted it down, and went straight to Grant and ruin.—Ohio State Journal.

Don Carlos will go to England.

A fair illustration of the swindling by life insurance companies, as at present conducted, was brought to our notice last week. A gentleman in this city holds a life policy of $4000 in a New York company, upon which he has paid over five hundred dollars, and upon which dividends to the amount of fifty dollars are due. Recently, being discontented with his investment, he wrote to the company and asked the surrender value of his policy, and he was informed that it was seventy-seven dollars. Just think of it! Here was a policy upon which the holder had paid in cash over five hundred dollars, upon which, only last month, fifty dollars had been paid, and yet all that the company would pay the holder to surrender his claim was seventy-seven dollars! If that isn't swindling—a public imposition—what is it?—Journal of Commerce.

Daniel McFarland was found wandering in the streets of St. Louis recently in a state of intoxication. When taken to the police station he became partly sober and raved incoherently for a long time about the great trouble which seemed always on his mind—the assassination of Richardson. He had upon his person no valuables of any consequence, and no money whatever.

A vessel of the Spanish coastguard seized an English trading vessel five miles from Gibraltar, Feb. 28. The merchantman's crew succeeded in regaining possession of their ship and took her into Gibraltar, with the prize crew from Guarda Costa as prisoners.

The light house at Avery's rock, near Machias, Me., was quite seriously injured on the night of Feb. 15, during the severe gale. The waves broke so high that the whole rock was covered at times with water and spray. The small wooden house erected for the accommodation of the workmen employed in building the light house last summer, and used by the keeper as a store house, was washed away, together with the supply of coal and provisions. The keeper's boat was also destroyed, thus cutting off all communication with the outside world.

A dispatch from Washington, dated Feb. 29, says the second call of the docket of the Alabama claims court having been completed, leaving only about one hundred cases to be disposed of, Mr. Frank W. Hackett of this city has resigned the position of assistant counsel for the United States, the resignation to take effect March 5.

—In one of the union schools the other day a teacher departed for half an hour from the usual programme, and asked her scholars such questions as might interest them. After she had asked, "What makes the wind blow?" "What causes rain?" "Who invented the locomotive?" and so forth, and helped to explain them, she said: "Now, children, any of you who desire can ask me questions." No one seemed to think of anything except a freckled faced boy about fourteen years old. He raised his hand, and the teacher said: "Well, Robert, have you a question?" "Yes, mum. I'd like to know what they mean when they say to a feller, 'Oh, pull down your vest!'" The teacher had to admit that she was behind the age.—Detroit Free Press.

—A German newspaper relates the following anecdote: In an imperial city lately a criminal was condemned to be beheaded who had a singular itching to play at ninepins. While the sentence was pronounced he had the temerity to offer a request to be permitted to play once more at his favorite game at the place of execution, and then, he said, he would submit without a murmur. As the last prayer of a dying man, his request was granted. When he arrived at the solemn spot he found everything prepared, the pins being set up and the bowls ready. He played with no little earnestness. But the sheriff at length, seeing that he showed no inclination to desist, privately ordered the executioner to strike the fatal blow as he stooped for the bowl. The executioner did so, and the head dropped into the culprit's hand as he raised himself to see what had occurred. He immediately aimed at the nine, conceiving it was the bowl which had fallen. All the pins falling, the head loudly exclaimed, "Well, I have won the game!"

—The once-famous Dutch Gap canal has, with comparatively slight labor, been enlarged so that it now contains more than twenty feet of water, and enables vessels to save seven miles in passing up and down the James River.

—The boys at Winnemucca, Nevada, had some fun with a showman. They formed a line from the ticket office extending around a near corner. Each asked the price of admission, and, upon being told that it was fifty cents, shook his head, said it was too dear, retired, and fell in the rear of the line. This was kept up until the showman, astounded by the unanimity and the seemingly great number, reduced the charge, and then every boy cleared out.

—Philip Gilbert Hamerton says horseflesh is better than mutton any day.

—One of the worst features of home life is the lack of respect existing between members of a family, caused, no doubt, by that familiarity which proverbially breeds contempt. The little fascinations of toilet which the wife as the sweetheart was wont to don, are kept only for the casual stranger, and the husband who would not have been guilty in the days of courtship of appearing with an unshaven beard and tumbled hair, will seriously inflict both on the wife. The awkward tread on the dress, which in "society" provokes a polite "Beg pardon" and an answering smile, at home raises a frown and "You shouldn't wear such long gowns," or "You needn't have had such long feet." The angry word pitched on a high key does not benefit a lady or gentleman, and could we become convinced that such disrespect is unpardonably vulgar, we should be quicker to mend our ways.

—An English maiden lady has contrived to make a pretty shrewd bargain with the Liverpool Steam Packet Company, which, desiring to extend its premises, decided to purchase some of her land. The acute spinster sold the land cheap, but caused to be inserted in the agreement an article to this effect, that during her lifetime she and a lady companion should have the privilege of travelling in any of the company's vessels. The day after the agreement was signed she sold her house and furniture, and, having found a companion, went on board one of the company's steamers, just about to sail for South America; and from that time to this she has lived at sea and at the company's expense. She advertises for some lady who wishes to make the voyage as her companion, and who pays her fare, and in this way, it is said, has already accumulated about ten thousand dollars. The company have offered her more than this to cancel the agreement, but this she refuses to do, and as the life at sea suits her health remarkably, there is no prospect that her voyaging will soon come to an end.

If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watery or weak, feel dull and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have the Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—a perfect Specific for Catarrh, "Cold in the Head," or Catarrhal Headache.

A Genial Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a genial restorative. The changes which this great botanic remedy produces in the disordered organization are always agreeably though surely progressive, never abrupt and violent. On this account it is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it imitates those processes which result in the re-establishment of healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that fruitful cause of debility, indigestion, coupled, as it usually is, with biliousness and constipation. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant secretion are results which promptly and invariably attend its systematic use. It is, besides, the best protective against malaria, and a first rate diuretic.

TOO YOUNG TO DIE.—Thousands of young persons between the ages of 16 and 25 die of consumption, every one of whom might have been saved by using HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR when the cough first set in.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute.

The climate of New England is extremely "trying" to weak lungs, and often people are compelled by its rigors to seek a warmer climate or go down to the grave with consumption. Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam strengthens and heals weak lungs and temperes the climate to all.

In Everybody's Mouth.

PRAISE AND SOZODONT.—Greatest luxury of modern times—beautifies and preserves the teeth. The repulsive breath is rendered as fragrant as a rose, and coldness by friends, or in business, will now be no longer noticed.

Spalding's Glue mends broken toys, &c.

Sore Throat, Cough, Cold, and similar troubles, if suffered to progress, result in serious pulmonary affections, oftentimes incurable. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" reach directly the seat of the disease and give almost instant relief.

The people's medicine—Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam.

Pyle's Bicicle Saleratus.—Universally acknowledged the best in use. Each pound bears the name of JAMES PYLE. None genuine without. tj678

Eds. Chronicle: I see by your paper of the 29th ult., that you have re-produced an affidavit prepared for, and signed by, Edward B. Stover, nearly a year since. My name is most improperly mentioned in that affidavit. I well remember seeing that individual on the election day mentioned, but I have not the slightest recollection of having spoken to him on any subject that day. I am, however, absolutely positive that the language imputed to me, by him, I never used; and I unhesitatingly declare it to be entirely and unqualifiedly false.

March 1, 1876. JAMES W. NUTTER.

Jottings.

Opening rally of the campaign tomorrow evening at the Temple. Col. Andrews, a war democrat, and Hon. Henry O. Pratt of Iowa, will address the meeting.

Dr. Kenison, chiropodist, is stopping at the Rockingham House for a few days on a professional visit.

The temperance movement is making good progress in Kittery, a large Reform Club having been started there, and so thorough has been its influence that not an open bar can now be found. Mr. Charles W. Gardner of this city has been invited to address the citizens of Kittery and will speak upon the subject of temperance in the Methodist church on Saturday evening, March 4. Mr. Gardner has also accepted an invitation to speak in Greenland some day next week, the date of which will be duly announced. Quite an interest has been awakened in the latter place, also, in the all-absorbing subject of temperance.

Mr. Winfield Scott Kimball, eldest son of Mr. Hezekiah Kimball, of this city, who served through the war of 1812 under Gen. Scott, whom he revered so greatly that he named his first son after the General, died at the Massachusetts General Hospital on Monday, from the result of injuries sustained on the Boston & Albany railroad. Young Kimball served through the Mexican war, and was body guard to Gen. Scott, whom he held in as great respect as did his father. He also served through the war of the rebellion, and was a prisoner at Andersonville six months and thirteen days. He was a man of sterling integrity, but misfortune seemed to be his lot in life, suffering by personal accidents, sickness and loss of property. He was 53 years of age and left no family.

The Temperance Reform Club will hold another grand rally at the Temple this evening. Col. J. Horace Kent is expected to be present and tell what temperance has done for him. Several reformed young men will also speak, which, together with the singing of temperance songs will make a grand evening's entertainment. Instead of a collection being taken, the small fee of five cents will be charged at the door. We hope Mr. Kent will be greeted with a rousing audience.

—A gentleman in Great Barrington, Mass., has a geography published in London in 1749, in which California is described as an island, and a map is given showing it to be entirely surrounded by water. The books tells of a tree in Florida, "the leaves of which, if bruised and thrown into a large pond of water, all the beasts that drink thereof will swell up and burst asunder." It says that the air of Pennsylvania is "generally granted to be clear and sweet, the heavens being seldom overcast with clouds," and that "the length of days and nights is much the same as in New Jersey." There is a chapter devoted to "Rarities of New York," in which it is said that "in divers parts of New York, especially those nigh unto and upon the banks of the river Connecticut, grows a sort of snake-weed, whose root is much esteemed for the bitting of the rattlesnake."

—The Norwich Bulletin says: Speaking of Rev. Mr. Shipman's manuscript, they say that he stopped a boy in the street the other day, and asked him to read a word in a memorandum he gave him. "It's my writing," he said; "a memorandum of some things they want at home, but I can't exactly make it out." "It looks to me like quince," said the boy. "Ah, that reminds me," exclaimed the dominie, "I see now, it's cranberries," and it was.

—Missouri editors do not indulge in coarse epithets. They merely remark of a contemporary, in the spirit of quiet sarcasm that "his ears would do for awnings to a ten-story wholesale hog packing establishment."

—"What am I made of?" asked a little girl fresh from Sunday school lesson, as she essayed to show off her knowledge to a younger sister. "I don't know," was the honest answer. "What does mamma sweep up from the floor?" was the first speaker's next trial in the Socratic method. "Pins, needles, and hairpins," was the prompt but unexpected response.

—A man has been found who does not complain at the law's delays. He lives in a house which is the subject of a lawsuit, and having been ordered by both litigants to pay no rent to the other, he hopes the contest may continue for years.

—A man gambled away his trousers in New Haven recently. Wrapping his long ulster about him, he left the saloon, high top boots and long ulster concealing the loss of his trousers. He engaged a room in a hotel for the night, and in the morning complained to the landlord that his trousers, with twenty dollars in the pockets, had been stolen from his room during the night. The laudlord, anxious to preserve the good name of his house, replaced the money and the trousers, and sent the swindler on his way rejoicing.

—When a man arrives at the age of sixty it is time he should quit acting like sixty.

—Charles Love recently killed Edward Valentine at Indianapolis. It is the first instance on record where Love has sent a Valentine to another world.

—A farmer complains that a hook and ladder company has been organized in his neighborhood. He states that the ladder is used after dark for climbing into the henhouse, after which the hooking is done.

—The Effingham House, Effingham, Ill., had a cook whose whole mind was in his profession. On Friday his pies did not rise well, and the conscientious artist went out and shot himself through the lungs. He is still alive, but will die.

—As George III. was walking the quarter-deck of one of his men-of-war with his hat on, a sailor asked his messmate who that fellow was who did not "douse his peak to the Admiral." "Why, it's the king." "Well, king or no king," retorted the other, "he's an unmannerly dog." "Where should he learn manners?" replied Jack: "he was never out of sight of land in his life!"

—The pearl fisheries of the Gulf of California threaten to be entirely ruined unless the Government shuts down on the wholesale use of submarine armor; last year they yielded about $100,000 worth of pearls and $200,000 worth of shells, while this year's operations will hardly pay expenses.

—Old beliefs and superstitions die hard in England. It is not so very long ago since an ignorant Yorkshire yokel would offer up, along with his ordinary prayer, the following petition: "From witches and wizards, and long-tailed buzzards, and creeping things that run in hedge-bottoms, good Lord deliver us." A coroner's jury have returned a verdict of wilful murder against one Haywood, a laborer, of Little Compton, South Warwickshire, who, a few days ago, attacked an old woman, aged eighty, named Ann Tennant, and stuck a two-pronged fork into her, because, as he told the Court, she "was the properest witch I ever knowed." He confided to the coroner that "there were sixteen more in the parish who should be done away with," and that there were also a good many villagers quite as influential and intelligent as himself who shared his somewhat uncompromising opinions on the subject.

—A text for boys and girls—"Little children, love one another, and when you are old you will not depart from it."

—Mr. Swope, of Maryland, wanted to teach school, and when he was declared incompetent he burned the schoolhouse down. That didn't make him any more competent, however, as he admitted while they were taking him to jail.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in brisk demand at the public libraries are "vapid and sensational." He thinks that parents ought to guide the children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "As worse literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or his hand to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have exciting, stimulating and delusive literature, unfits it for healthy food, fills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most under control. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can nowhere be so effectually poisoned as at its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by curious and eager children, must influence to a large extent the tone of thought and the drift of action of those whose plastic minds come under their influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in the above to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all editors were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS), there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says: "In

That threatens the children, some cheap, vitally wholesome and really attractive magazine is required for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in arts and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

REV. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in an article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE for GIRLS and BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more trustworthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

In order to place this magazine within the reach of all, the publishers offer to send the 14 numbers (Nov., '75, to Dec., '76) for $3.00.

Or, for $5.00, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75, the full price of which is $7.00. Or for $8.00 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00.

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the handsomest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,500 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have five splendid serials, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc.; more than equal in contents to 20 volumes of ordinary children's books of 9,000 book pages costing $30.00!!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty-five Cents.

Daily Chronicle.

—A South African lioness recently died in the Royal Zoological Gardens of Ireland. The closing weeks of her life were marked by a touching incident worthy of being recorded. The carnivora when in health have no objection to the presence of rats in their cages; on the contrary they rather welcome them as a relief to the monotony of existence, which constitutes the chief trial of a wild animal in confinement. In illness the case is different; for the ungrateful rats begin to nibble the toes of the lord of the forest before his death, and add considerably to his discomforts. To save the lioness from this annoyance, a fine little terrier was placed in her cage, who was at first received with a sulky growl; but when the first rat appeared, and the lioness saw the little dog toss him into the air, catching him with professional skill across the loins with a snap as he came down, she began to understand what the terrier was for. She coaxed him to her side, folded her paw around him, and each night the little creature slept at the breast of the lioness, enfolded with her paws, and watching that his natural enemies did not disturb the rest of his mistress. The rats had a bad time during those six weeks.

—An old Irish woman who called on a Rutland family to beg, recently, being asked if she had a husband and what he was doing, replied, "I have, and, faith, he hasn't brains enough to sit down."

—The daughters of Sir Edward Thornton, the English Minister at Washington, wear thick soled shoes, plain unpinned back dresses and heavy old fashioned cloaks. And they are pictures of health.

—A temperance society on a novel plan has been organized in Chicago. The members are pledged, if they wish to drink, in no case to exceed three drinks a day, and reserve the right to drink a half bottle of claret or ale at each meal.

Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!
These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more, for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:
Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 5, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have been unable to work. For three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and thought I could not live long. I by several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured two packages in Manchester, and by using them have myself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.
Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.
BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send me a package for me;" I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I would lose my mind. Have tried almost the panacea of medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must get rid of my life. I have expended one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I tried it for a dollar. I took half a box of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My trouble was in the Liver, Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be ashamed of money would have to pay, for I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00; please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.
Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Trouble Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Danvers, one in Andover, one in Salem, one in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefitted. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.
Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Cordial he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent its spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
— USE —
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.
"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."
The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which promise to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the actions of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fail in peace to enter on a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great measures to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the state schools, will provoke sharp discussion and bitter rivalry in politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopes that it will witness the long deferred revival.
In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to the favor and support of the intelligent reader, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, unbiased by partisan zeal, selfish or personal hates or ambition.
THE TRIBUNE will be found true to the honor of the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will discuss the current Administration measures under the old banner. But it can never be the servant of unnecessary expenditure. It must approve what it finds good in the acts and resolutions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. It will speak what it can honestly concede to the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country knows to be worthy trust; to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the best times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the Forces for the splendid hard money victories won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and as a result early arriving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which has been struggling the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and saving large sums in every direction. It will pursue sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of the next six months as to convince its readers yet greater approval.
One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been the loss of some old friends who followed the leaders of some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the splendid hard money principles which Republicans and independent voters have time withdrawn or have yet generously forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.
THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the models which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will devote all its space for the readers' interests.
From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their homes, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 its positions assumed long ago by foreign journals as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most liberal expenditure to secure the ablest, freest, most intelligent, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes many of the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

BUTTERWICK'S GAS BILL.

During one of the few cold snaps that we have had this winter, the gas metre in Mr. Butterwick's house was frozen. Mr. Butterwick attempted to thaw it out by pouring hot water over it, but after spending an hour upon the effort, he emerged from the contest with the metre with his feet and trousers wet, his hair full of dust and cobwebs, and his temper at fever heat. After studying how he should get rid of the ice in the metre, he concluded to use force for the purpose, and so, seizing a hot poker, he jammed it through a vent hole and stirred it round inside of the metre with a considerable amount of vigor. He felt the ice give way, and heard the wheels buzz around with rather more vehemence than usual. Then he went up stairs.

He noticed for three or four days that the internal machinery of that metre seemed to be rattling around in a remarkable manner. It could be heard all over the house. But he was pleased to find that it was working again in spite of the cold weather, and he retained his serenity.

About two weeks afterward his gas bill came. It accused him of burning during the quarter 1,500,000 feet of gas, and it called on him to settle to the extent of nearly $850,000. Before Mr. Butterwick's hair had had time to descend after the first shock, he put on his hat and went down to the gas office. He addressed one of the clerks:

"How much gas did you make at the Blank Works last quarter?"

"I donno; about a million feet, or more, I reckon."

"Well, you've charged me in my bill for burning a half a million more than you made; I want you to correct it."

"Less see the bill. Hm-m-m; this is all right. It's taken off of the metre. That's what the metre says."

"Spose'n it does. I couldn't have burned more'n you made."

"I can't help that. The metre can't lie."

"Well, but how'd you account for the difference?"

"Dunno. 'Taint our business to go nosing and poking around after scientific truth. We depend on the metre. It that says you burned six million feet, why you must have burned it even if we never made a foot of gas out at the works."

"To tell the honest truth," said Butterwick, "that meter was frozen, and I stirred it up with a poker and set it whizzing around."

"Price just the same," said the clerk. "We charge for pokers just like we do for gas."

"You ain't actually going to have the audacity to ask me to pay $350,000 on account of that poker?"

"If it was $700,000 I'd take it with a calmness that would surprise you. Pay up or we'll turn off your gas."

"Turn it off and be hanged," exclaimed Butterwick, as he emerged from the office, tearing his bill to fragments. Then he went home, and, grasping that too lavish poker, he approached the metre. It had registered another million feet since the bill was made out. It was running up a score of a hundred feet a minute. In a month Butterwick would have owed the gas company more than the United States Government owes its creditors. So he beat the metre into a shapeless mass, tossed it into the street, and turned off the gas inside the cellar.

He is now sitting up at nights writing an essay on "Our Grinding Monopolies" by the light of a kerosene lamp.—Phil. Bulletin.

Crazy on Stocks.

A San Francisco correspondent says the people there are still crazy on the subject of stocks. Men, women and children deal in them. You step into a bootblacking establishment, and as the darky brushes the mud off he remarks: "Choller's looking up, sah. Quite a bulge dey got on Californy." You can buy stock from twenty-five cents up to $480 a share; so everybody, from the richest man in the city down to the newsboy, can handle it. To illustrate the extent to which this gambling mania affects all classes of people, a little incident occurred at the Palace Hotel. The waiter placed a plate of soup in front of a prominent stock-broker named Smith. As he put down the plate the waiter remarked: "What do you think of Nevada, Mr. Smith?" "Well, I think they are a good purchase at twenty-six," said Mr. Smith. "I'se got ten shares dat cost me eighteen," said the darkey, "and I guess you may sell them for me in the morning. Fish, sah?" "Yes, bring me some sea bass." The fish was brought and the conversation continued. "What do you think of Ophir, sah?" "Well, I don't think it will go much higher. They run it up to eighty-three to-day." "I'se got fifteen shares of dem dat I held a good while. I bought 'em in at forty-five. I guess you can sell dose too." And so it went on through the entire dinner. With each course was an order to buy or sell some stock. The fellow had invested his little savings in margins on trades, and cleaned up nearly $2,000 as the result of his operations. The conductors on the street cars hardly have time to collect fares, they are so much occupied in trading with the drivers.—Forney's Sunday Chronicle.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

A Happy Family.

This is the way the Cincinnati Enquirer, the leading democratic organ of the West, talks about its brethren of the East: "The corruptionists of the New York World howl with delight over the bullion platform adopted by the men of Connecticut who have stolen the name of democracy. It demands that this doctrine proclaimed by the Nutmeg bullionists shall be made the platform of the National democratic party. But, oh, King! First send your speakers to Connecticut to tell the starving people up there that it is all a joke about Andersonville. First carry your State for the doctrine you have proclaimed, and then come to the National Convention and ask for recognition." The Enquirer gives the following advice to the greenback party in Connecticut: "The greenback men in Connecticut are talking of putting a ticket in the field. This should be done at once. When the machinery of the democratic party is stolen, and the name used to further the schemes of the oppressors of the people, there is but one thing to do—beat the rascals at the polls." The Connecticut organ of the greenback party responds to this advice as follows: "We assure the Enquirer that the democrats of New Haven will do their part in beating the gold gambler's platform on the first Monday in April. If other sections of the State will do as well the Enquirer's wish will be gratified."

This is the way the New York World, the leading democratic organ of the East, talks about its brethren of the West: "Does anybody propose to win the Presidential election by carrying Pennsylvania and Ohio with the rag-money platform upon which the misguided democracy of those States took their stand and their defeat, last Fall? Does anybody propose to sacrifice the certainty of victory by a combination of victorious democratic States, for the sake of an uncertainty of victory by a combination of States never carried in a Presidential election against the republican party, and now lost again upon a rag-money platform? Yes. The corruptionists and rag-money brawlers of the Cincinnati Enquirer propose this programme of party treason and political fatuity. Their success in betraying the National democracy to overwhelming defeat in every Presidential election since and including that of 1864, encourages them to assume the role of advisers for the election of 1876. It is for the democracy of the Union to choose victory or defeat. Ohio is gone over to the republican party, hook, line, bob and sinker, and will stay there so long as the corruptionists of the Enquirer are dominant in the councils of the party in that State."

The New Haven Union is as outspoken as the Cincinnati Enquirer in demanding more greenbacks, and denouncing the hard-money democrats as traitors to the principles of their party, and servile tools of the monied interests. The Union more than hints that the Connecticut greenback democrats will be unpleasantly numerous and obstinate on election day, and intimates that another paper is soon to be started in that State to advocate inflation.

The two factions of the democratic majority in the House of Representatives have thus far totally failed to agree on a financial policy; not even party necessity has yet sufficed to effect a compromise, one faction insisting that inflation means prosperity while the other just as positively declares it means ruin. All their caucusing has amounted to nothing, and even the caucus finance committee, appointed expressly to cobble up a temporary platform on which both factions can stand for a short time, seems to be as hopelessly divided as the party at large. It would be well for thinking men to carefully consider what would be the probable effect on business of entrusting the direction of National affairs at the present time to a party absolutely without a financial policy, before they vote to place that party in power.

A Raid and Tirade.

Ben. Hill has been at it again in Congress—arraigning the North for its wickedness toward the only true Union men, to wit, Ben Hill and the other patriots who tried so hard to preserve the Union by fighting against it. The red rag which started him off this time was the objection of certain republicans to the proposal to restore to the pension rolls the names of pensioners of the war of 1812, which had been stricken off on account of their complicity in the rebellion, and pay them their arrears of pension,—a regular rebel back-pay steal. The republicans were perfectly willing to restore them to the pension rolls, but not to pay them pension money for the time they were in the rebel army or holding office under the confederacy. It was stated in the debate that the bill as introduced would take from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 from the treasury, and it was not disputed; but in view of the fact that the democracy have taken (or tried to take) off fifty dollars or so a year from the pay of each West Point cadet, the proposition to hand over so trifling a sum as thirty millions to men who fought against the Union might have been allowed to pass unopposed. Mr. Hill kindly informed the northern people that the republicans in Congress are a bundle of inconsistencies, and their conduct exasperating to a patriot (probably meaning Ben Hill); that Ben Hill was a Union man; and that secession originated in New England and not in the South. Why can't these rebel brigadiers call a halt in their raid upon the treasury, until after their old-time supporter, Daniel Marcy, has been elected to—stay at home?

Another Mare's Nest.

The democratic press has been making some excellent political capitol out of a statement that the son of Hon. N. G. Ordway, (for twelve years Sergeant-at-Arms of the National House of Representatives,) drew pay as a clerk in his father's office while he was attending college. Young Ordway has published a sworn denial of the statement, asserting that not a dollar was drawn by him for services while he was at college. He says: "not one dollar was drawn by or for me during the time that I was pursuing my studies at college, and of this fact an absolute proof may be found by a comparison of my college record with the dates in the statement made by Mr. Adams." We are not at all curious to know how many of the democratic papers which have published the charge will also publish the answer, as we well known how many will do it,—not one!

Col. Ordway has received a letter from Treasurer New stating that all of his accounts, amounting to $17,725,651, had passed the Accounting Officers of the Treasury except two small items of mileage, amounting to $156, which were suspended for inquiry as to the actual distance travelled by the members, to whom this amount was paid by Col. Ordway upon the certificate of the Speaker. The charge against him was "a good enough Morgan" while it lasted, but it didn't last "until after election," as the democrats hoped it would.

The Difference.

When the salary-grab was made the papers of both parties denounced it and those who carried it through. Good, so far. But the republicans carried their opposition to it so far that leading grabbers who secured renominations in strongly republican districts were defeated by democratic nominees, while the democrats not only sent the salary-thieves of their party back to Congress but put them forward as leaders in the war on "republican corruption." That shining democratic light, Randall of Pennsylvania, was one of the bosses of the salary steal. Fernando Wood, also, and N. P. Banks, we believe are now in Congress—good democrats and able-bodied salary-grabbers, both of 'em.

How They Are Working.

In Louisiana the democrats have been striving to upset the compromise agreed upon last year. The plan was to impeach Gov. Kellogg, secure to the democratic Lieut. Governor the powers of governor while the impeachment trial was pending, and thus gain full control of the election machinery for their party. There is no pretense that it was anything but a partisan move, and it is acknowledged that it would work immense injury to the business interests of the State. Even the Picayune styled it "a low comedy," and New Orleans merchants representing $10,000,000 of invested capital earnestly and publicly remonstrated against a proceeding the effect of which would be almost ruinous to that city; and it is asserted with strong show of probability that even the rebel brigadiers in Congress—the wisest of them, at least—sent strong appeals to the leaders of the Louisiana democracy to stop attempting the overthrow of the State government, as the party would lose much more in the North than it would gain in the South by an attempt even if it were successful) to substitute White League rule for the government agreed upon in the Wheeler compromise. But the fact that the scheme was seriously contemplated shows how utterly reckless the democrats are as to observing the terms of any compact, for the Wheeler compromise was accepted by both parties as final at the time it was made.

The proposed State convention to alter the constitution of Georgia, which Toombs proclaimed was all that was needed to "put the nigger where he will never be heard of," has been given up for the present. If the programme was carried out it would hurt the party at large more than it would help them locally, so the project is abandoned—for the present. But the manner in which Toombs' arrogant denunciation of all who took part in the war for the Union, his bitter abuse of southern Union men, his shameless boasting that the democrats carried the State for the first time after the war by fraud and intimidation, and his unblushing effrontery in defending such conduct as being worthy all commendation,—the manner in which such a harangue was received by the democratic legislature (with "cheers" and "loud and long-continued applause," according to a local democratic paper,) shows plainly enough the animus of the Georgia democrats, and that they are restrained only by prudence and not at all by any weak regard for the right.

Charleston, South Carolina, had a glorious time of it celebrating Washington's birthday. Wade Hampton had been proposed as orator of the day, but he was not there and one Major T. G. Barker supplied his place. He spoke of the Centennial, and said the southern soldier "will not feel, if he be true to his own past and that of his comrades, very happy in the midst of such rejoicing, or very honest if he undertakes to join in it," and the sentiment was received, it is said, with deafening cheers and cries of "Good!" "Good!" In alluding to the fraternal language of such southern gushers as Lamar, Major Barker says: "I do not sympathize or join in with the sentimentality of 'Bunker Hill brotherly love,' or the clasping of hands across the bloody chasm, or the Centennial hugging and kissing between northern and southern men." The orator took note, also, of the political contest now going on in South Carolina to crush out the last vestige of republicanism, and not only gave it his sympathy but promised it material aid, if need be, from Georgia. Referring to the co-operation of the two colonies in the Revolution, he said: "Your presence assures us that now, as then, the Savannah can be, and in case of need, the Savannah will be crossed. The magic spell of a common camp fire, kindled in a common cause, kindled for hearth and altar, can never be extinguished." Comment is needless as to such utterances or as to their significance at this time.

With the rebellion, while in progress, Daniel Marcy was in entire sympathy, as his votes and his one speech in Congress show; and with the men who now defend the rebellion, who talk of the "wrongs" of the confederacy and the "tyranny of the Union," who denounce the Union army as "ruthless invaders" and prate of the South "forgiving" the North, and who are evidently determined to undo as far as is possible all that was achieved by the war if ever they get the power, Daniel Marcy is in full sympathy to-day. If he is not, then he is misrepresented by his own party organs, which say that his principles have never changed and his course in Congress is his "boast," and the "pride" of his friends, new. Had Daniel Marcy, or any man of his way of thinking, been in the gubernatorial chair of this State during the rebellion, would the war record of New Hampshire have been what it is now is? No one will pretend it would.

A vote for Daniel Marcy is a vote to yield to every insolent demand of the half-revivified confederacy; a vote to acknowledge the war for the preservation of the Nation a crime and a failure; a vote to plunge the Nation still deeper into debt to reimburse rebels for losses occasioned by their own misdeeds; a vote to make treason admirable and patriotism odious. That he will get enough such votes to saddle the State with the disgrace of having a secession sympathizer as chief magistrate, this year, we cannot believe.

News and Notes.

Secretary of War Belknap, detected in receiving bribes, made confession of his guilt on the 1st. On the 2d he tendered his resignation, which was of course at once accepted.

By the blowing up of a steam scow in the Columbia river, Oregon, March 1st, three men were killed. Twelve others are missing, and are supposed to have been blown overboard and drowned.

In the Circuit Court at Exeter, the case of Benjamin O. Simpson vs. the Windham Farmers' Mutual Insurance Co., to recover insurance on house, hay, barn and contents, burned Oct. 25, 1873, the defendants declining to pay on the ground of over-insurance, has finally been decided in favor of the plaintiff with a verdict for $1,696.

Prof. Tyndall has been married, at Westminster Abbey, to Miss Louisa Hamilton, daughter of Lord Claud Hamilton.

Don Carlos announces that he is only taking a breathing spell, and will again make things lively in Spain as soon as the Cuban war is over. That is "putting the evil day afar off," apparently.

Mr. Jennings has retired from the New York Times, having sold his interest in the paper to Mr. George Jones.

Minister Schenck is coming home at once, to appear before the Congressional committee on the Emma Mine scandal, and defend himself—if he can. He denounces the evidence of the principal witness against him as an infamous tissue of falsehoods; and he is certainly entitled to a hearing before he is condemned, even if he is a republican and a government official.

The overflow of the river Warta caused the loss of many lives at Posen, Prussia, and the inundation is spreading. Along the Danube some sixty persons have been drowned, and some villages in Hungary are twenty feet under water. The new city of Pesth, Austria, is in ruins, but the old city, which is walled, is safe. Other rivers of Austria and Eastern Prussia are doing great damage.

The Nashua Telegraph prints a letter from a democrat who served in the Union army during the war and has always voted the democratic ticket, announcing his secession from that party until it "learns to put in nomination, for the highest office in the State, a loyal man." He has been carefully looking over Daniel Marcy's war record, and cannot "find a single act of his, while in Congress, but what was in opposition to the government and her armies then in the field. I fail to see a single vote of his on record which was not just such a vote as the Confederate Congress would have instructed him to cast, had he been serving them instead of a loyal constituency. His 'aid and comfort' was all for the enemy and not for us. He and such as he kept us marching and fighting two years extra at least." More of just such men as this war democrat will be heard of on election day.

Bowen was before the committee of Plymouth Church on the evening of March 1st. He announced his willingness to tell the secrets in his possession, but only to a small and select committee and under a solemn promise of secrecy. Mr. Beecher demanded names, dates and all particulars, with the presence of all persons who have anything to say against him, and the utmost publicity. Bowen won't comply with Beecher's demands and Beecher won't consent to Bowen's terms, so the matter hangs fire as yet. Whatever the opinion may be as to Beecher's guilt or innocence, Bowen is fast convincing those who once believed he did know a lot on the subject that he is a consummate old humbug, and not at all the cesspool he has made people believe he was by partially holding his tongue and looking wise.

A New York paper says $10,000 has been contributed by the democracy of New York city to help carry this State against the republicans. This is thought to be the first contribution sent into New Hampshire from New York since the overthrow of the Tammany Ring.

If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watery or weak, feel dull and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have the Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—a perfect Specific for Catarrh, "Cold in the Head," or Catarrhal Headache.

A Genial Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a genial restorative. The changes which this great botanic remedy produces in the disordered organization are always agreeably though surely progressive, never abrupt and violent. On this account it is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it initiates these processes which result in the re-establishment of healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that fruitful cause of debility, indigestion, coupled, as it usually is, with biliousness and constipation. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant secretion are results which promptly and invariably attend its systematic use. It is, besides, the best protective against malaria, and a first rate diuretic.

TOO YOUNG TO DIE.—Thousands of young per, sons between the ages of 18 and 25 die of consumption, every one of whom might have been saved by using HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR when the cough first set in.

The climate of New England is extremely "trying" to weak lungs, and often people are compelled by its rigors to seek a warmer climate or go down to the grave with consumption. Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam strengthens and heals weak lungs and temperes the climate to all.

Republican Rally

At the Temple this (Friday) evening. Col. E. A. Andrews and Hon. Henry O. Pratt will address the audience on the principles involved in the present political contest in this State. Col. Andrews was a democrat before, during and since the war; and he and Mr. Pratt are both said to be able speakers.

Lend 'Em a Hand.

The loss of the fishing schooner Celia, on "Lunging" island, one of the Isles of Shoals, has already been reported; but nothing has been said as to how severely the wreck bears upon her crew, who we are credibly informed are a set of steady, industrious men, five of the nine being married and every one illy able to sustain his personal loss. When the vessel struck the men lent all their energies to getting the sail off her, without which being done she would have pounded entirely to pieces in a very short time; and by the time the sail was taken in the crew had to jump for the shore, abandoning nearly all their trawls, clothing, etc., to the amount of some $1000, none of which has been recovered nor will be, as it is more than probable the Celia went to pieces in the easterly breeze of Wednesday night.—Capt. Charles H. Allen, her master, (who has been watching the wreck since the misbap occurred, in the vain hope of saving some of the fishing gear and other property) informing us that on the previous day portions of the vessel were thrown ashore. The direct loss of their property is bad enough for these men, but in addition they are suddenly—and though no fault of their own—thrown out of employment, and at the season when their arduous and perilous vocation makes them the best returns, for without fishing gear men cannot do much fishing. If they can procure the needed gear they can at once get another vessel, and we understand they will ask the aid of our citizens to enable them to get on their feet again. If they do, we are satisfied that anything done for them will be but helping men who are willing to help themselves all they can, and who but for an unfortunate accident would not have thought of appealing to others Lend 'em a hand.

The Grange "Sociable"

At the hall of Portsmouth Grange, Wednesday evening, to celebrate their second anniversary, was a very successful and enjoyable affair. A party of a hundred or more, members and invited friends, gathered for a good time,—and had it, as usual with them. Among the visitors from abroad was a sleighing party of twenty from Hampton Falls, including Mr. Lewis T. Sanborn, Master of the Grange there, and other officers. Among the exercises of the evening, after brief words of welcome by Mr. F. W. Miller, Master of Portsmouth Grange, Mr. Horace Lunt, elocutionist, of Boston, read some humorous and appropriate selections very finely and to the delight of everybody; brief remarks were also made by Mr. Sanborn of Hampton Falls, Mr. Albee of Newcastle and W. Past Master Mason of Portsmouth; and after a bountiful and elegant spread by the ladies of the Grange, the votaries of Terpsichore kept good step to the music of Reinwald & Parsons' band until early next morning,—when the happy party dispersed, carrying a certain addition to their store of pleasant memories.

Jottings.

L. Thomas Sanborn's buildings at Rye Beach were slightly damaged by fire on Monday, Feb. 28.

Mr. Robert Braxton, assisted by members of his family, will give a concert of slave songs and plantation melodies at the Temple, on Tuesday evening next, at 7 o'clock. Mr. Braxton was one of the original members of the New England Jubilee Troupe, which gave such acceptable concerts here in 1874. His object in coming before the public in this manner at the present time is to procure the means to send his children to school suitably clothed; so those who patronize the proposed concert, besides the agreeable entertainment which will doubtless be presented, can feel that they have contributed to a worthy object.

A boy about four years of age, son of Mr. John Barrett, fell overboard at the Spring Market, Thursday afternoon, and would have been drowned but for the gallantry of Police Officer Sam. Hurley, who jumped overboard, clothes and all, and rescued him. The child was insensible when taken from the water, but soon revived and is now all right.

Mr. W. W. Jackson, of Boston, addressed a large audience in the Freewill Baptist church at Kittery Point, on the evening of Feb. 29, on the subject of temperance. On the following evening he spoken on the same subject at Newcastle, where a lodge of Good Templars has recently been organized, quite a large number of ladies and gentlemen having enrolled themselves as members.

The large and valuable oil paintings of the Portsmouth Art Union will be awarded to ticket holders, at Mr. Burleigh's picture store on Congress street, Saturday evening, March 4th.

We are pleased to learn that there is a prospect of hearing Miss Cayvan, the brilliant and attractive reader, on Thursday evening, March 16th. She captivated all hearts at the lyceum this winter.

The Direct United States Cable Company announces that the Faraday has successfully repaired its cable. Picking up of both ends and making a splice, occupied exactly one and a half hours. The cable has been tested and found to be perfect. The Faraday's report is to the effect that the cable was evidently cut on purpose.

The Supreme Court of Massachusetts has rendered a decision for the Boston & Maine Railroad against the Portsmouth, Saco & Portland Railroad, which will benefit the B. & M. R. R. to the amount of over $500,000.

THE CONDUCTOR.

A few days ago a freight conductor on one of the railroads went to the Superintendent and said he ought to be advanced, having served on the freight for several years. The Superintendent agreed with him, and told him that the change should be made the very next week. And it was made. The Superintendent a day or two after took a seat in the rear end of one of the coaches to see how the new conductor would take to business, and pretty soon the official danced into the door, cap on his ear, sleeves pushed up, and a half-acre smile on his face.

"Get out your pasteboards!" he shouted, "I'm the mucky-muck that runs this train," and then, turning right and left, he continued: "Right bowers this way—play lively—pass or order up—how's trumps with you—slide right into Chicago—hurry up there—trump this ace—what kind of a hand do you hold, old man?"

There was something novel and exhilarating in his style, but yet the superintendent called the conductor up stairs the next day and told him that he was the best man in America to run a freight train, and that he should have to promote him backward. He was too talented for a passenger conductor.—Detroit Free Press.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in brisk demand at the public libraries are "vapid and sensational." He thinks that parents ought to guide the children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "A worse literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or his hand to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have excites, stimulates and debases the intellect, unfits it for healthy food, fills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most under control. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can nowhere be so effectually poisoned as at its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by curious and eager children, must influence to a large extent the tone of thought and the drift of action of those whose plastic minds come under their influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in the above to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all editors were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS), there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says: "Up

That threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in arts and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

REV. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in an article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE for GIRLS and BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more trustworthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

In order to place this magazine within the reach of all, the publishers offer to send the 14 numbers (Nov., '75, to Dec., '76) for $3.50.

Or, for $5.00, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75, the full price of which is $7.00. Or for $8.00 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00.

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the handsomest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,500 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have five splendid series, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc.; more than equal in contents to 30 volumes of ordinary children's books of 6,000 book pages costing $30.00!!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty-five Cents.

Kite Day in Japan.

A letter from Nagasaki, Japan, printed in the New Orleans Southwestern Presbyterian says: "On the 15th of April was the great kite day for Nagasaki. The Japanese are very fond of kite flying, and display a great deal of skill. The kites have no tails like ours, and are made of two pieces of bamboo crossed, covered with the thin but very strong Japanese paper. The people all assembled on the top of 'Kompira,' a hill about eleven hundred feet high, and the air was thick with kites. Several hundred kites were in the air at the same time, and the great aim of each operator is to so maneuvre his kite as to cut the string of the others. For this purpose the first couple of hundred feet of string from the kite is covered with resin and pounded glass. Sometimes four or five kites would get foul of each other, then the thing was either to get your kite clear or cut the strings of the others. Then again, having cut a kite string, it was wonderful to see them catch this detached kite, away up in the air, with their kite, and capture it, the universally accepted rule being that a kite belongs to you just so long as you can keep it out of somebody else's hands. The Japanese never get angry about such things. It would be hard to find 20,000 or 30,000 people anywhere else in the world to enjoy themselves so much and with nothing disagreeable attending the game."

Ten years ago Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. established their advertising agency in New York City. Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

CONDITION PILLS!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!
☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon returned for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:
Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 5, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so low that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and concluded to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package for my friend, and he is pleased with himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.
SAMUEL PLAISTED, Jr.
Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.
BATH, Me., Oct. 18, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have sold many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer; I have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills in one week and feel like a new man. Testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this place find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.
MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered with the severest Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable to move without help up any more than a stick from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must endure the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist, thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well now, and eat what I please; no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the improvement in me, which it will not hide. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine, for she can find no relief, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.
Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health Better at 64 than 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.
DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.
THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Rockdale, who are taking it, and are already much benefitted. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the hurrying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as the best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.
"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."
The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to let have the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fall to pieces or enter upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and reforms to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances for a generation to come, the fate of our affairs, in religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and especially of the Roman Catholic hierarchy, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely in politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopeful indications that a long deferred revival.
In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued support of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can fail to perceive that a year or two will dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, unbiased by party ties, or by the selfish hopes or ambition of a
THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion for years, and which have made it and will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the lead of others. But it will not be the servant of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongs of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to set forth the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its object is to reflect honest men whom the country knows and can trust; to secure honest money, administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it hopes to justify itself fairly, and to forfeit the splendid hard money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and so earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course throughout all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater confidence.
One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have time within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.
THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the honest work with jubilant fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wranglings; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its newspaper contemporaries from various rivals, and it hereafter will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.
From such a journal such a journal is desirable visitor in their families. THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the period of 1872 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest attention to news and the most lavish expenditure to procure the fresh est intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished pens in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

BABY AT THE THEATRE.

She brought the darling with her to see the play. Her entire devotion to the active infant and total indifference to observation proclaimed her its mother. She tickled the baby under its chin till it crowed again. She seized its foot and shook it till the infant suffocated itself with delight. This had a bad effect, for when the baby recovered its wind it yelled with fright. Then, such a kissing and dancing, it was tossed and playfully shaken, and grinned at, and chirruped to, until it began another alarming laugh.

An artificial rose in the maternal bonnet caught the infantile eye, and the delighted mamma suffered her offspring to bob weakly up and down on its limber legs, and jabbered earnestly at the floral ornament. People in the vicinity grew nervous. Such a lively infant was sure to make things disagreeable before the evening was over. Several young men got up and changed their seats to the other side of the theatre. Gentlemen contracted their brows and unmarried ladies assumed fixed smiles of unnatural sweetness as they cast their fine eyes toward the playful infant and its proud and happy mother, fancying that they thus advertised the well of maternal love which lay latent in their virgin bosoms. The lights were turned up and bulged out the infant's eyes with surprise. One feeble little hand, with all the tiny fingers working, was stretched convulsively toward the glittering gas jets on the other side of the auditorium.

The orchestra began with a crash. The baby fell upon its back in the maternal lap and set up a shriek so loud that the old German doing a little solo on the cornet between the crashes had his sound quite drowned. It was noticed that when it came to the bass drum man's turn to chime in, he did so with a thundering vigor that would have covered the screeches of a foundling hospital. Baby got used to it, and when the curtain rang up sat in a state of stupefaction, staring at the actors.

An amiable old gentleman in eye glasses and a white vest, sitting immediately in front of baby, wearied of the play, and in the most grandfatherly manner possible, turned and poking a fat forefinger into the infant's ribs, jocosely clicked his tongue. The consequence of this advance was that, just as a young gentleman on the stage, who was on his knees before a young lady with averted head, remarked in an impassioned manner, "And, Edith darling, should heaven bless our union and give us"—baby gave a howl of supernatural loudness.

The confused and mortified old gentleman blew his nose with a prodigious vigor and looked straight before him with a very red face. The young gentleman on the stage was startled out of his speech, and the young lady, overcome with emotion, stuffed her handkerchief into her mouth. Every man in the house scowled at the mother, who seemed more calmly delighted with her darling than ever, and made loving faces at it for full five minutes. She was really and truly unconscious that she and her pet annoyed anyone, and throughout the whole evening smiled serenely and looked upon the infant's screams and kicks as marks of precocity which must excite the admiration of the public—who, no doubt, were delighted with the privilege of witnessing the same.

A STRONG CASE.

A man with a bad looking nose and a melancholy appearance generally, entered Justice Potter's office, recently, and, slamming a paper down on the desk, he exclaimed: "I submit the docs and demand a divorce!" The Court looked at him in a puzzled way, and the stranger continued: "Hump the papers together mighty quick, for she's out after a dray to move the furniture!" "I can't give you a divorce," answered His Honor. "Here's the cash down, mister!" said the stranger, pulling out a small tin box full of shinplasters; "and here's charges that will make your blood run cold!" He was instructed as to what steps he must take, and in his excitement and confusion he went away leaving the "docs" on the desk. The charges read as follows: "1—Pulling hair, jawing and kicking me. 2—More pulling hair. 3—Kicked me, Christmas day, and I can prove it. 4—Tried to pisen me, and then jawed around. 5—Sitting down cellar and reading dime novels, and then striking me when I talked to her like a father. 6—Teasing me to take her to a circus, and then getting mad and ruining a mighty good dish-pan. 7—Jawing, kicking, fighting, cussing, threatening, making up faces, and demanding money to buy ice-cream and candy for her darned old relashuns. And so forth, to-wit, and a good many other things which I can prove straighter'n a string. Gentlemen, grant me this divorce, and I will vote for you if you ever run for Aldermen."

—A young gentleman lately attended the circus for the first time, and on the Sunday following he was taken by his grandmother to church. He gazed around in wonderment for a few moments. When the organist began to play he turned to his grandmother and said, "Grandma, will there be a circus, so I can see the lion?" "Why, no, Eddie, this is church." "Well," replied the little fellow, "it's circus music, anyway."

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of assassination, ten months afterward.

Secretary Belknap's Crime.

The astounding news received on Thursday from Washington has been confirmed by later dispatches, and the country is disgraced beyond measure by the fact that an officer holding one of the highest positions the President can confer, who has been honored with his full confidence and regarded as one of his most esteemed advisers, has used his high position to commit a great crime against the Nation, the President, and the people. There is no excuse for such a stupendous crime. Every friend of President Grant will read with indignation the relations of Belknap's betrayal of trust and friendship. No words can express the intense feeling of republicans throughout the State. The blush of shame mantles every brow, and a united determination to urge the weeding out of everything suspicious from the Cabinet and from intimacy with the administration is expressed from all directions. It is time now or the President to act, and the more prompt the action the greater the confidence that will be inspired by it. Let him be surrounded by honest officials only. Nothing remains except for him to forget personal friendship for the honor of the Nation, and reconstruct the Cabinet on a basis in consonance with the wishes and expectations of all honest men.

Democratic Economy.

Tennessee has been in the hands of the "friends of administrative reform" (democrats) for ten years, and as a result the value of taxable property has depreciated, since 1873, $40,000,000; and a democratic paper in Nashville admits that, "should the Legislature treble the rate of taxation and apply it to the year 1877, January 1, 1878, would find a deficit in the Treasury of more than $1,500,000!"

The State government of Louisiana has been in the hands of what the democrats have denounced as a most flagrantly corrupt republican administration, while the city of New Orleans has for years been ruled by the men who are now endeavoring to overthrow the State government. On the first of January, 1876, the bonded debt of the State amounted to $18,472,000; new bonds issued under the finding act, $7,238,000; and the State securities were selling at a premium. At the same date the municipal debt of New Orleans, which has been in the hands of the democratic "economists" ever since the war closed, amounted to $24,000,000, and the municipal securities were being hawked about the streets at twenty-five cents on a dollar, with takers few and far between at that.

A Comparison.

The Boston Globe has been somewhat freely quoted by the democratic papers of this State during this campaign; but we hardly expect them to copy the following Globe editorial on the relative merits of the two parties in New Hampshire, so we shall have to:

So far as local issues are concerned the republicans of New Hampshire ought to have every advantage. Their record is luminous compared to that of their opponents. They always administered the Government of the State with vigor and economy, and though they held the power during the years when extravagance and corruption made such progress elsewhere, the Democrats have never been able to show that they were led into these errors. When the latter obtained possession in 1874 they found nothing to investigate, nothing to reform, and their efforts were devoted to making changes which were altogether for the worse. The whole business of that party while in power was to entrench itself in its position by securing all local offices, by upsetting the whole judiciary merely to get possession for its own purposes, by redistricting the State to secure the largest possible party advantage, by removing wholesome restrictions from naturalization, and by the most extraordinary and outrageous party legislation ever known in a New England State. This was followed by frauds in the next election and an audacious seizure of one branch of the Legislature, through the aid of the judiciary which had been created for that and similar purposes. The record of the democratic party in New Hampshire during the political year 1874—'5 is without one redeeming feature, and ought to be sufficient to condemn it to filling private stations until it shows evidence of regeneration.

On the other hand, the republicans on regaining power showed admirable discretion and moderation, and though unable to effect much in the way of legislation on account of the position of the Senate, exhibited a spirit and intent which entitle them to be placed in a position to carry so their policy. They have renominated Governor Cheney, and they could not have a better candidate. He has made an excellent Governor so far, showing an enlightened comprehension of the needs of the State, and a courtesy and dignity that become his position. He is one of the most public spirited and progressive of men, well-informed, sensible, straightforward and as honest as the day. He is deservedly popular with all parties for his loyalty to the Union when that was called for, and his loyalty to the loftiest principles at all times. Mr. Marcy, his opponent, is a reputable citizen of Portsmouth and no doubt a man of ability and common honesty, but he is an incurable Bourbon, whose sympathies were with the enemies of his country during the war, and who now represents the worst tendencies of his party, as Mr. Cheney does the best tendencies of his. On the record of the two parties in State affairs and on the merits of the candidates, it seems to us that there is no ground for hesitation. Surely no Republican will have any excuse for failing to sustain his party, and independent and liberal-minded men can have no doubt as to which side should be theirs. And so far as effect upon the course of parties in the country at large is concerned, there has not yet appeared any ground for giving aid and encouragement to the democracy. It has done nothing to justify it.

Don't Like Them.

The New Haven Union (democratic and inflation) talks as follows concerning Ben Hill and the hard-money men:

"The ranting Ben. Hill is doing good service for the republicans. He has made one very violent and treasonable speech of considerable length in Congress already, and when occasion offers he pops up and lets off his venom in short speeches against the people of the North. Speaker Kerr can always manage to choke off such a whole-souled, liberty-loving and loyal democrat as Judge Holman, because he is an advocate of the people's money, but he recognizes Hill whenever that Southern bully rises to address the House. This is an evidence of the kind of men the Eastern monopolists swear by. Such money lords as Belmont upheld slavery as long as they dared, because it was an aristocratic institution and gratified their vanity. They always yielded to the Southerners and allowed that section of the country to dictate the national policy. Now that the masses of the North—the "mudsills," as the Yanceys and Hills termed them—have trampled slavery under foot, the design of the aristocrats is to establish a moneyed dynasty and thus enslave the whole of the great producing classes of the United States. This conspiracy is not confined to the old slave upholding element in the democratic party, but permeates the moneyed centers of the North, and takes in a large portion of the republican party. We are glad that Judge Hoar firmly rebuked Hill when the latter insulted New England, especially Connecticut, in impugning the loyalty of our people in 1812. If such fire-eaters as Hill are to be preferred by Speaker Kerr as representative democrats to Holman and Atkins, then there is no hope of a national democratic triumph. The people of the North are loyal to the backbone, and will never follow the lead of traitors."

A Democratic Demagogue.

Col. John H. George, one of the democratic speakers now stumping the State, "has no apology to offer for the past history of the democracy," according to the Boston Post's report of his speech. Seems to us we have heard something very like that before, from one Mr. Hill of Georgia; "he has no apology to offer for the past history of the democracy," either—because he as well as Col. George knows that no apology which can be offered would be accepted as a reason for again entrusting that party with the power they once used to destroy the Union. Col. George has also found out that it was the democratic party at the North which put down the democratic rebellion at the South. He says: "Talk about the republican party fighting out the war which it caused! Those who went to the war from that party were largely composed of the quartermasters and paymasters, while the men who fought were the democrats under McClellan." That explains why Daniel Marcy was so earnest in supporting the Union cause,—the men who fought the secessionists were democrats! Je-rusalem! That is why he said "my constituents do not believe in war," in the same speech in which he consigned Abraham Lincoln and the "wicked, disloyal abolition party" "to the inheritance of eternal infamy" and "the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

But the cream of his "argument" (Heaven save the mark!) is the following: "There was never a time in the history of the country when labor was so poorly paid, relatively, as now, when so many men were out of work. In Boston over 25,000 men and women are looking in vain for work; in New York the proportion is greater; from Philadelphia, Cincinnati and all the great cities of the West the same cry comes up. What means it? With abundant harvests can there be any reason for this except bad government?" Of course he means that the republican administration is responsible for the hard times, and that a return to democratic rule would bring good times,—propositions which only the rankest of demagogues would propound to the most ignorant and unreasoning of audiences. While the imperial government of Germany is today engaged in building railroads to give employment to thousands of suffering laborers, while the English press is groaning about the dullness of trade in the united kingdom, and the Dominion of Canada is prosecuting in winter works which could be much more cheaply done in summer, solely to keep the thousands of unemployed workingmen from starving, only a demagogue would pretend that "party" is responsible for the hard times in this country. And Col. George's statements that labor is more poorly paid now and more people are out of work now than ever before, are false; for there were more people out of work, and those who had work were more poorly paid, during the depression following the great panic which occurred during Frank Peirce's administration, than at any time since the last financial smashup. Democratic rule did not suffice to prevent a panic then, nor to obviate the terrible suffering which followed it. The country did recover its tone sooner than than since the last panic, it is true, but it is also true that it was not then burdened with an immense debt incured in putting down a democratic rebellion, nor did it then have to pay a vast army of pensioners who lost their health in fighting such a rebellion.

News and Notes.

The Maine Senate has joined the House in the passage of a bill abolishing the death penalty, and substituting imprisonment at hard labor for life instead. Public sentiment would more generally approve such a change as this in our retributive laws if the commutation of life sentences by tender Governors and meddlesome Councils could be prevented. As it is, there is no security whatever that a murderer sentenced to prison for life will not be pardoned out when his case has been forgotten. Make the life sentence irrevocable, and the question between that and the death penalty becomes a fair one.—Congregationalist.

If the democrats wish to make political capital out of the Belknap affair, which is a national disgrace, there will be no help for it. When Winslow, the forger and Treasurer of the Boston Post, ran away, no one thought of denouncing the employes of the establishment or the editor-in-chief as responsible for his crimes. But the democrats would revel in a tornado of crime provided it made votes.—Boston Journal.

The confederate brigadiers in Congress have decided not to bring up the Texas Pacific Railroad question at this session of Congress, as it would hurt "the party" to put through the scheme before elections. In the meantime we shall be favored with all the time-honored democratic denunciations of railroad swindles and land grabs,—though the largest railroad land-grab ever made was engineered through the House by Representatives Eldredge and Beck, the former the then leader of the democracy of the northwest, and the latter now a democratic Senator-elect from Kentucky.

The democratic sheets think Burroughs of Michigan can't amount to much because he was once a Member of Congress and was afterwards, when a candidate for re-election, defeated. We believe Daniel Marcy was once a Member of Congress and then again he wasn't, and even that was doing twice as well as the men who are stumping the State for the democrats; Sinclair, Kent and John George have all been candidates, but they never got inside of Congress.—Mirror.

The Signal Service Observer at Kitty Hawk, on the North Carolina coast, reports than an Italian barque, name unknown, in ballast, bound from some port in Italy, for Baltimore, went ashore twenty miles north of that station on the night of March 1. She went to pieces and the crew, consisting of thirteen men, were all lost excepting four. The Life Saving crew attempted to board the barque and every man was drowned. Six bodies have been recovered. Nine are still missing.

The New Haven Union, the organ of the inflation democracy of Connecticut, talked thusly on the 29th of February: "Governor Tilden testified in the Tweed suit yesterday for the prosecution, and was severely cross-examined by Mr. David Dudley Field. Tilden had to acknowledge that he was politically intimate with Tweed before the latter was publicly exposed, hobnobbed with him around political meetings, took his money to help along the 'cause,' and extended him various favors. Tweed's stolen money was good enough to run political campaigns with, and his well-known character did not exclude him from the society of such 'reformers' as Tilden. When Tilden discovered that there was a strong feeling growing up against Tweed, and that his plundering schemes promised startling developments, he joined in the popular clamor and took a prominent part in the movement to overthrow the ring. Few people will believe that Tilden did not know of the gigantic swindles of Tweed in 1868, when he was running campaigns on funds furnished by the ring chieftain. As a 'reformer,' Tilden is a fraud. He amassed a fortune as a defender of railway swindles and land grabs."

The New York Herald, referring to the impeachment movements begun by the democrats in Louisiana and Mississippi, says: "When Jubal Early defeated his Yankee adversaries, instead of pursuing his victory with order and discipline he took to plundering the camps. Before the sun went down he was a routed fugitive. Let the Southern democrats ponder well this example, remembering that victories like those for which they are preparing in Louisiana and Mississippi may bring in their train a defeat as terrible as that which sent the, heedless Early 'whirling down the valley.'"

William Bohan, an old whaleman, and his son, went outside of New York harbor in an old leaky boat, to fish, a week ago. They have not returned, but a bottle has been picked up containing a note stating that at the time of writing they were out of sight of land, the boat sinking, and that they expected to be drowned.

The British steamer Bothnia, bound from New Orleans for Liverpool, with about two thousand bales of cotton, and other cargo, was totally destroyed by fire, at sea, February 15th. The crew were probably saved.

An intelligent black boy was trudging along a highway at night in the vicinity of Palestine, Texas. There was a negro woman riding a horse in the same direction the boy was going. The intelligent black boy reappeared in Palestine that night out of breath and as pale as he could get. He said he saw a ball of fire come out of the sky and strike the woman and set her ablaze. The horse ran one way with the woman afire on his back, and he ran back to town to tell the people what had happened. The people went to look after further particulars of the curious incident. They found the woman lying on the ground, with all her clothing burned off, but with life enough in her to tell that she had been struck in the breast by a ball of fire. The horse was found with his mane singed, and the woman died the next day. The people think she was hit by a meteor—St. Louis Republican.

—The original ulster overcoat was invented at Valley Forge. It consisted of a bed-blanket, with holes to put the arms through, and a mule's halter for a belt. Washington's was a manly form and he never looked so inspiring as when he wore this simple garment.

If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watery or weak, feel dull and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—a perfect Specific for Catarrh, "Cold in the Head," or Catarrhal Headache.

A Genial Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a genial restorative. The changes which this great botanic remedy produces in the disordered organization are always agreeably though surely progressive, never abrupt and violent. On this account it is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it initiates these processes which result in the re-establishment of healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that fruitful cause of debility, indigestion, coupled, as it usually is, with biliousness and constipation. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant secretion are results which promptly and invariably attend its systematic use. It is, besides, the best protective against malaria, and a first rate diuretic.

TOO YOUNG TO DIE.—Thousands of young persons between the ages of 16 and 25 die of consumption, every one of whom might have been saved by using HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR when the cough first set in.

The climate of New England is extremely "trying" to weak lungs, and often people are compelled by its rigors to seek a warmer climate or go down to the grave with consumption. Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam strengthens and heals weak lungs and tempers the climate to all.

In Everybody's Mouth.

PRAISE AND SOZODONT.—Greatest luxury of modern times—beautifies and preserves the teeth. The repulsive breath is rendered as fragrant as a rose, and coldness by friends, or in business, will now be no longer noticed.

Sore Throat, Cough, Cold, and similar troubles, if suffered to progress, result in serious pulmonary affections, oftentimes incurable. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" reach directly the seat of the sease and give almost instant relief.

E. G. PIERCE, Jr., P. M.

At Work.

As a republican from this city was returning from the meeting at Exeter, Friday, he found a package of "straight republican tickets," with the name of the democratic candidate for State Senator from this district substituted for that of the republican nominee, all the rest of the names on the ticket being those of the republican candidates. He showed us a sample of them, and assured us that he has also seen "stickers" bearing the name of the democratic candidate,—which only shows that the democrats of this vicinity, quiet as they seem to be, are leaving nothing undone which promises them a chance of victory.

The check-lists in the democratic wards need the thorough inspection of every republican. Each man who is entitled to vote should see to it that his own name is on the lists, and that the names of all other republicans which belong there are there, also. And more important still is it to get taken off the lists, as far as possible, the names of democrats who have no right to vote. It is too much to expect, with the check-lists in democratic hands, that all republicans who have a right to vote will be allowed to vote, or that all democrats who have no right to vote will be prevented from voting; but it is important that the frauds in both directions should be kept down to the lowest possible figure, and to this end the searching scrutiny of the republicans in the democratic wards is imperatively necessary. Money and ballot-box trickery are what the democrats mainly depend on in the present campaign, but they are doing an immense amount of work "on the quiet" in this city, and the republicans may well be as vigilant in a good cause as the democrats are in a bad one.

Don't Get in a Sweat.

The Mirror permits a correspondent to say of Capt. Marcy, "he recently stated that one dollar a day is enough for a working-man." Now, the Mirror has seen the statement of three republicans who were present when that remark is said to have been made, and all of them say it is a lie. And yet, the Mirror has the audacity to repeat it! It is enough to shake one's faith in lightning that it don't strike such persistent liars.—Manchester Union.

Who are the "three republicans" refered to, Mr. Union? One republican (Mr. Drew) who was and one republican (Mr. Haven) who was not "present when that remark was said to have been made," did indeed assert—and we do not question truthfully—that they did not hear it made; but Capt. Marcy himself has never denied saying it over his own signature, and he won't, either. Put that in your pipo and smoke it.

Col. J. Horace Kent's Lecture.

The temperance meeting at the Temple on Thursday evening was well attended, by as quiet and as respectable an audience as ever convened there. The advertised appearance of Col. J. Horace Kent as the speaker for the evening, doubtless, was the occasion of the presence of many who would otherwise have remained away. Mr. Kent's address occupied about thirty-five minutes in its delivery, and was one of the most heart-stirring appeals in behalf of the cause of temperance that we ever listened to. A biographical sketch of his own bitter experience, was ingeniously interwoven into his discourse, and its effect upon his audience during the recital of some portions of it was such as to draw tears from eyes unaccustomed to weep. The speaker claimed that no man who had been addicted to liquor drinking and has quit his cups, should be ashamed to come forward and publicly declare himself to be a reformed man. It would strengthen the man and have a good influence upon his companions. Managers of Reform Clubs everywhere should secure, if possible, the services of Mr. Kent as a lecturer, because he "speaks whereof he knows" concerning the subject of intemperance,—and speaks it well.

Kane vs. Kane.

The New York Herald gives a report of the proceedings in a divorce case which will be of interest to many in this vicinity,—Nellie C. Kane vs. James J. Kane. The suit was commenced by Mrs. Kane, (who is a daughter of Naval Constructor Pook,) the complaint alleging that the defendant, who is a chaplain in the United States Navy, had abandoned her and their two children, and had neglected to support them. It was further alleged that he had treated her cruelly. The plaintiff, who is the second wife of the chaplain, is several years his junior. They were married about six years ago, and for about four years lived on amicable terms. Then his health, which was greatly impaired by reason of his service and exposure during the rebellion, broke down, and he suffered from hemorrhage of the lungs. The Navy Department accorded him a leave of absence, and he went to Europe, where he was absent for several months, and on his return last spring he was served with the papers in the suit which had been commenced against him by his wife. His answer was a general denial of the allegations and the case for the time went over, the mother retaining the children. In the summer he again went abroad, and has since been under medical care. Recently, when the case was called, counsel for defendant asked that trial be suspended against his client while he is so ill. In making the motion he produced a certificate, signed by an eminent physician of England, setting forth the enfeebled condition of defendant and his total inability to travel. A voyage across the ocean at this season would imperil his life. The certificate shown the Court was indorsed by the United States Consul at Manchester, England. Counsel for Mrs. Kane stated that the case was previously postponed for the same reason, and he was informed that defendant had told some of his friends that he intended to remain away four years. He asked that the Court set the case down for trial peremptorily in May, that it be referred to a referee at once. The Court said that it would make no special order in the case for May, but that the trial would be called that month, and advised counsel to stipulate and have a commission to take defendant's testimony in Europe. This will be done. Chaplain Kane, who is a Baptist minister, is well known in the United States Navy, having served during the war at New Orleans in the Gulf squadron, under Farragut, and at Fort Fisher as an acting ensign. He was commissioned chaplain in 1866, and held his last official post on Mare Island, California.

Jottings.

Subject at the Bow Mission at Mechanics' Hall, Sabbath evening, "What is conversion?" to be presented by Mr. E. B. Goodall. Service at 4:30 P. M.

That ever popular and enlivening speaker, John F. Coles, of Boston, the reformed inebriate and friend to the unfortunate, will talk to our citizens at the meeting of the Portsmouth Temperance Reform Club at the Temple, Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. The reputation of Mr. Coles as a speaker will ensure a full house. The Club have 716 names on their pledge books. The small fee of five cents will be collected at the door to defray expenses. The doors will be open at 6:15.

William Quinn (better known in the district he infests as "the fat man") was on Friday complained of by David Welch for assaulting him with a chopping knife. Judge Bufford examined into the matter on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and bound Quinn over in the sum of $300 to appear at the Circuit Court in April. Welch was attended by Dr. Whittier. This Quinn is a nuisance of the first-class, and the Circuit Court can hang him without any fear of injuring society.

Applications are being made for resting places in the Faith Home, when it is completed. The land for the Home has been selected and will be purchased in a few days. Information in reference to the Home may be obtained of the Missionary, Mr. William A. Loyne, who will also show the plan of the building to parties interested, at No. 17 Hill street. Two donations to the good work were made on Thursday; and on Friday a small boy handed Mr. Loyne five cents "to buy a brick!" If all would give as liberally according to their means the Home could be made as large as needed.

An entertainment will be given in Trefethen's Hall, Kittery, Foreside, Thursday evening, March 10th, for the benefit of families of needy soldiers, who by reason of depression of business need aid. The exercises will consist of remarks by C. L. Hayes, Esq., following which will be a lecture by Mr. E. H. Schmitt, upon reminiscences of the navy, a topic which Mr. S. can speak upon from personal experience.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. Robert Harris, of Chicago, son of the late William C. Harris of this city, has been elected President of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. This is one of the largest and most successful roads in the country, and it owes much of its success to the able management of Mr. Harris, who has for many years been its Superintendent.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in brisk demand at the public libraries are "rapid and sensational." He thinks that parents ought to guide the children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "A worse literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or life hand to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have excites, stimulates and debases the intellect, unfits it for healthy food, fills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most under control. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can nowhere be so effective ly poisoned as at its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by curious and eager children, must influence to a large extent the tone of thought and the drift of action of those whose plastic minds come under their influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in the above to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all editors were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS), there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says: "In

That threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome antidote of attractive magazine is required for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in arts and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

REV. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in an article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE for GIRLS and BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more trustworthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

In order to place this magazine within the reach of all, the publishers offer to send the 14 numbers (Nov., '75, to D c., '76) for $3.00.

Or, for $5.50, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75, the full price of which is $7.00. Or for $8.50 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00.

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the handsomest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,750 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have five splendid series, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc., more than equal in contents to 30 volumes of ordinary children's books of 6,000 book pages costing $30.00!!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty-five Cents.

Investigating Committees.

Some of the democratic Representatives engaged in investigating the administration of affairs under the republicans have met with severe rebuffs, but none so uncomfortable as that which silenced Thad Stevens when the anti-Masonic fever raged in Pennsylvania. Mr. Stevens had introduced a resolution of inquiry into the subject of Masonry, which the House of Representatives passed, and made him the chairman, with full power to compel the attendance of witnesses.

A number of prominent members of the Masonic fraternity were summoned, and Stevens expected to unveil the secrets of the order. The committee room was crowded, and there was a dead silence when the master of a lodge in Harrisburg was sworn. Stevens then asked: "What are the initial proceedings consequent upon the meeting of a Masonic lodge?" "The lodge," was the reply, "is always opened with prayer." "Well," said Stevens, "go on, and state what follows when a new member is admitted." "The candidate is balloted for," answered the witness, "and if no votes are cast against him he is admitted a member of the order."

"Well," said Stevens, "Go on. State how he is admitted." "Mr. Stevens," replied the witness, "if when you were a young man and applied for admission into the Harrisburg Lodge, you had been found worthy, you would not have been blackballed. You would then have been initiated into all the mysteries of the order, and would have possessed a knowledge that no man, unless he is a member, will ever obtain." Stevens was so staggered by having this unpleasant reminiscence of his early life presented, that he could not say a word, and no other witness was called.—Perley, in Boston Journal.

—Lord Granville tells a very good story of the canal, to illustrate, as he said, the French proverb that "Man proposes, and God disposes." Lord Palmerston opposed M. de Lesseps' project, and this so excited the French that they ran to subscribe for shares. One gentleman came to M. de Lesseps for shares in a railway in the island of Sweden, to whom M. de Lesseps replied: "It is not a railway, it is not an island, it is not Sweden; but it is a canal, it is an isthmus, and it is Suez." Never mind," said this enthusiastic gentleman, "it is to spite the English, and it is all the same." Those worthy people who thus spent their money to benefit England, which has now four-fifths of the traffic, deserve all its gratitude.

—Barnum, who ought to have known better, was so much annoyed by the circulation of a newspaper paragraph stating that, during a youthful courtship, he fell into a cistern while getting out of a window, that he offered a reward if the writer could prove its truth, whereupon the writer, who ought to have known better, confessed the fraud.

Ten years ago Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. established their advertising agency in New York City. Five years ago they absorbed the business conducted by Mr. John Hooper, who was the first to go into this kind of enterprise. Now they have the satisfaction of controlling the most extensive and complete advertising connection which has never been secured, and one which would be hardly possible in any other country but this. They have succeeded in working down a complex business into so thoroughly a systematic method that no change in the newspaper system of America can escape notice, while the widest information upon all topics interesting to advertisers is placed readily at the disposal of the public.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

☞ These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package—some obtained more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefitted by them. Some of these were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For more than three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally my wife persuaded me to try several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised, and thought I would try them, and resolved to try them, but with little hopes of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefited by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured another package as a present for a friend, but found himself cured! Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, Me., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they are worth ten times to me what I have given away a few and those I couldn't stand. I gave one package for one, and I told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, everything, but nothing did good. I have tried many other pills and can say they are nothing. In one of my testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would gladly pay it before I would do without it, if this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends.

Neuralgia and Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Complaint for Twenty-Five Years Cured by Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to pick up even any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, but to a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I should die the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist, I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent for a package of the package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, and well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will save my life. My wife recommends them to a relation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money could buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be benefitted by them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane—Health much Better at 64 than at 44—Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.

PULMOCINE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, greatly eliminating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the luxurious trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the choice of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which promises to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its investigations during the next six months will shape policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave to its fall to pieces or enter on a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. Its relief it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will be somewhat disturbed, and enter largely in to politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there seems to be a feeling that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE could not fully appeals to the past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will reproduce the political arguments and appeals under the old banners. But it can never be the servant of caucuses or conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and utterances of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving every such encomium it seeks only the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; its policies its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country may safely trust; to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as hard times compel from private citizens, and, as a consequence, lower taxes. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard money triumph (Tilden by Hayes) Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and is earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which may fairly claim ing the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and retrenching in every direction, it found the people sustaining its positions, and it begins to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1872 and 1873 to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

Our result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and sound principles, without being too much controlled by mere names, has been in every department, to make the Republicans forced to imitate some of the worst practices of the old caucus system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the worst frauds of which it has to complain. It is clearly that conscientious and independent voters have thus withdrawn or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to expose the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will present at its space for its readers the news of the world.

From those who believe such a journal a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so generously enjoyed in the past. During the years 1874 and 1875 the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most liberal expenditure to procure the freshest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff included the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

"PETERSON'S MAGAZINE" contains, every year, 1000 pages, 12 steel plates, 12 colored Berlin patterns, 12 mammoth colored fashion plates, 24 pages of music, and 900 wood cuts.

Great improvements will be made in 1876. Among them will be a series of illustrated articles on the Great Exhibition at Philadelphia, which will alone be worth the subscription price. They will be appropriately called

THE CENTENNIAL IN PEN AND PENCIL!

The immense circulation of "Peterson" enables its proprietor to give a much greater number of embellishments for less cost than any other. It gives more for the money than any in the world. Its

THE VATICAN.

The word is often used, but there are many who do not understand its import. The term refers to a collection of buildings on one of the seven hills of Rome, which covers a space of 1,200 feet in length, and 1000 in breadth. It is built on the spot once occupied by the garden of the cruel Nero. It owes its origin to the Bishop of Rome, who, in the early part of the sixth century, erected a humble residence on its site. About the year 1160, Pope Eugenius rebuilt it on a magnificent scale. Innocent II., a few years afterward gave it up as a lodging to Peter II., King of Aragon. In 1305, Clement V., at the instigation of the King of France, removed the Papal See from Rome to Avignon, when the Vatican remained in a condition of obscurity and neglect for more than seventy years.

But soon after the return of the Pontifical court to Rome, an event which had been so earnestly prayed for by poor Petrarch, and which finally took place in 1576, the Vatican was put in a state of repair, again enlarged, and it was thenceforward considered as the regular palace and residence of the Popes, who, one after the other, added fresh buildings to it, and gradually encircled it with antiquities, statues, pictures and books until it became the richest depository in the world.

The library of the Vatican was commenced 1400 years ago. It contains 40,000 manuscripts, among which are some by Pliny, St. Thomas, St. Charles Borromeo and many Hebrew, Syrian, Arabian and Armenian Bibles.

The whole of the immense buildings composing the Vatican are filled with statues found beneath the ruins of ancient Rome, with paintings by the masters, and with curious medals and antiquities of almost every description.

When it is known that there have been exhumed more than 70,000 statues from the ruined temples and palaces of Rome, the reader can form some idea of the richness of the Vatican.

Rebel Prisons.

Walt Whitman, the poet, whose services as a volunteer nurse in the field and army hospitals in and around Washington during the civil war are not forgotten by the country at large, or the soldiers he attended, has in press a valuable volume of "memoranda of the war." It is simply a transcription of notes taken at the time, and gives in the powerful and picturesque prose of which Mr. Whitman is master, the scenes and circumstances of which he was an eye-witness or connected with. In advance portions of this work the following paragraph appears. It so vigorously delineates the condition of our men returning from Andersonville and other prison pens that it should be widely circulated. The date is early in 1865:

"The released prisoners of war are now coming up from the Southern prisons. I have seen a number of them. The sight is worse than any sight of battle-fields or any collections of wounded, even the bloodiest. There was (as a sample) one large boat load of several hundred brought about the 25th to Annapolis, and out of the whole number only three individuals were able to walk from the boat. The rest were carried ashore and laid down in one place or another. Can those be men—those little livid-brown, ash-streaked, monkey-looking dwarfs. Are they really not mummied, dwindled corpses? They lay there, most of them, quite still, but with a horrible look in their eyes and skinny lips, often with not enough flesh on their lips to cover their teeth. Probably no more appalling sight was ever seen on this earth. (There are deeds, crimes, that may be forgiven, but this is not among them. It steeps its perpetrators in blackest, escapeless, endless damnation. Over 50,000 have been compelled to die the death of starvation. Reader, did you ever try to realize what starvation actually is, in those prisons and in a land of plenty?) An indescrible meanness, tyranny, aggravating course of insults, almost incredible, was evidently the rule of treatment through all the Southern military prisons. The dead there are not to be pitied as much as some of the living that come from there—if they can be called living; many of them are mentally imbecile, and will never recuperate."

Mr. Whitman's description is all the more valuable from the fact that it is that of a competent critic and observer, and that since the above was written its author has been pronounced in favor of amnesty and reunion. There is a cloud of witnesses who speak as from the grave. Mr. Davis and his Confederate associates will find that audacity will not overthrow the facts. Truly, Whitman's description shows that the men he saw came from "out the jaws of death; out of the gates of hell."

Good as You.

Though about six days intervene between now and Mardi Gras, some of the people are already becoming very impatient for the carnival day to arrive. This impatience seems general, though among those who expect to participate it is greater than elsewhere. Yesterday, Thomas Pitkins became so impatient about how he should celebrate the carnival that he resolved to put on the disguise he expects to wear then. This disguise is that of a plantation negress. Having procured the outfit, Tipkins donned the same and appeared at the rear of his residence. He knocked, and his wife answered.

"Kinder understands as how you wishes a cook, mum," said he.

"We wish no cook; go away," responded his wife.

"You needn't be so sassy; 'pears to me you'er drefful stuck up, sidering I'se as good as you," remarked the disguised one.

"As good as me!" shrieked the wife, seizing a bucket of cold water, and throwing it full upon the Mardi Gras man; "as good as me, take that," and as she spoke she threw the water and beat him about the head with the bucket. The disguised husband cried out his identity, but the irate woman did not seem to comprehend until after poor Tipkins had been put in a tolerably fair way to be sick until after Mardi Gras.

Daniel Marcy's Sentiments.

"I believe that the name of the President --Lincoln--will go down to posterity along with the deep execration of those who revere the Union."

"The wicked, disloyal abolition party who sustain the President in his infractions on the Constitution, are joint heirs with him to the inheritance of eternal infamy."

"I tell the gentleman and all of his way thinking that I shall utter upon the floor of this House whatever I wish concerning the crimes, the follies and the outrages of this administration; whatever I wish concerning its turpitude, its sins and deformity."

The above are extracts from a speech printed in the Congressional Globe, and purporting to be a speech delivered in the National House of Representatives June 14th, 1864, by Daniel Marcy, now the democratic candidate for Governor of New Hampshire. It was such speeches as this that helped incite John Wilkes Booth to his foul deed of Assassination, ten months afterward.

The Ruined Secretary.

The astounding disclosures of Belknap's infamy have shocked the country beyond measure, and the disposition of the democratic papers (outside of this State) to attempt to make partisan capital out of the scandal is much less apparent than that they feel the shame to be a National disgrace. It is a sad event when any man of honorable name is proved unworthy; and the fact that Belknap stood so high in the confidence and esteem of the people at large, of Congress and the Cabinet, as a gallant soldier and an honest official, with the prominence given to his name by his official position and the brilliancy of his wife in Washington society, render his terrible degradation only the more mournful. He misused his great opportunities and shamefully violated the universal confidence reposed in him, and now has to pay the penalty. That his wife's extravagance led him into error is no palliation of his crime, nor can anything prevent the Republic and republican institutions from suffering in the estimation of the foreign nations whose attention has been so strongly riveted upon us the present year. His crime is not merely an outrage upon the people who honored and trusted him, but is a slur upon the principles of republican government; and while all true men must mourn his ruin, none will say his ruin is not deserved.

Buying the State.

The democrats are straining every nerve to win success in the New Hampshire election. Every democrat in this city who is supposed to have a dollar to spare is solicited to contribute something. Governor Tilden importunes everybody, telling that "a dollar in New Hampshire will secure more votes than ten dollars in New York." The smallest contributions are taken and thankfully received, with the encouraging reply that "one vote may decide the result, and your five dollars may turn the tide in favor of democratic success." A meeting has been held at which Royal Phelps presided, heading the subscription with $500. About $10,000 was raised at this meeting, and the work of obtaining money has been going on vigorously ever since. It is evident the model reformer Tilden expects to buy up New Hampshire for the purpose of having what the democrats call "a big send off in the Presidential canvass." We shall see what success Tilden and democracy will have in buying up the yeomen of the "Granite State"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

It is thus that the shame of New Hampshire is sent abroad, through the efforts of the democratic leaders to gather up funds for the base purchase of the most valued right of citizenship. Hugh J. Hastings, the veteran editor of the paper quoted above, has peculiar opportunities for knowing whereof he affirms, and his high character as a journalist and a man precludes all possibility of misrepresentation or even mistake. He boldly asserts against the Governor of his State what, if false, would be a base libel, meriting the severest punishment. But he tells the truth. Gov. Tilden, the "reformer," sees the necessity of carrying New Hampshire for the promotion of his Presidential aspirations. He can make his contribution some hundreds of thousands if he chooses, for the democracy of New York, with Tammany propitiated, has resources almost illimitable.—News Letter.

A Sample.

The Manchester Mirror gives the following description of the "reform" government of that city:

A city government, born of outrage and fraud, has shown itself worthy of its parents. From first to last its policy has been dictated by the lowest and worst, it has insulted and abused the best and most capable of its own party, it has wasted the city money, made the city departments places of refuge for loafers and dead-beats, and prostituted the whole city machinery at the behests of men who would not be tolerated in any respectable society. It is only two months since these men got all the departments into their hands, but it has been long enough to have their unsavory reputations travel from Boston to Canada, and make Manchester both an object of ridicule and pity in nearly every newspaper in New England. And yet the Union assures us that there are no democrats in Manchester who do not endorse and sanction these outrages of last spring and the outcome from them, none who have independence enough to help stop this iniquity before it provokes a revolution or ends in ruin, none who do not see that the grasp of these Ward Five repeaters, if it is not shaken off, will tighten every year until, like the grasp of Tweed and his gang in New York, it crushes the very life blood out of the city. But we know there are such men; they walk our streets every day and announce openly their intention to cut loose for this time from their party and help rebuke the rascalities which they must endorse if they vote the democratic ticket. We say we know such men, and can name scores of them, and, what is more, the democratic leader of this city and the members of the democratic State Committee know them, too, and because they know them, and know that those who run the party here cannot manage them, they have sent for John G. Sinclair, who is expected, as a democrat expressed it yesterday, to "take these cross grained fellows and snake them back into their places." We shall see in due time how far they can be "snaked."

Poor Capital.

When the news of the fall of Belknap,—or, rather, of his exposure, for he fell when he commenced illegal and corrupt practices,—was first made public, the effect was to startle every one; and no doubt in this State many democrats hoped and many republicans feared that the disclosures which had crushed the Secretary of War would do much toward helping the democracy to win a victory at the polls next week. One ardent correspondent of a democratic paper published outside the State even telegraphed the absurd story that the republicans are "disheartened" on account of it, and virtually giving up the fight,—as though the weakness and wickedness of one man were any reason for the majority of the voters of an entire State to throw away an assured victory in a contest in which every consideration of municipal, State and national welfare demands that they shall win. The wish, with that correspondent, was father to the thought; for there is no sign of the republicans being in the least "disheartened" or dismayed, nor of their being led aside for an instant from the discussion of State affairs and the political principles and public record of Daniel Marcy and his supporters, to defend the fallen Secretary or to apologise for his guilt.

And why any democrats should imagine they can make great political capital out of this national shame we cannot see. Belknap was never suspected of wrong-doing until his final detection, so no charge can be brought against the republican party of having supported him, knowing him to be a criminal; and he was a democrat up to the time he was called to the Cabinet,—and may be now for aught that has been shown to the contrary. If his offences are to be used as political capital by the democrats, the republicans may be expected to refer to the records of the last democratic Cabinet, under James Buchanan, when the democratic Secretary of War, Floyd, substituted his own worthless acceptances for nearly $900,000 of government bonds, and was allowed to clear out into the confederacy to aid the rebellion, without the democratic administration taking any steps to punish him; or when Secretary Jacob Thompson permitted the abstraction of Indian trust funds which were in his custody, amounting to two millions of dollars on which the Government has now to pay the interest, which is $97,140, to the tribes to whom the abstracted bonds belonged.

Look at the matter in what light we will, we can see nothing to justify the exultation of the few democrats who appear to rejoice over Belknap's disgrace, for the sake of some hoped for advantage to their party, more than they regret the humiliation put upon the country. And while we share in the general sorrow at the utter ruin brought by their own acts upon a man and a family of previously unblemished reputation, and in the general shame at the deep stain on the nation's honor so conspicuously held up to the world, we have no regrets that Belknap's guilt has been unmasked and no thought that such unmasking will aid the unscrupulous democratic party to gain control of New Hampshire. Principles, not men, are on trial in the present contest, and Belknap's faithlessness to his trust will not add a score to the number of those who will vote for a man who was faithless to the Union in the hour of its direst need.

News and Notes.

The river Seine, at Paris, has overflowed its banks. The Jardin Des Plantes (Botanical Garden) is submerged, and many of the beasts drowned. The streets along the Seine are under water.

The Dover Reform Club had a grand torch-light procession on Friday night. Barrington, Lee, Newmarket, Exeter, Great Falls and other places sent Reform Club delegations; the city was illuminated, and 1000 men, with five bands, were in the procession.

We were in error in saying "not one" democratic paper in the State would publish Mr. Ordway's refutation of the campaign slander which charged him with drawing pay from the government while he was at college. The Patriot prints Mr. Ordway's card in full, including the statement that the same charge was made some years since by a Boston paper, and was then explained so entirely to the satisfaction of its managers that the paper published an apology on the following morning.

Some time ago a police officer of Boston, named Glynn, while attempting to quell a disturbance in "the very worst police route in the city," shot a young man named James Reagan, who recently died in consequence. The coroner's jury have returned a verdict fully exonerating the officer, as the crowd was interfering with him while in the faithful discharge of his duty, and the shooting of Reagan was accidental. Reagan is said to have been of good character and not taking any part with the roughs who were crowding the officer.

The Manchester Union objects to the "bowling about ward five" check-list in that city, as "the list last year—and we presume this—was as honest a list as ever was posted." The republican ward committee find on that list, this year, four hundred and sixty names of men of whom nothing at all is known; and if the list last year was any more "honest," how was it the democracy had to import so many repeaters from Massachusetts to vote on names for which no legitimate owners could be found? The defence by a leading democratic paper of the "honesty" of Manchester's ward five tricksters does not augur well for an honest election where the democrats have charge of the ballot boxes.

The Turks have been defeated in a great battle near Ragusa, and had 800 men killed. The Herzegovinian insurgents have issued a manifeste announcing that they will fight to the death rather than accept any other terms than true independence.

Gen. Babcock is to retire.

Frank Ford and John Hovey, canal-boat captains, had a fight with knives, Feb. 26, in Jersey City. Ford has died of his injuries, and Hovey, who was the attacking party, will die.

The wrecks of schooners Glenwood and Horatio Babson, sunk by collision off Cape Cod recently, have been sold. The Glenwood, sunk in seven fathoms of water, brought $30; the Horatio Babson, on the beach, brought $60, but was driven to sea the same night by a gale and has not since been seen. The owners of the Horatio Babson paid the Glenwood's owners $500 for the running down of the latter vessel.

The naturalization mill at Manchester is running on extra time—day and evening, from now until election—to supply the heavy demand for goods in its line. What the democrats of Manchester want to spend any of the huge campaign fund of their party for, in naturalizing democratic voters, when they can vote just as many times as they please in the democratic wards without being naturalized at all, is a mystery.

At Milwaukee, Wis., Mrs. Jennie F. Muller, insane with the delusion that Dr. Gamer was the cause of the death of her husband and brother, called at his house and on the doctor opening the door shot him through the lungs, fatally.

John T. Whitney of Northumberland was arraigned Thursday on the charge of burning a set of unoccupied farm buildings in Stratford, belonging to E. F. Bailey of Colebrook, and bound over in the sum of $500 for trial. The loss on the buildings was $1200.

The book in which the famous blacksmith of Gretna Green registered the marriages to which he gave a legal sanction, according to the Scotch law, which formerly required the presence of only one witness, is soon to be sold at auction. It will, it is thought, bring a high price, for several aristocratic ladies who were united in marriage by the celebrated son of the anvil, care not to have that circumstance, now forgotten, brought out before the public.

At Huntington, W. Va., Anderson Crofton eloped with Miranda Thomas, married her, and returned to the house of her guardian, G. W. Williams. The latter, incensed, shot them both with a revolver, killing Crofton instantly, and seriously wounding the woman. Williams is in custody. All the parties were colored.

A New York dispatch to the Boston Journal, Saturday evening, reported the flight of Caleb P. Marsh (the man whose evidence exposed Belknap) from New York to Montreal.

Minister Schenck, accompanied by his daughter, sailed from England for this country on Saturday, to try to satisfactorily answer the charges against him. Hope he will be able to do it.

Advices from the Gold Coast report that a fire occurred at Little Popo, February 1st, which destroyed half the town. In nearly all the houses, gun-powder was stored, and as the flames spread explosion followed explosion. Two thousand kegs stored in one building exploded. About fifty natives were blown to pieces while attempting to plunder the burning and abandoned houses.

At a Cabinet meeting, Friday, the case of General Belknap was discussed at length. The President was very decided in the matter, and directed the Attorney General to examine the statutes and have criminal proceedings instituted at once, and push all the prosecutions which the law called for with the utmost vigor. This will involve the prosecution of General Belknap for accepting money for the appointment of Marsh, and for bribery, and of Tomlinson as an accessory after the fact. The President exhibits much feeling at this betrayal of trust by General Belknap, especially of the means by which he secured the acceptance of his resignation.

The House is proceeding very satisfactorily in the work of retrenchment. Every few days they make a saving of fifty dollars a year on the wages of some widow woman in one of the departments. This enables them to appropriate five million dollars back pay to rebel pensioners of 1812, who were stricken off the rolls for disloyalty, while they were out with Mr. Hill, preserving the good old constitution. If General Banning succeeds in abolishing the use of the sleeve-buttons on our army and navy uniforms, we shall probably be able to pension all the soldiers of the late rebellion. I really don't see why this saving cannot be effected. The sleeve buttons are of brass and are very expensive. There are two of them on each sleeve, which makes four to a man for every uniform. As the population of the country is now about forty millions, and each colored citizen is entitled to forty acres and a mule, this would make the annual consumption of sleeve buttons by the army and navy about 600 million buttons a year. I cannot say to a cent how much they cost, but they are of no use under the sun. I appeal to any old soldier if he ever used one of these buttons to button up anything in his life? Besides, they are very much in the way when one goes to call the pile, in a game of draw. They rattle on the table and alarm the guard.—Cor. Ohio State Journal.

A Genial Restorative.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are emphatically a genial restorative. The changes which this great botanic remedy produces in the disordered organization are always agreeably though surely progressive, never abrupt and violent. On this account it is admirably adapted to persons of delicate constitution and weak nerves, to whom the powerful mineral drugs are positively injurious. That it initiates these processes which result in the re-establishment of healthful vigor is conspicuously shown in cases where it is taken to overcome that truitful cause of debility, indigestion, coupled, as it usually is, with biliousness and constipation. Thorough digestion, regular evacuation and abundant secretion are results which promptly and invariably attend its systematic use. It is, besides, the best protective against malaria, and a first rate diuretic.

In Everybody's Mouth.

PRAISE AND SOZODONT.—Greatest luxury of modern times—beautifies and preserves the teeth. The resultant breath is rendered as fragrant as a rose, and sweetness by friends, or in business, will now be no longer noticed.

Spalding's Glue mends broken toys, &c.

Sore Throat, Cough, Cold, and similar troubles, if suffered to progress, result in serious pulmonary affections, oftentimes incurable. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" reach directly the seat of the disease and give almost instant relief.

The people's medicine—Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam.

Pyle's Dietetic Saleratus.—Universally acknowledged the best in use. Each pound bears the name of JAMES PYLE. None genuine without. 1y676

Important to persons visiting New York or the Centennial. The Grand Union Hotel, New York, opposite the Grand Central Depot, has over 350 elegantly furnished rooms. Elevator, steam and all improvements. European plan. Carriage hire is saved, as baggage is taken to and from the depot free. Guests can live better for less money at the Grand Union than at any other first class hotel. Stages and cars pass the Hotel constantly to all parts of the city, and to the Philadelphia depot. dawtirf877

The Dance Interrupted.

Going up the street about ten o'clock one night recently, a citizen heard the sound of a fiddle, banjo, and a tambourine. As he neared the point from which they proceeded, he heard footsteps keeping time to the music and a voice calling out the figures of a cotilion. Just as he arrived in front of the house a loud, angry voice called out:

"Stop that music immediately!"

It stopped, and the dancing ceased in the midst of the figure.

"What de mattah, Sam?" said another voice; "what de you mean by stoppin' de dance?"

"I means jes 'zactly what I say!" answered Sam; "I 'gaged dat band to play for dis party; I'se de boss of dis 'casion; de band shan't play no mo! Dis party shan't go on; de ball's broke up. Gemmen and ladies, you can all go home!"

"What in de name of sense is de mattah wid dat niggah?" was the speech that came from all parts of the room. "What's de mattah, Sam; you talk like a crazy niggah?"

"No I'se not crazy!" said the one addressed. "I'se gwine to have a divorce! Dat's what I'se gwine to have!"

"Divorce! Divorce!" spoke several voices together. "What's dat niggah thinkin' 'bout? He ain't been married more'n two hours, and he's talkin' 'bout gittin' a divorce. He's crazy sho'. You's crazy, Sam!"

"I tell you I'se not crazy," said the latter. "Here I'se bin courtin' Lucinda for two years, with honorable intenshuns, and she's bin makin' me believe she had money—dat she was rich; and now she tells me she ain't got but a dolla—a dolla. Stop de music, I say! Dis party's broke up When dis chile marries a girl for her money, she's got to have more'n a dolla, er I won't live with her a minit. I'se gwine to quit in time. What's a dolla to a man wid a family?"

"Dat's more'n you've got, any how, you good-for-nuffin', lazy, no-account niggah, you!" here chimed in Lucinda.

"Nex' time I marry for money, it's got to be counted out befo' de preacher ties de knot," said Sam. "I'se gwine to get a divorce immediately."—Mobile Register.

READING FOR CHILDREN.

OPINION OF CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS.

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL.

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

WHAT YOU CAN GET FOR 5 DOLLARS.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS

Says, in a letter to the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot, that three-fourths of the books in brisk demand at the public libraries are "vapid and sensational." He thinks that parents ought to guide the children's taste in the choice of reading more than they do. The Newark Advertiser, in

A TRENCHANT EDITORIAL

On this subject, says: "A worse literature than that which is spread before the children of this country it would hardly be possible for the mind of man to conceive or his hand to execute. It is even worse than an open advocacy of vice and intemperance, for that would carry its own antidote, while what we have excites, stimulates and debases the intellect, unfits it for healthy food, fills the imagination with gaudy and distorted pictures of life, and develops the passions at an age when they should be most under control. How much of the low moral tone of society is due to these satanic issues of the press we do not know; but, as a river can nowhere be so effectually poisoned as at its source, so we have a right to believe that the millions of these papers, devoured by curious and eager children, must influence to a large extent the tone of thought and the drift of action of those whose plastic minds come under their influence."

The writer adds: "It may be somewhat unnecessary to state that we have no reference in the above to those monthly magazines for children, which are as healthful as they are beautiful. If all editors were as able, truthful and devoted as Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge (who edits ST. NICHOLAS), there would be nothing to complain of. The New York Tribune says: "In

That threatens the children, some strong, vitally wholesome, and really attractive magazine is required for them, and ST. NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for this service wider resources in arts and letters, than any of its predecessors or contemporaries."

A CLERGYMAN'S OPINION.

REV. C. S. ROBINSON, D. D., in an article in the Sunday School Times on the subject, says of ST. NICHOLAS, SCRIBNER'S ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE for GIRLS and BOYS: "A cleaner, purer, more trustworthy periodical for children cannot be named. It is on the side of all that is true and good, from beginning to end."

In order to place this magazine within the reach of all, the publishers offer to send the 14 numbers (Nov., '75, to Dec., '76) for $3.00.

Or, for $5.00, they will send the twelve numbers, beginning with Nov., '75, and either of the bound volumes of ST. NICHOLAS for '74 or '75, the full price of which is $7.00. Or for $8.00 they will send ST. NICHOLAS as above, and both the bound volumes, the full price of which is $11.00.

Each of the volumes is complete in itself; they are by all odds not only the best, but the handsomest gift books for children ever issued.

The volumes contain more than 1,500 octavo pages, with nearly 1,000 illustrations; they have the splendid series, besides shorter stories, historical and biographical papers, poems, sketches, rhymes, jingles, riddles, etc., more than equal in contents to 20 volumes of ordinary children's books of 6,000 book pages costing $35.00!!

Two specimen numbers, with Prospectus for 1876, sent, postage paid, on receipt of Twenty-five Cents.

CONDITION PILLS!!
The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

These Pills were first sold in America in the Spring of 1874, but from the sale of the first package their success was assured, for almost every person who purchased one package soon ordered more for himself or friends, and in a short time testimonials came pouring in from those who had been benefited by them. Some of the cures were astonishing. Following are a few of the testimonials:

Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for Twenty-Five Years, so Bad that Life was almost a Burden Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills.

ASHLAND, N. H., Oct. 3, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—For over twenty-five years I have been afflicted with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I have suffered much, and for a large part of the time have done no work. For two or three years past have been growing worse, and last Fall I was so bad that life became almost a burden. I was much discouraged, and finally took my bed, where I lay several weeks. About this time I saw your Pills advertised in the Manchester Mirror, and resolved to try them, but with little hope of receiving any permanent benefit. I felt benefitted by the first dose, and after taking one package I felt like a new man, and now I can report myself cured. One package has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took. I have recommended them to several others, and have obtained two orders for them. I procured one package of you for a friend, and he reports himself cured. Enclosed please find $1.00 for two packages. SAMUEL PLAISTED, JR.

Worth Ten Dollars a Pill.

BATH, ME., Oct. 4, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I received your package of Pills, and can truly say they have done wonders for me. I have given away a few and those I gave to say, "Send for a package for me." I have told many what good they have done and are doing. I had the Dyspepsia so bad that I thought I couldn't stand it much longer. Have tried most everything, but nothing did good. I have taken only three pills and can eat anything. In one of the testimonials one said they were worth their weight in gold; they are worth, at least, ten dollars a pill, and I would give it before I would do without them. In this please find $1.50 for three more packages for my friends. H. D. LEONARD,
Care Watson & Gannett.

DANVERS, MASS., July 19, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir—For the last twenty-five years I have suffered terribly with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, also Liver and Kidney Complaints, causing severe pain in the back and hips, often unable for months to stoop to pick up any small article from the floor. I have had several doctors, spent a great deal for medicine, which did no good, and finally concluded I must suffer the rest of my life. I happened one day to see your advertisement in the Congregationalist. I thought the medicine was just what I needed, and I sent to you last April for a package of Pills. Before I had taken eight I felt like a new person. Can sleep well nights, eat well, and have no Neuralgia pain; can stoop as well as ever. My friends are astonished at the change in me, and think it will not last. My sister has suffered from Inflammation of the Bowels, and Constipation, and wishes to try your medicine. I intend still to take them, and would not be without them if money would buy them. I think they must prove a blessing to thousands who will be induced to try them. Enclosed you will find $1.00: please send two packages.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Another Letter from Mrs. B. T. Lane---Health much Better at 64 than 44---Neuralgia and Kidney Troubles Completely Cured by Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills.

DANVERS, MASS., Oct. 10, 1875.

THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir—I write again for more of your invaluable Pills. I have no Neuralgia, or Kidney Trouble, still I wish to take them until my blood is thoroughly cleansed. My health is much better at 64 than it was at 44. This, with the blessing of God, I attribute wholly to your medicine. I have two friends in Haverhill, one in Andover, and a lady in Roslendale, who are taking it, and are already much benefited. I send $1.00 for two packages.
MRS. B. T. LANE.

Hundreds of others have sent in unsolicited testimonials of the efficacy of these Pills. Among them are:

PULMOCINE.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases the secretions, is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the luxurying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—IS USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

N. Y. TRIBUNE.

"THE LEADING AMERICAN NEWSPAPER."

The year 1876 promises to be crowded with more important and interesting occurrences than any since the close of the war. We shall celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of our national birth with the most remarkable display of our arts and industries, and the greatest concourse of visitors ever seen on the continent. We shall elect a new President under circumstances which threaten to make the political campaign peculiarly exciting. The House of Representatives for the first time since the close of Mr. Buchanan's term is under the control of the Democratic party, and it proposes to lay bare the secrets of the Administration now drawing to a close. Its course during the next six months will define the policy by which the Democratic party hopes to rule the country; while the action of the Republicans is likely to determine whether the organization which saved the Union and freed the slave is to fail to place a ce center upon a new career of usefulness. In the practical work of government there are great abuses to be swept away, and many promises to be put to the test. In the settlement of the national finances the year may mark the crisis of our affairs. In religion it promises to mark a great revival, and there are many signs that the relations of the Church to the State, and particularly to the State schools, will provoke sharp discussion, and enter largely into politics. In trade, commerce and productive industry there are hopeful signs that it will witness the long deferred revival.

In such a stirring and crowded period, THE TRIBUNE confidently appeals to its past record and its present performance, as constituting its claim for the continued regard of all old readers, and the accession of many new ones. No intelligent citizen can afford during such a year as 1876 to dispense with an independent newspaper, upon which he can rely for an impartial record of events, undistorted by partisan necessities or personal hates or ambitions.

THE TRIBUNE will maintain with the old fervor the old Republican principles of which it was the champion all through the American conflict, and it will rejoice whenever those principles are victorious under the old banners. But it can never be the servilehandmaid and other conventions; it must approve what it finds good in the acts and professions of either party, and apologize for the wrongdoing of neither. In giving the news it endeavors to ascertain the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; in politics its great object is to elect honest men, whom the country knows and can trust, to secure hard money, Administrative reform, such economy in public affairs as the hard times compel from private citizens, lower taxes, and a generous peace. Thus it found itself last Fall, rallying the forces for the splendid hard-money triumphs won by the Republicans and their allies in Ohio and Pen sylvania, and earnestly striving to hold up the hands of an Administration in New York, which was busy fighting the Canal Ring, stopping leaks in the treasury, and lowering taxes. In each case it found the people sustaining its positions, and it hopes to be so clearly right in its political course through all the storms of 1876 as to win equal success, and command yet greater approval.

One result of this policy of struggling for the triumph of honest men and measures, rather than of being too much controlled by mere names, has been that both parties find themselves forced to abandon many of their old practices and to adopt a new system to put forward their best men, and to practice some of the reforms they preach. It may fairly be claimed that conscientious and independent voters have thus within two or three years gradually forced both parties up to a somewhat higher plane, and we may hope that the Centennial year will witness still greater improvement.

THE TRIBUNE will continue to labor for this end with the methods which have already commended it to popular favor. It will endeavor to combine the utmost candor with judicial fairness; will keep its columns free from personal wrangling; will waste no time in replying to the incessant attacks its success provokes from envious rivals, and as heretofore will reserve all its space for its readers' interests.

From those who believe such a purpose a desirable visitor in their families, THE TRIBUNE solicits a continuance of the favor it has so conspicuously enjoyed in the past. During the past year, and with the position assigned it long ago by foreign critics, as "the leading American newspaper" has come to be generally recognized, and its circulation has been greater than at any previous period in its history. It has won this position by the closest watchfulness and the most lavish expenditure to procure the freshest intelligence, the most complete reports, the most interesting letters and essays, and the ablest work in every department. Its staff includes the most accomplished men in the profession, and among its outside contributors it numbers many of the most eminent men in the country.

The Woman's Temperance League hereby tender their sincere thanks to Messrs. Wallace, Kennedy and all members of the Dramatic Club who so kindly contributed to their entertainment; to M. T. Betton & Co., and Mr. Appleton Tredick for favors; to the managers of the Seamen's Home, and all who sent in articles for the table; to Mr. J. Frank Philbrick, Mr. McIver of the Seamen's Home, Mr. James H. Dow and many members of the Reform Club, who gave their labor and aid in many ways at the late levee; to the Press, which gave so many favorable notices; and to all our friends who did all in their power to help in the good cause. A democratic exchange says: "The republicans are at present employing fifteen clerks in Washington sending reading material to the benighted brethren in New Hampshire. It is estimated that they have sent off 300,000 documents of all kinds, to say nothing of a dozen or more political shouters, all of whom have been promised heavy rewards in case the party wins the fight." Then they'll get the heavy rewards. But when we find a democratic paper crediting the republicans with working well we like to repay the compliment in kind, so we will say that not many days ago over a ton and a half of Pub. Docs. were sent from Washington to this post-office for distribution by a democratic member of Congress, and that more campaign documents have so far been sent through the mails by the democrats than by the republicans. As long as postage is paid, who cares?

The two large oil paintings disposed of in shares for the benefit of Mr. T. P. Moses, the artist, were on Saturday evening awarded to the shareholders in the Portsmouth Art Union, by a committee chosen by and from said shareholders, consisting of Messrs. Jas. B. Dennett, Freeman H. Burleigh, Shirley B. Cunningham and Wm. Bush. Ticket No. 113 took the Landscape, and No. 126 the Marine painting;—holders of which lucky numbers will receive their awards at Mr. J. R. Burleigh's Picture Store, on presentation.

Mr. Eduardo de Anguera the Piano Tuner will be in town in a few days when he will attend to all orders that may be left at Preston's Drug Store. See advertisement.

We understand that a lodge of the "Independent Order of Red Men," is to be instituted in this city on Wednesday evening.

There will be a partial eclipse of the moon next Friday. As it is visible throughout the United States, those of our readers who take sufficient interest in such matters to rise at twenty-five minutes past twelve at night and remain up till twenty-five minutes past two, will have an opportunity of seeing the performance to its close.

Colonel Luther Junkins of York, whose death has recently been announced, was for a long time a Deputy Sheriff under Sheriffs Herrick and Chadbourne of York County, and subsequently Collector of Customs for the District of York.

W. G. Hatch, station agent at Sawyer's Mills, on the Portsmouth & Dover road, is missing.

Hon. Frank Jones has arrived home from Washington,—to stop until after the democrats have carried the State, as a democratic friend informs us. He won't be of much more service to his party as a member of the present Congress, according to that.

The republican meeting at the Temple, Friday evening, was attended by a large audience, including many democrats,—and we are glad to be able to say that the latter showed no inclination to disturb the meeting or the speakers, as some of their brethren in Manchester have done, according to the reports of the Manchester Union. Col. Andrews gave a calm, argumentative discourse on the constitutionality of secession, with the reasons why every man who believes the United States are and by right ought to be a nation, should vote against the democratic party of to-day. Though not at all in the line of a spread-eagle stump speech, it was just such a presentation of the questions at issue between the two parties as we could wish the democracy to hear, and was listened to as attentively by the democrats present as by the republicans. Mr. Pratt was very hoarse and spoke briefly, referring to the Belknap scandal in such a manner as to convince those who heard him that the republican speakers and party neither endorse nor defend corruption, nor fear to expose it wherever it may be found.

The Times says the Woman's Temperance League of this city have voted to present an elegant standard, suitably inscribed, to the crew of the first fishing vessel belonging to this port, coming forward in a body and signing the pledge. The presentation will probably take place at the regular meeting of the reform club, next Thursday evening, at the Temple.

The warrant for the annual town meeting of Hampton Falls contains a clause for an appropriation not exceeding $300 for the purchase of a hearse.

The Mechanics' Fire Society sat down to a splendid supper at the Rockingham House, Friday evening, with T. S. Nowell, Esq., as host.

Gunner Moses A. Lane is ordered to the receiving ship Sabine.

The democratic papers say the gentleman "who bossed the construction of the 'Marion' and 'Enterprise'" testified "that the building of the vessels was an experiment;" and add that "the government let the job out in a lump on contract, and then was kind enough to furnish tools, men and lots of et cæteras." As the "Marion" was repaired in the same way as the democrats repaired the old "Franklin" and dozens of other vessels, and by the regular naval officials, it is safe to say the gentleman referred to did not testify that her building (or repairing, either,) was an "experiment;" and as to the other vessel, her building by contract was an experiment, tried to determine if the constant clamor of the democrats that vast sums were expended for useless labor on our ships of war was well founded; and instead of the government furnishing the contractor with "men," it was labor only the contractor was required to furnish, all he was paid for furnishing, and all the act of Congress under which the vessel was built contemplated he should furnish. The "experiment" was intended to decide whether a ship of war could be built by workmen employed by a private builder, more cheaply than a similar vessel could be built in the usual way by the Naval Constructors; government furnishing all the materials in both cases, the difference, if any, between the cost of the two vessels, would be the difference in the cost of labor alone.

The Louisiana Outrage.

The "White League" of Louisiana is at its work again, and the KuKlux will, of course, join hands with them. They have repudiated the solemn pledges of faith made to the Wheeler Compromise, and have passed resolutions in the State House of Representatives impeaching Governor Kellogg. Of course, there is no honest ground for their action. It is admitted by all impartial observers of Louisiana politics that Kellogg has made a good Governor—has lent his best efforts to the cause of economy and reform. Since the adoption of the Wheeler Compromise peace and order have been restored to the State, business has revived, and the promise for Louisiana has been brighter than at any time since the war. The action taken by the democratic House is simply to obtain such control of the State as to enable them to secure its electoral vote for a democratic President this fall. Their plan was, briefly, as follows: Under the State Constitution articles of impeachment suspend an officer from his duties until a verdict is rendered. They proposed to impeach both the Governor and Lieutenant Governor, and then adjourn. This would leave the democratic Speaker of the House acting Governor, and give the democrats control of the State until the next election. In this shameful purpose they have been promptly met by the republican Senate, which, by a set of resolutions printed elsewhere, declared the action of the House to be illegal, and gave, or sought to give, to their declaration the effect of a complete acquittal of the Governor from the charges preferred—N. O. Republican.

TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."
